WOMAN DEAD IN A DESOLATE WOOD

A Bullet Hole in Her Jaw and a Bullet in the Earth, and No Pistol Found.

MURDER, AUTHORITIES SAY

She Wore Expensive Clothing and Good Jewelry, Which Was in Place When Her Remains Were Found.

In the skeleton of a young woman found in a desolate spot two miles north of Islip, L. I., the authorities of Suffolk County believe they have the revelation and key to a murder committed there many months ago. Fashionable garments that the young woman had worn were still clinging to her remains. A jewel set bracelet, a gold necklace, and a gold Swiss watch which were found in place upon the whitened bones are expected to give a clue to her identity.

Searchers at the spot found a flattened bullet yesterday where the skull had lain, and there is a bullet hole in the jaw. No pistol was found, a fact which dissipated the idea of suicide.

The scene of the tragedy is in a stretch of scrub oak and stunted pine. The nearest house, that of Joseph Schmidt, a wood cutter, is 300 yards away, and there is no other within half a mile. The body was found in the brush Sunday afternoon by Schmidt's four-year-old son while the boy was helping his father gather firewood.

Forest fires of last Autumn had singed the clothing and foxes had gnawed at the silk garments. The woodcutter summoned Dr. William Savage, the Coroner, from East Islip.

The woman was about 5 feet 7 inches in height and of slender build. Her hair was yellow. She had worn a tan silk automobile veil, fastened by a black-topped hatpin; an Eton coat of fine broadcloth, and beneath this a heavy gray cardigan automobile vest and a black silk waist, very expensively embroidered in appliqué roses. The corset was black and expensive. There was only one black worsted petticoat found, and no outer skirt.

The woman had worn black button shoes and black stockings. Around the wristbone was a slender gold chain bracelet with a heart-shaped pendant of fresh-water pearl. The necklace was double-linked gold, and to it hung an empty heart-shaped locket with a small diamond setting.

German Writing on Paper.

On a black shirtwaist was fastened with a blue enameled fleur-de-lis pin, a small gold watch. It had stopped at 12:30 o'clock.

On the ground in the midst of the disheveled remains was found a small pair of rusted folding scissors and a silver thimble marked 10. There, too, was found a folder of the Hamburg-American Steamship Company, describing the land scenes as incoming vessels near New York. In one pocket of the Eton jacket was found a billhead bearing indistinctly some lettering, indicating that it had been printed in Krebel, Rhenish Prussia, and beneath the words "Koche & Verrot." It contained some notes written in German. Another scrap of paper bore the letters "ess" and "ork."

At the direction of the Coroner the body was removed to the undertaking establishment of C. F. Daley at Islip, where a further examination was made. The watch was found to be of French or Swiss manufacture, the regulator bearing the initials A and R instead of F and S, to indicate "fast" and "slow."

On the inside of the outer case were scratched the letters "A. L., 1893." The case number was stamped "10848," and below it "H. P.' Other inscriptions, scratched on different parts of the case in minute characters, as if repair markings, were "2096," followed by a circle containing a dot; "7120" or "712v," followed by the letter "A"; "204 G. p.," and "9751," followed by an "H" in German script. All the A's and all the 7's were crossed as though written by a German or a Frenchman. On the rim was scratched "VVVIII."

Wagon That Passed in the Night.

From the condition of the woman's teeth it was judged that she must be nearly 30 years old. Three of the front upper teeth were gold filled, and the eye-tooth was gold crowned. The dentistry had been skillfully done. It was thought at first that the woman might be Miss May Smith, an attendant at the Manhattan Insane Asylum, at Central Islip, who had disappeared about a year ago. But Dr. D. Longhnecker, a dentist of Islip, who had done bridge work for the missing woman, declared that the teeth of the dead woman bore no resemblance to those of his patient.

Despite an all-day investigation by detectives of the District Attorney's office of Suffolk County and Deputy Sheriff Havens, little light was thrown on the mystery. Mrs. Charles Heber of Brookville and her mother, Mrs. Hubbard, remembered that one night shortly before the forest fires they had heard a wagon rattle past their house in the direction of the woods and a woman scream within it. Then an hour later the wagon had rattled furiously back.

It is believed by Deputy Sheriff Havens and others that the young woman was lured to the spot, possibly on the pretext of inspecting a site for a new home. It is thought that the forest fires which swept the place may have been set to obliterate traces of the murder.

The billhead containing the German lettering was sent by Coroner Savage to the German Consul, and it is believed that some trace of the woman may be found through this medium.

Spine Broken, Dies of Pneumonia.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., Oct. 19.—Joseph Lafferty, whose spine was fractured in a trolley accident more than a year ago, died of pneumonia here this morning. He spent many months in the Nassau Hospital, and when removed to his home as incurable had only the use of a few fingers. About a month ago he took the risk of an operation at the Red Cross Hospital in New York, which was supposed to have had remarkable results, giving him partial use of his arms.

RASMUSSEN UPHOLDS COOK

But Has Not Seen Cook's Eskimos—Would Bring Them Here.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 19.—The Greenland steamer Godthaab, in command of Capt. Schoubye, has arrived here.

Capt. Schoubye reports that Knud Rasmussen, the explorer, who is now in Greenland, after examining thirty-five Cape York Eskimos who had seen Dr. Cook's Eskimo companions, is quite convinced that Dr. Cook reached the pole. He says that Rasmussen is willing to go to the United States with the two Eskimos, I-took-a-shoo and Ah-pe-lah, who were Dr. Cook's sole companions in the latter part of his expedition. Rasmussen, however, the Captain states, had not himself seen I-took-a-shoo or Ah-pe-lah, who are now hunting.

Rasmussen's wife and father have both received letters from him giving details obtained from the Eskimos. These are practically the same as Dr. Cook's story.

MAY SAVE CADET'S LIFE.

Quarter Back Wilson Suffering from Fracture of Fifth Vertebra.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 19.—Earl D. Wilson, quarter back of the Naval Academy foot ball team, who was injured in Saturday's game against Nova Villa, has sustained a fracture of one of the vertebra of the neck. This was disclosed by a more thorough X-ray examination which took place this afternoon. At the consultation which followed, Surgeon Charles F. Stokes of the Naval Hospital, Washington, was present with the officers of the staff of the local naval hospital, of which Surgeon Frank Anderson is chief. Previous external examinations and the X-ray had not disclosed the fracture, which is of the fifth cervical vertebra, and it was hoped that there was no pressure on the spinal cord, but merely a clot due to the force of the blood, which would be absorbed.

The discovery of the fracture makes it probable that Wilson's life can only be saved by a delicate surgical operation, and this is likely to take place tomorrow morning. The mother of Midshipman Wilson is expected to arrive tomorrow, and her wishes will be considered in the matter.

Since the accident Wilson has had almost complete paralysis of the limbs and the upper part of the body. His brain and vocal organs are unaffected. Wilson's home is in Covington, Ky., and he is the best all-around athlete in the Academy.

PUT POLICEMAN TO FLIGHT.

Husband and Son of Accused Woman Attack Him in a Harlem Apartment.

With a warrant charging Mrs. Mabel Norton with the thelft of $500, Policeman Goetzer of the West Side Court made his way to the Hudson Grantview apartments at 122 to 126 Claremont Avenue at 9 o'clock last night. He ascended to the Norton apartment on the fifth floor.

Mr. Norton opened the door; the policeman disclosed his identity and his business. Mr. Norton tried to slam the door, and this failing because the detective put a foot over the sill, called his son, sixteen-year-old Edgar, Jr.

According to Goetzer, Norton and the boy, a strong youngster for his years, set upon him and beat him until he fled down the stairs blowing his police whistle in the hope that a policeman in the street might hear it. None did, but Goetzer telephoned for help, and two men were sent from the West 125th Street Station.

They found the apartment house in an uproar. Excited tenants filled the halls. With his reinforcements, Goetzer returned to the Norton flat, and finally, over the telephone, persuaded Norton and his wife that they had better surrender. The couple were taken to the West 125th Street Station, where Mrs. Norton was held on the warrant, while Norton was charged with interfering with a policeman.

The warrant on which Mrs. Norton was held was issued to Willard Wilson, manager of the Hotel Remington, 129 West Forty-sixth Street, by Magistrate Steinert in the West Side Court on Monday. The Nortons lived in the Remington for three years, up to ten days ago. Mr. Wilson could not be found last night, and it was impossible to learn in what the larceny he charged against Mrs. Norton consisted.

COMEDIAN KELLY ROBBED.

Checks for $40 Taken and His Retreat for Hoboes Closed.

Comedian John T. Kelly buys his shirts in Philadelphia. He does this because he finds the New York brand too swift for him when he gets into the rural circuits. This, together with the fact that his home in Whitney Avenue, Elmhurst, L. I., was no longer a home for wandering Willies and the "down trod" generally, were two of the important points brought out before Judge Humphrey in the Queens County Court, Long Island City, yesterday, where John Schaff was on trial charged with grand larceny.

Previous to this charge being entered against him Schaff was one of the dusty roads retainers of the Kelly home, and between tears and indignation Mr. Kelly told the Judge and jury yesterday how his confidence had been betrayed and his Philadelphia shirts sent astray.

Mr. Kelly said he was unexpectedly called out on the road, so he left behind him several checks which were apportioned out in the following amounts: $16 for the Philadelphia shirts, $14 to pay the cook, Stella Kulsick, $5 to Schaff, and $5 for paint.

Schaff lured the cook into intrusting him with her check to take to the bank to get cashed, and he also took the other checks, went to the bank, and cashed them, getting $40. Mr. Kelly was notified and caused the arrest of Schaff.

W. A. CLARK'S LARGE TAXES.

Ex-Senator Must Pay on $2,100,000 Valuation for Fifth Avenue Property.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 19.—The valuation of $2,100,000, placed by the New York City Tax Commission on the property of ex-Senator W. A. Clark, at Fifth Avenue and Seventy-seventh Street, for 1903, was upheld by the Court of Appeals to-day.

An application was made to reduce it to $1,000,000. The decision of the lower courts in refusing to grant the reduction was affirmed.

FEAR FOR M'CARREN; RELAPSE CONTINUES

Nothing Encouraging to Say, Says His Physician After Midnight.

WEAKEST SINCE OPERATION

Pulse Irregular and Temperature Rises and Falls—Can't Get His Mind Off Politics, It's Said.

After steadily improving for two days Senator Patrick H. McCarren suffered a serious relapse yesterday. Some improvement in his condition was shown early last night, but this had been reversed when at 12:30 o'clock this morning the Senator's physician, Dr. Peter Hughes, left the sick room in St. Catharine's Hospital, Williamsburg, and announced to the waiting reporters:

"The Senator is a very sick man. His condition is very serious, and there is nothing encouraging to say."

Dr. Hughes was then on his way home after spending three hours with the Brooklyn leader. He said that Mr. McCarren realized his critical condition and was making a hard fight for life. He would not say more and hurried away, declaring that he needed rest and would not return to the hospital until morning unless a change in Mr. McCarren's condition caused him to be summoned in haste.

Early last night the patient rallied slightly, but his heart continued weak and his pulse irregular, his temperature rising and falling, the average being 98.

At 11 o'clock Dr. Hughes issued this bulletin:

> Mr. McCarren's condition is very much improved. He seems more appreciative of his surroundings.
> PETER HUGHES, M. D.

This news encouraged the many friends of the Brooklyn leader who were in the hospital at the time. Among them were Magistrate Dooley, Assistant Corporation Counsel Lazinsky, Judge Henry T. Haggerty, and Isaac M. Kapper. Their fears had been aroused by the earlier bad news, and they again began to hope, but the doctor's announcement an hour later revived their forebodings.

Dr. Hughes spent all the time that he could possibly find at the bedside of the stricken leader. Mr. McCarren, it seems, cannot be made to keep his mind off politics. He frets all the time about the campaign, and this, with his nervousness and weak heart action, is having a bad effect on him.

It was learned yesterday that he had spent a restless night, tossing about in bed and showing signs of worry. In the morning he refused to take any nourishment, complaining that his stomach could not retain it. Later in the day he managed to swallow small quantities of liquid peptonoids, with the white of eggs and some ice.

"The Senator," said Dr. Hughes, "had a poor night. He is troubled with hiccoughs, which is a bad sign. During the day he was much exhausted and weak. His heart is in a weakened condition."

One of the nurses said that the patient had slept but little and had passed his worst night since the operation was performed. At one time, she said, an opiate was administered to induce sleep, but it was ineffective.

Rumors to the effect that the Senator was found to be suffering from a malady in addition to appendicitis continue to circulation in Brooklyn, but these are persistently denied at the hospital. It is said there that there are no complications other than those arising directly from the operation for appendicitis.

The Senator himself has made it known that he wants the public properly informed as to his condition. It was not his desire, he said, that statements as to his illness be colored with optimism. He seemed greatly pleased with the widespread interest and sympathy expressed in regard to him.

"I did not know I had so very many friends," he said gratefully.

Early in the afternoon Dr. Hughes talked about Mr. McCarren's condition with the Rev. Thomas J. Carroll of St. Vincent de Paul's Church, in which parish the Senator lives. He told the priest that he was greatly surprised at the change in his patient, and expressed the belief that it was due to a nervous reaction.

A great flood of telegrams and other messages for the sick leader continue to flow into the hospital. Yesterday afternoon Mayor McClellan called up the hospital on the telephone and inquired as to the Senator's condition. Dr. Hughes personally answered the call and talked for several minutes with the Mayor. Although many people called to see the Senator none was admitted to his bedside. Among the messages received yesterday was the following from Roger C. Sullivan, Democratic leader of Illinois:

> I have been patiently waiting reports of your condition, and hope and pray you will be spared many years to come.

Messages of sympathy also came from Mayor Patrick McCarthy of Providence, R. I.; St. John's College, Brooklyn; the Gridiron Club of Poughkeepsie, the Unity Republican Club of Brooklyn, the Interborough Association of Women Teachers, and the teachers of Public School 56 in Brooklyn.

FRAUD IN DRIED SAUSAGE.

Diseased Meats Sometimes Used as Well as Dog and Cat Flesh.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 19.—A member of the Pure Food Congress now in session here said to-day that much of the Italian, German, and French dried sausage commonly used in hors d'oeuvres is made of the flesh of horses and donkeys.

"There is no objection to this in principle," he added, "but in some cases the flesh of diseased horses, dogs, and cats is so used, and more stringent measures should be taken to prevent this practice."

MAY TRY TO COLLECT $41,000,000 IN TAXES

Court of Appeals Decision Settles Question of Procedure Under Franchise-Taxing Law.

CALL SPECIAL COURT TERMS

Court Decides That Assessments Are to be Equalized with Local Levy—Net Earnings to be Determined by Facts.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Thousands of cases pending all over the State for the collection of unpaid special franchise taxes, aggregating about $41,000,000, including about $27,000,000 in New York City, will be brought to a speedy determination as a result of a decision to-day by the Court of Appeals, in which the court lays down rules for the guidance of the State Board of Tax Commissioners in assessing special franchise tax valuations. The methods to be followed by the State board in these matters have been the subject of litigation for years.

The decision was handed down in the case of the Jamaica Bay Water Supply Company against the State Board of Tax Commissioners, in which two important questions were raised. One was whether assessments of special franchises of corporations, which include the tangible property of the corporations in the streets and highways and the right to use these streets and highways, are to be equalized with local assessments made by assessing officers in the same locality. The second question was whether the courts may properly set aside the assessment made by the State board if it does not correspond to the result reached by the net earnings rule.

In an opinion by Justice Willard Bartlett the court, upon the first point, holds that the Appellate Division was right in allowing the special franchise to be equalized to correspond with the rate of assessment adopted by the local Assessors. Upon the second question it holds that not rule can be laid down by the courts, although generally the net earnings rule will give a proper result. The court then defines at length the method by which this net earnings rule should be applied.

The decision was given in the test case in which, after ex-Attorney General Jackson had withdrawn the appeal taken in behalf of the State, Attorney General O'Malley intervened and succeeded in annulling the stipulation withdrawing the appeal and having the case reinstated in the Court of Appeals.

The importance of the questions involved was so great that a number of the large corporations intervened, and briefs were filed on behalf of the Consolidated Gas Company, the New York Mutual Gas Light Company, the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, the Third Avenue Railroad Company, the New York Edison Company, and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system.

The court sustains the contention of the Attorney General that the proper rate of return to be allowed in applying the net earnings rule is a question of fact, although in the absence of the proof the opinion holds that the court may take judicial notice that 6 per cent. is a fair return.

Attorney General O'Malley says he will request Gov. Hughes to appoint extraordinary terms of the Supreme Court in each judicial district of the State, in accordance with a law passed by the last Legislature, for the purpose of hearing these actions, instead of trying them before referees. Extraordinary terms already have been called in the Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth Districts. With the decision of the Court of Appeals as a basis of settlement, many of the actions have already been settled by stipulation, and it is expected that many others will be disposed of in the same way.

"It should be possible," says a statement issued by the Attorney General's office to-night, "for the State to collect the back taxes for many years from these corporations, since the decision answers virtually all the questions raised in these numerous cases, and Attorney General O'Malley promises to follow this decision with a vigorous campaign for the settlement of these suits."

Section 1,391 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, which provides that executions may be issued against salaries, applies to judgments recovered prior to the enactment of that section, which is known as the garnishee law, according to a decision of the Court of Appeals today. The court reverses the Appellate Division, first department, in the case of Laird against Carton, which held that the act was not retroactive, and sustains the Appellate Division, second department, which had decided contrary to the first department.

The court also held that commissions paid to traveling salesmen are salary and wages within the meaning of the law.

MRS. ALEXANDER INJURED.

Wife of Equitable Director Badly Cut When Taxicab Hits Elevated Pillar.

Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, whose husband is a Director in the Equitable Life Assurance Society, was painfully injured yesterday afternoon when a taxicab in which she was riding ran into an elevated railroad pillar at Fifty-sixth Street and Sixth Avenue. She suffered a deep gash in the left temple and many scratches on the face. She went to her home at 4 West Fifty-eighth Street.

The taxicab, the property of the Universal Taxicab Company, was going north in Sixth Avenue, when, as the car neared Fifty-sixth Street, the chauffeur, Fred Haywood of 211 West 117th Street, turned from the tracks upon which he was running, to avoid a surface car. As he turned off the rails the machine ran into the pillar.

PARIS INVASION BY METROPOLITAN OPERA

Gatti-Casazza and Dippel to Give Italian Operas at Theatre du Chatelet Next Spring.

TOSCANINI WILL CONDUCT

If Experiment Succeeds It Will Be Repeated with German and French Productions—Hammerstein a Rival.

It was announced at the Metropolitan Opera House yesterday afternoon that the opera company, at least the Italian branch of it, would be taken to Paris next Spring to give a season of opera in the French capital, at the Théatre du Chatelet. Signor Toscanini will conduct the performances, and although the list of singers who will go has not yet been officially given out, it is easy to surmise that Mmes. Destinn, Farrar, and Homer, and Messrs. Caruso, Scotti, and Bonci will be among the number. Neither German nor French operas will be given during this season, but if the experiment is a success it will be repeated by the German forces of the Metropolitan the following May.

In the office of the Metropolitan yesterday afternoon Messrs. Gatti-Casazza and Dippel gave out the following statement:

"Toward the end of last September through the intelligent efforts of Gabriel Astruc, who is at the head of the Société Musicale pour les grande auditions de France, a committee of patrons was formed, comprising the most eminent Americans, Italians, and Frenchmen, residing in Paris for the purpose of presenting a series of performances of Italian opera at the Théatre du Chatelet during the months of May and June, 1910, with the principal elements of the Metropolitan Opera Company, its principal artists, chorus, scenery, costumes, and accessories. With the formation of the committee of patrons negotiations with the Metropolitan Opera Company were immediately begun between Mr. Astruc, representing the committee, and Messrs. Gatti-Casazza and Dippel, and were brought to a successful conclusion, with the specific understanding that the Italian season in Paris should be undertaken by the Metropolitan Opera Company as a practical demonstration of the artistic standard of opera at the Metropolitan rather than as a financially speculative scheme.

"The musical direction of the Italian season in Paris will be in the capable hands of Arturo Toscanini, and this fact commands a public acknowledgment of the personal sacrifice Signor Toscanini determined to make for the Metropolitan Opera Company. He had received an offer from the opera at Buenos Ayres of $40,000 for a season of fourteen weeks, of which $10,000 in advance was to be placed in his hands. This unprecedented salary was voluntarily renounced by Signor Toscanini in order that he might conduct the Paris season of the American company.

"Messrs. Gatti-Casazza and Dippel will be at the head of the Executive Committee in Paris. Both the Parisian projectors and the Metropolitan officials feel that the season is so certain of success that they are confident of repeating the season in the months of May and June, 1911, when German operas, sung in German, and possibly French operas sung in French, will be presented as duplicates of the performances of the Metropolitan Opera House. Mr. Astruc has been the representative of the Metropolitan Opera Company in Paris. It was under his direction that Paris saw Richard Strauss's 'Salome' and the Russian season of opera last May and June."

As Mr. Hammerstein has promised to take Miss Mary Garden and Messrs. Renaud, Dufranne, and Dalmorès to Paris next Spring to sing "Salome" and other operas, the merry opera war which has been going on in New York, Philadelphia, and Boston is likely to be continued under another flag.

KAISER APPLAUDS CARUSO.

Miss Rose Shares Honors—Tenor Has $7,500 for Three Performances.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 19.—The Kaiser led the applause at Caruso's brilliant performance in "Carmen" at the Royal Opera House to-night. The Kaiserin and Crown Prince were also present. Caruso was in glorious voice and received an ovation unprecedented in local operatic history. The honors of the evening were shared by an American, Miss Frances Rose, as Carmen.

Berlin is Caruso mad. Seats are selling at $50 each. Caruso receives $7,500 for three appearances.

MURDER CAPTAIN AND CREW.

Natives of New Britain Loot Ship and Burn Men's Bodies.

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 19.—Details of the massacres in New Britain last month received by the steamer Marama to-day, are to the effect that Capt. Lindsay of the ketch Rabaul and ten of his crew were murdered and burned. The trading vessel was looted and also burned.

Capt. Lindsay, owner and master of the Rabaul, was off the east coast of New Britain, about 200 miles from Herbertshone, recruiting laborers. About sundown, when he anchored his ship for the night, a swarm of native canoes came off and the blacks asked that he come ashore, as plenty of men were ready to sign as laborers. Capt. Lindsay went ashore and was escorted to a big native house, where about a hundred blacks were gathered.

As he stepped in he was struck down from behind with a spear, and the blacks sprang upon him with knives. He fell bleeding from scores of wounds, and was hacked to death. The body was then dragged out to the beach and burned. The flotilla of canoes then went off to the Rabaul and blacks swarmed aboard. One after another the ten men of the crew were slaughtered. Then while they lay, some dead, some mortally wounded on the deck, a raid was made on the stores. Kerosene was poured over the deck and in the holds, making the ship a funeral pyre for the murdered men. Ship and victims were destroyed.

BETTORS STILL CAUTIOUS.

Only Two Election Wagers of Large Amounts Recorded Last Night.

Never before in a municipal, State, or National campaign have there been so few wagers on the result reported two weeks before election day.

Last night only two bets of consequence were known along Broadway. A Tammany man laid $2,000 to $1,000 in the Hoffman House that Gaynor would win. Another bet of $2,000 to $1,500 was made in a Broadway café that Bannard would run third in the race.

The only indication of prevailing odds that could be obtained was from these bets. There is very little two to one betting on Gaynor, however, and most of the men who are betting small amounts that Hearst will have a plurality over Bannard demand even money. The usual Wall Street betting headquarters are inactive.

RUMORS OF MORGAN'S HEALTH

Contradicted by Daily Appearances at His Desk as well as by Associates.

J. P. Morgan has been at his office quite frequently of late, and is apparently in the best of health. He was at his desk yesterday.

Notwithstanding successive denials and the evidence of Mr. Morgan's regular appearance in Wall Street, rumors that he is a sick man have cropped up periodically for the last month or two, usually after the close of the New York market.

Late yesterday afternoon the story gained currency among the arbitrage houses that the financier was ill. Later it began to be talked about uptown. Close associates of Mr. Morgan said last night that he was in his usual health.

THIRD RAIL SETS MAN AFIRE.

Interborough Switchman's Clothing, Hair, and Eyebrows Burned Off.

A brilliant flash in the yards of the Interborough at 149th Street and Lenox Avenue last night, followed by the cries of a man, brought a dozen yardmen to the place where Okey Bruntin, a switchman, had slipped and fallen across the third rail. His clothing and hair were afire.

He was pulled away from the rail by fellow workmen, who donned rubber gloves. He was unconscious. All his clothing was burned off and his hair and eyebrows were burned away. He was taken to Harlem Hospital, where it was said he would probably die.

MAY HEAR HERESY CASE.

Presbyterian Synod, Meeting at Johnstown, Likely to Consider Black Dispute

JOHNSTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 19.—The case of the Rev. Archibald Black, accused of heresy, is the most important topic likely to be considered by the New York State Presbyterian Synod, which met here today. The New York City Presbytery recently allowed Mr. Black to be ordained in the pulpit of a New York church, but those who accuse him of extreme liberalism have threatened to bring the case before the synod.

Upward of 200 delegates were present at the session to-day, which was taken up by committee meetings.

TWO HURT IN PARK RUNAWAY.

Ex-Princeton Football Player and Girl Friend Hurled Out of a Phaeton.

Miss Jeannette La Porte of Washington, D. C., who is visiting an aunt at 8 East Forty-fifth Street, and Russell F. Whitehead, an architect and former Princeton football player, who lives at the Forty-fifth Street address, were injured yesterday, when a horse attached to a phaeton in which the two were driving ran away on the Centre Drive in Central Park and collided with a wagon at Seventy-fourth Street. Both were thrown out. They were removed to the Presbyterian Hospital in a private auto. At the hospital it was said that Miss La Porte had suffered fractures of three ribs and possible concussion of the brain. Whitehead suffered contusions of the head and right knee. He left the hospital, but Miss La Porte remained there in a serious condition.

MRS. FREDERIC BULL ROBBED.

Thief Enters Cottage at Lenox and Escapes with Jewelry.

Special to The New York Times.

LENOX, Mass., Oct. 19.—While Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Bull were at dinner last night at the Deepden, the Kinnicutt estate, which they have occupied for the season, a thief entered the villa by climbing to the roof of a porch, and ransacked Mrs. Bull's room. He looted her dresser of silver articles, a diamond-studded watch, a pearl brooch, and other things, in all valued at $600.

A man was arrested in the grounds at Rockledge, the Bacon villa, Sunday night, but he broke away from a watchman and escaped. The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Frothingham, on the Stockbridge highway, was also entered, but nothing of value was taken, the burglar being frightened away by a dog.

PATTEN LINER IN COLLISION.

The Little Silver Beached Near Liberty Island with 55 Passengers.

While the Patten Line steamer Little Silver, a wooden craft of 428 tons, was on her way from the Battery to Pleasure Bay and the Shrewsbury River, yesterday afternoon, she collided with a carfloat, in tow of a tug off Liberty Island, and her upper works were slightly stove in.

She had aboard, besides some light freight, fifty-five passengers, and Capt. Edwards, fearing for their safety, beached his boat on a mud bank a thousand feet northwest of Liberty Island.

In a very few minutes the Little Silver's sister ship, the Mary Patten, also on her way to the Shrewsbury, drew up alongside her and relieved her of her passengers. The Patten then proceeded on her way, and soon the Little Silver, lightened of her burden, backed off the shoal under her own steam and went to a shipyard at Fifteenth Street, Hoboken, for repairs.

GAYNOR SPEAKS IN TAMMANY HALL

Telling the Braves at Their Ratification That He Had to Ask the Way.

BITTERLY ASSAILS HEARST

Ignoring Bannard and Sending a Few Shots Bingham's Way—Promises Subways, Disclaims Roesch.

For the first time in his life, as he said himself, William J. Gaynor entered Tammany Hall last night, and, with Charles F. Murphy invisible, or almost invisible, addressed Tammany's faithful, who filled the auditorium to its limit. He spoke for almost two hours, reading—for special reasons, he said—part of his address. Twice while he was speaking there came the heavy tramp of people going out.

Mr. Gaynor concentrated his fire upon William Randolph Hearst, ignored Otto T. Bannard, and sent a shot now and then at ex-Police Commissioner Bingham. He did not seem to be able to get Mr. Hearst out of his head. He would get away from him as a subject for a while, but time and again he would go back.

All of Tammany's major candidates spoke, but naturally attention was focused on Judge Gaynor. He promised that if he were elected some subways should be built in the next four years, and that the "Metropolitan crowd" would not get "so much as their little fingers into that pie." He scoffed at the idea that he was sponsor for such men as Candidate Roesch. Though he had declared that he wanted to stand or fall with the other two Democratic candidates on the city ticket, he said he did not stand sponsor for the borough ticket men.

The candidate happened to drop the phrase, "as if I were boss already," and the audience jumped upon it and laughed loud and long. The ghost of a smile went across his face, which faded into seriousness again. He stood with uplifted right hand until the applause was over.

Big Night for Tammany.

It was Tammany's grand ratification night. Three bands had been employed, one for the inside and the other two for the outside.

Tammany Hall holds only about 3,000 persons. It had been expected that some 15,000 would be outside, and for them several speakers' stands had been erected. But the red fire and firecrackers and Roman candles and music outside did not attract as many listeners as had been expected. The overflow, after the hall was filled, was considerable, but the "big noise" was not what it has been many times before. At 8 o'clock it was still possible to get a seat even in the hall itself.

At the back of the stage is a scene showing a countryside gate, with flowers falling over the fence that runs away from it. The gate stands slightly ajar, as if inviting some one to come into the rich and luxuriant garden seen in the background. Mr. Gaynor came from behind the garden gate. His entrance was greeted with several minutes of real Tammany enthusiasm. As the cheering was about to die down a smile ran across his face and the applause got new life.

No one could see Mr. Murphy on the stage. After the meeting Secretary Smith said that Mr. Murphy had been standing just by the garden gate. George F. Roesch, the Tammany candidate for the City Court, was not even supposed to be in the hall.

Mr. Gaynor's Speech.

In his speech Mr. Gaynor said:

"Now just give me a chance for a little while. And so this is Tammany Hall. It is the first time that I ever was here. In fact, as strange as it may seem to you—for no doubt you feel very important over here in Manhattan—I did not even know where it was. I had to inquire by telephone before leaving my house exactly how to get here.

"When I returned from Europe last Summer I found that I had been nominated for Mayor by fifty-three different civic and business organizations throughout the five boroughs of the city, and that petitions were out for my nomination in that way. In response to a committee composed of men of the highest standing, Democrats and Republicans in National politics alike, I finally said I would be a candidate for Mayor, and you know that I have three times refused to run for Mayor.

"A committee of 100, made up largely of persons who were the appointees and tools of persons who never appeared in the open themselves, met with the Republican machine leaders, who are repudiated for just cause by many Republicans; also, with representatives of the Hearst Independence League Party, and with a few others, claiming to represent others, in fact, represented nobody. They claimed that they met to make a non-partisan or non-party nomination for Mayor, in the name of what they called a fusion of National Democrats and Republicans and all others, and they sat at a table to divide the offices and spoil of the city. These fusion apostles exposed the gross sham of non-partisanship they were engaged in by announcing that they would not nominate any one of the Democratic Party, including myself, unless he gave them a pledge that he would not permit the Democratic Convention to indorse or nominate him also, and they impudently and unlawfully put that right up to me. I shall always look back upon this as the grossest insult ever perpetrated on me.

Most Scandalous Page of Our History.

"And now if I may get away from my notes, I will say just a few more words in regard to some of the pertinent issues of the campaign. My friends, we are going to build subways, [applause,] for the city is going to build three subways. We do not intend that a simple subway or franchise for it shall be passed over to any of those men who erect your street railways over here to have bonds and stocks piled up on them, sold out to the community at the highest figures, and then the road thrown into bankruptcy, the same as your roads are over here to-night, and have been for three years, not a dividend paid on them meanwhile.

"Oh, ye men of Manhattan! I fear you do not always know what is occurring right among you—the most scandalous chapter in the history of New York, and it has evoked very little public indignation. The men that did it are said to be good men. They hold their heads high. They attend church convocations—why, according to the newspapers, they even build churches and altars, but I say unto them that so long as the money which they robbed the people out of in this transaction, so long as the seven thousand and more maimed people here walk these streets legless and armless or hurt otherwise remain unpaid for the hurts that they received, all their wealth and all their churches will purchase less forgiveness for them on the great day than a pebble in the grave of the least one of those they have so brutally wronged.

"I am an absolutely free man, [applause,] and if there be any one here or elsewhere thinks or hopes that I shall as Mayor abandon my life record which I expect to leave to my eight children, that I shall abandon the unbroken hostility of my life here among you against bad government, against meddlesomeness, oppression, wrong and corruption in government, let him go to the polls straight and vote against me. [Applause.] I intend to lift government up here, aided by the honesty and intelligence of the city. I intend to take a long step forward and upward as every honest man in this great city knows; and that is also the intention of my two associates, [appaluse,] for you know there are only three on the city ticket. We welcome all men and organizations who will co-operate and help to come along.

Says Tammany Resisted Traction Cash.

"One tribute I want to pay. The leaders of the Democratic Party had only to nominate a candidate for District Attorney of New York County and for Mayor selected by the railroad and Subway interests which I have already mentioned, and still others, in order to have their campaign coffers filled to overflowing with contributions of money. They resisted it against great odds and great temptation. I saw with others what was going on. In fact, it was almost open. I appeal to every man on the newspapers to testify to what I am saying. But it was resisted, and a new era opens up for New York.

Mr. Gaynor here rehearsed the story of the traction tangle in this city, bitterly attacking the men responsible for it. He continued:

"Nobody ever put a dollar into the building of the present Subway except the city; nevertheless the day it was opened and you met to celebrate the opening of it, how many people in the City of New York stopped to think that, although they had put every dollar into it, they did not own it when it was completed, but that those who got into it have it for seventy-five years before it comes back to the City of New York? I have told that to men, and they said, 'Oh, well, it is only for seventy-five years; the city will have it in seventy-five years.' Why, you would think it was only for seventy-five days, they say it so jauntily and so flippantly. Seventy-five years! What rent are they paying for seventy-five years?

"Why, it cost the city $47,000,000 to build it, and they even made a profit of over $10,000,000 on the contract in the building of it, and they pay during that seventy-five years never to exceed 1 per cent. on that cost, or otherwise $475,000 a year, their gross receipts this night being nearly $13,000,000 a year. [Applause.] And the 1 per cent. by the contract is not certain even. The contract is that they paid that 1 per cent. if they earned it, and pay this 5 per cent. on their capital invested in the equipment of the Subway. That is the cost and power, and the way their capital is growing, gentlemen, laying on these machines I have been talking about one after another, it is only a question of time when you will have a lawsuit on your hands to collect that 1 per cent.

A Voice Crying in the Wilderness.

"They have refused it twice already, and only paid it on the threat of a lawsuit. My friends, I have been talking of these things for years, but it has been like a voice crying in the wilderness. If it is to be that I am to be Mayor of this city I can speak of such things to the people of New York with a voice of authority, and I can tell you that during the next four years we will build the subways for the city, and none of these people will so much as get their little finger into it. [Great applause.] The leaders of the convention which nominated me—now they will yell to-morrow in the papers a job and a bargain, not these good gentlemen here, but some one in his editorial chair—the leaders of that convention were so good as to let me write the platform with regard to the subways which was adopted in their convention. [Great applause.] I took the greatest care to put in that platform a declaration that in the building of the subways hereafter the contract for the building of the subways should be kept entirely separate and apart from the contract of letting.

"So much, in brief, is the exact situation which confronts this city in regard to the building of its underground highways. Its Subway is as much a highway as the streets are. I could not make myself understood with regard to the policy which we are to follow unless I described to you the situation in regard to the streets and Subways now existing, to show you the folly of giving away these valuable franchises for nothing, only to allow the donee of the gift to take them and stock them and bond them for their own enormous wealth, selling stock and bonds, however, to you before the prices come.

City to Build Subways.

"I have explained all that to you only to show you the new policy of the city, that hereafter, in place of doing that, this city is going to build them itself, and then lease them out. For four years these people have cried out against the credit of the city in order to prevent the city from building them. They have cried out from the house tops and every crossroad of public opinion where they could get a hearing that the city had already reached its debt-making capacity of 10 per cent. of the real estate, and was without funds to build these subways. I almost blush to say that even some city officials were obtained to join with them in that false cry.

"It is lamentable to have to say such a thing on a public platform, playing into these people's hands, and with what result, my friends? With the result that the $40,000,000 of bonds which we threw on the market in June, right on the heels of these declarations that we were already bonded up to the limit, official declarations included—our bonds that had sold for 105 and 106, and even 110, premium, fell down to par, or, to be exact, 100.17, when the bonds of the little City of Baltimore three weeks before sold for 105.18.

"Why, a bond of the City of New York is better than a bond of the National Government. In the flux of time the National Government may disappear from the face of the earth. It may not endure forever. That has been the history of other nations. But whatever Government comes and goes over the nation and over the States, this corporation of the City of New York will go on forever, and its bonds will be good forever. [Applause.]

"Now, there is the situation with regard to the subways. The only other thing I will say to you to-night is this: I think that the government of the city, and especially the Mayor of the city, who presides over all the departments of the city, in the government of the city, in things that relate to the social and everyday life of the city should consult the wishes of the people of the city.

"He should feel that he is only a part of the people of the city. It is an unfortunate thing when you elect a Mayor of this city whose mind seems to be remote, and apart from the aggregate or public mind of the city. His mind should be part and parcel of the public mind; it should be in unison with it. It is an old saying, first uttered by a very wise ruler, that those who rule should consult the affections of the people.

Government Should Be Lenient.

"That seems simply that the government should be as lenient with the people as possible; should give them a little leeway, should not interfere with their pleasures, should not interfere with the social inclinations of the people beyond a certain trend. My friends, this city is made up of nations and creeds and peoples and churches from all over the world.

"Most of them came here expressly to be free; came here to have freedom of conscience, not to interfere with any other man's belief; not to have their belief interfered with; to pursue their own way, in which they harmed nobody else, and of all places on this earth therefore this cosmopolitanity, always upholding the law, always keeping a strict observance of the law and keeping outward order and decency, should nevertheless have some leeway and some play with regard to things not strictly provided for.

"Why, last Spring, for an illustration, when the seaside resorts here, including Coney Island, were about to be opened we had a Police Commissioner who got up and announced three weeks in advance that he intended to close everything up there. Now, no minister of the Gospel had asked him to do any such thing, unless maybe some person seeking some sensation or notoriety. Nobody has a profounder respect for those who devote themselves to the ministry than I have.

Can't Have "Crowbar" Rule.

"We cannot substitute in this great city for the orderly and even administration of justice which prevails all over the English-speaking world the club and the crowbar in the hands of any Police Commissioner or any Mayor. [Continued applause.] You cannot reform the world all at once, much less, my friends, by force or violence. Virtue has been much more preached everywhere than it has been practiced anywhrre, is an old saying, and everything good in this world, my friends, is of slow growth. How long the Almighty God sat brooding over this universe before it was completed and how patiently he did it!

"How slowly the tree grows; how slowly even the grain of wheat matures, and even this body of ours how slowly and gradually it comes to maturity. Everything in this world, in the material world and in the realm of thought progress is of slow growth. Let the schools and the churches and the ministers of the churches, inculcate morality and gradually advance it, but let the notion be stamped out here once forever that a free people can be clubbed into morality by any police Commissioner or any authority whatsoever, climbing up five stories high with ladders, crowbars, and sledges, and smashing in doors and finding nothing whatever, and arresting squads of men and locking them up over night, only to say to the Magistrates the next morning, no charge, no charge. [Laughter and applause.] That is not the way.

"We want a wise head to the police force, a just man, not a pompous man who goes about strutting and swearing, swearing at the men and treating them brutally and putting foul spots on the record of men who have honorable service in the department, but we want a man who will be kind to them and at the same time absolutely strict, but just in all his strictness, and invincible in keeping order in the force. I must say if I were Mayor to-morrow I should like to inquire into who conducted or managed the police in this late celebration. Was it the Police Commissioner—quiet, unobtrusive? Why, he has hardly spoken a word since he has been in.

"What a contrast to the buffoon who was there before him! [Long applause.] Or was it some Inspector of the force, or was it some of those elegant young Captains we see in the streets, carrying themselves so finely, so fine of speech, that we are proud of him? Secondly, it was due to somebody, and I have no doubt in the world that right here we can get people competent to rule the force, and rule them in a quiet, orderly, strict, and firm manner.

"Why, four years ago, and I don't say this in derogation of Mayor McClellan, I suppose he acted according to his best light and according to his best judgment, and I honor him for it, but the fact remains that four years ago there was not a man of this great city of four millions and a half and in this great State of over eight millions, I believe, who was deemed to be fit to be made Commissioner of Police of the City of New York.

"He sent over to Washington [laughter] and got a man with the official title of head butler of the White House. [Applause.] Majordomo, some people call him, [Laughter.] Drum major would have been a great deal more appropriate, [laughter,] and in charge of the servants there and the flower beds outside, with the title of General, who never commanded even a company in his life. [Applause.] And he is brought over and put at the head of one of the finest police forces in the world. Per saltam over their heads, not only over the heads of that force, but over the head of every man in the City of New York. I say, New York for New Yorkers.

"This great city has been defamed throughout the world. Its morals have been defamed. Why, in Europe, with the reports of the ragbag press here, and that by no means includes all of our press—do not understand me as saying it for a moment—carrying the statements of sensational people and the reports of house breakings by authority, and the preachings even to political audiences with brass checks in hand, and such things as that, and befouling the city—that thing carried all over Europe and all over this country has spread abroad the notion that we are steeped in vice, the most vicious and degraded city on the face of the earth, when everybody who has traveled knows that the City of New York is the most orderly and decorous city in the world.

Says Press Slanders the City.

"In the same way they have slandered the credit of our city until our bonds are actually down to par; when the bonds of such little cities as Utica and Baltimore and Boston are selling for 105 and 106, ours sell for a decimal over a hundred. They have cried out that we are bankrupt. A man spoke to me of these things in Europe this year, and I told him about the morality of this city, that it was not so, that it was only the talk of a few sensationalists, aided by a few miserable, contemptible ragbag newspapers. They spoke to me of the public credit of the city, and said, 'Why, you are bankrupt; we would not buy your bonds; we are afraid of them,' and I said, 'Why, my friends, do you know that the City of New York, compared with your European cities, has still only a moderate debt! Do you know that Paris, with less than a million an da half of people, has a bonded debt of $500,000,000, when New York, with four and a half million people, has a bonded debt of $600,000,000?'"

"Now, my friends, I have to speak on some of these subjects over in my little Borough of Brooklyn to-morrow night, which in a few years will be so little that it will be as big as this borough and the Borough of the Bronx combined; do you know that? And yet Mr. Hearst thinks that this borough, the home of Tammany, nominates the Mayor. He knows so little about the government of this city that he thinks this Government in this borough nominates the Mayor. He is saying so all over this city every night, and he aspires to be Mayor.

Not Responsible for Judge Roesch.

"He has preached over the city, and preached last night, that I said that unless everybody in the five boroughs was elected I did not want to be elected. Just think of the howling wilderness in that man's head! Why, he is howling about somebody on the ticket named Judge Roesch. God forbid that I should injure any man I know nothing of, nor would I until I knew the facts about him. He says he is a bad man or unfit. Over in the Borough of Richmond there are probably unfit men nominated for office on both tickets, as there may be in Queens and the Bronx; and I know there are in Brooklyn, because I come from there. But I have nothing under heaven to do with the local government of the boroughs of this great city. These newspapers began to bellow out why don't you go and put this one off and that one off the ticket, and I answered them, as I answer Mr. Hearst to-night, that they don't know what they are talking about.

"Just think of my taking the ferry and going over to Staten Island to the convention and saying to them, You nominate thus and so. Why, they would tell me that they lived under the laws of the State and they have local government there, and I might as well go up to the village of Oriskany, where I was born, and tell them who to nominate for Village Trustee. That is just all he knows about the government of the city, and I would wager anything on earth he never read the charter of the city. I would not like to bet $100 that Mr. Bannard has, either. My friends, you can do nothing in this world until you learn how. [Laughter.]

"I never have sought a conflict. I would go around ten blocks to avoid a controversy, but I have never flinched from those I had to meet. Never! (Applause.) And in all the conflicts I have had with corrupt government, when I suffered from the basest detraction, open and secret, and there is nothing baser on this earth than secret detraction and lying, I never answered any man except as I stood naked before the world in my public capacity and as he stood in the same way, and never struck except at the point of the chin, and these things I say to him and others are all public matters open to legitimate discussion which should not be shirked."

The Leading Achievement in Piano Building

Weber Grand Pianola Piano

IN successfully combining the Grand Piano with the PIANOLA, the makers of the Weber Grand PIANOLA Piano have achieved one of the greatest triumphs in piano history.

The Grand has always been regarded as the finest example of the piano-maker's art. Yet comparatively few people own Grands. Now, by making the PIANOLA an integral part of the instrument, the Grand assumes a new musical significance and becomes of interest to persons hitherto content with an Upright.

Additional importance is given to this achievement by the high standing of each of the instruments involved. For over a half century the Weber has been renowned for the richness and beauty of its tone. While all over the world the PIANOLA is recognized as the Standard Piano-player.

The Weber Grand PIANOLA Piano was announced less than a year ago. Its reception has been remarkable. From musicians, from leading manufacturers of musical instruments, and from the great number of musical people who have seen it, have come endorsements rivaling in their enthusiasm those evoked by the invention of the PIANOLA itself.

No music-lover—no one interested in music, or the development of means for producing music, can afford to remain in ignorance of the Weber Grand PIANOLA Piano.

A cordial invitation to call and hear the Weber Grand PIANOLA Piano is extended to everyone, irrespective of any question of purchase.

GAYNOR HAS STIRRED MAYOR TO WRATH

Retraction of Insinuations Regarding Cutting Ferry Purchase Demanded.

TO BE MADE FROM PLATFORM

Justice Gaynor Hinted That the Purchase at Excessive Value Was a Return for Campaign Support.

Mayor McClellan made yesterday what amounted to a demand that ex-Justice Gaynor, Tammany candidate for Mayor, make public retraction of his references at the Carnegie Hall mass meeting last Thursday night to the purchase by the city of the Thirty-ninth Street ferry. The Mayor intimated that the candidate's insinuations in regard to this purchase amount almost to a charge of corruption against the Board of Estimate. It is understood that the candidate maintains that his speech was erroneously reported and that he did not say the things credited to him in the newspapers the following morning.

The offending paragraphs, as reported by the stenographers hired by the committee in charge of the meeting to take Justice Gaynor's speech and as printed in yesterday's TIMES, read as follows:

> Now, sometimes the city agrees, were they allowed by law, and takes the property without condemnation. Well, now, you have all heard of a great reformer named Cutting, haven't you? You have heard of the Cutting estate, haven't you? You have heard that they have a ferry running from the Battery over to Thirty-ninth Street in Brooklyn, haven't you? Well, the Citizens' Union, with the Cuttings financing the head of it, got a most extraordinary fever of municipal ownership and operation on them. Oh, how they did love it!
>
> And four years ago, when there were three candidates in the field, they favored the present incumbent. He didn't wish to stop it, and the fever of municipal ownership was on him yet, and a few months after the administration came in they bought his ferry It never had paid a dollar. It was put there only to exploit great land holdings which they owned at Bay Ridge, and out of which they made millions and millions and millions. And when they had made it and sold out their land they had the ferry on their hands, and it was a good stroke of politics and a good stroke of municipal ownership to turn it over to the city and let the city run it, and the city bought it and the city is running it at a loss now of $313,000 a year.
>
> And what did the city give for it? No commissioners in this business. The assessed valuation of the boats and the land on the Brooklyn side is $183,000. That is on the tax books, the assessment—the assessed value—according to Lawson Purdy, the head of the Tax Department, and no better man in the world. What did the Cuttings get for that, do you know, and do you know the assessors now declare that land here is assessed up to its full value or auction value, at all events—say, 90 per cent. of its value? $183,000 on the books, and what did the city pay? $750,000.
>
> Now, either that is a monstrous price or else the assessment on the assessors' books is a monstrous wrong to every other body that is assessed in this city. And then the city bought the land on the other side of the ferry from the Cutting estate, and I sent the other day and got the deed from the record, because I wanted to give you the exact figures; quite a number of lots. What do you think it was assessed for on the tax books? One million seventy-eight thousand dollars. In other words, 25 cents the square foot.
> How much do you think the city drew its check for to buy it? Four million five hundred and sixty-five thousand dollars; $1.10 the square foot. And that business is going on, gentlemen, all over this city.

"When I read Judge Gaynor's speech," said the Mayor yesterday, "I saw at once that he had made a very erroneous statement, amounting practically to a charge of a corrupt deal on the part of the Board of Estimate. I wrote him on Friday calling the matter to his attention, and received a message at once saying that he would make a correction at his first opportunity. Not hearing anything more from Judge Gaynor, either from the platform or by letter, I wrote him again yesterday. I received a reply to-day in which he said he would either let me make public his letter acknowledging the mistake or would make a correction from the platform. I chose the latter."

This was all the Mayor would say of the matter, but it was declared that his words did not convey the real strength of his feeling on the subject. It is understood that the Mayor's first letter to Judge Gaynor was a very strong document, and that the second, written after the Judge had made two speeches and not mentioned the ferry purchase, was a most interesting epistle. It is believed that the Mayor would not have chosen the latter of the candidate's two proposals, practically forcing him to make a public retraction, had Judge Gaynor given the matter more serious attention when it was first called to his attention.

A close friend of the Mayor declared yesterday that the incident should not be taken as meaning that Mr. McClelan is going to oppose Judge Gaynor or the rest of the Tammany ticket in any way, but that he simply desires to have the Judge rectify a misleading statement.

The Mayor stands, it is believed, on the contention that R. Fulton Cutting did not have any personal interest in the ferry; that it was owned by the wife of his brother, Bayard Cutting, who inherited it from the Murray estate; that the Citizens' Union did not give him any active support in 1905, and that the purchase price included land under water and ferryboats, which the Judge did not make clear.

YESTERDAY IN POLITICS.

Following the attack of William R. Hearst on Otto T. Bannard, Fusion will turn its heavy guns on the Civic Alliance leader.

Otto T. Bannard was boisterously received by a large audience at Maennerchor Hall, the headquarters of many labor organizations. The Fusion candidate was cheered by two other large meetings last night and at two noonday rallies.

William J. Gaynor, speaking at the ratification meeting in Tammany Hall, said he couldn't have found his way to the Wigwam without aid. Tammany Leader Murphy was not visible on the stage. The meeting was crowded, but the audience, at no time over-enthusiastic, began to leave the hall before the candidate finished.

Mayor McClellan wrote to Mr. Gaynor demanding a public retraction of his assertion on the stump that the present city administration, in return for Citizens' Union support, had paid an exorbitant price for the Thirty-ninth Street Ferry to the Cutting estate. The candidate has intimated that he may take this back.

A bulletin issued at St. Catharine's Hospital at 11 o'clock last night reporting the condition of Senator McCarren as somewhat improved after his relapse, was negatived by a statement of his physician at midnight. Dr. Hughes could then find "nothing encouraging to-day."

NO BALL TICKETS FOR GAYNOR

He Warns Mulligans and Others That the Penal Code May Get Them.

The grand annual ball of the Mulligan Association and like social functions scheduled for this Fall and Winter in Brooklyn will not be graced by the presence of Justice Gaynor. Also, the Mulligan Association and kindred bodies will save postage and their feelings by not sending Mr. Gaynor wads of tickets with polite requests that he remit by return mail.

The Chairman of the Ball Committee of one of these organizations in Brooklyn suffered a sad jolt yesterday when he opened and read a letter signed, "Yours truly, W. J. Gaynor." It said:

> Your letter reminding me that I had not paid for the entertainment and reception tickets which you sent me is at hand. Apart from the indelicacy of soliciting money from candidates for office, permit me to call your attention to the fact that it is a criminal offense.
>
> Of course, you did not know of this law or you would not have written me such a letter. I had better return the letter for your protection.

After reading the last polite line, the dazed Chairman grabbed his hat and hurried away.

Gaynor Thinks Race Charge Answered.

Judge Gaynor has replied to Isidor M. Levy, a Manhattan lawyer, who wrote urging him to reply to the Ivins racetrack conference charges.

> Very likely you now see that it may not be necessary for me to make any further denial. I denied the matter most distinctly, and am surprised that you did not see it. Every one now knows that the matter was made up out of whole cloth, and that there was no foundation for it. If you are not satisfied about it please let me know.

50 Votes May Be Stricken from Lists.

Attorney General O'Malley obtained yesterday from Supreme Court Justice Bischoff fifty orders to persons who have registered for voting requiring them to show cause why their names should not be stricken from the registration books. Mr. O'Malley said he intended to obtain from 100 to 150 more such orders.

A RIVAL TO MISS PURITY.

The Hundred to Show the Greed of the Tammany Tiger in Plaster.

The Association for New York will not have a monopoly on the employment of sculpture in the municipal campaign. The Committee of One Hundred announced yesterday that a plaster creation would be unveiled to-morrow in its exhibit in Sixteenth Street as an answer to the "Miss Purity" statue erected in Times Square.

The statue, which is to be added to the other exhibits in the Civic Museum, will represent Miss Purity prostrate, with the Tammany tiger clutching at her throat. Max Bachman, the sculptor who modeled the Lincoln statue which has been set up in the lobby of the Republican Club, is at work on the Committee of One Hundred's statue.

Job E. Hedges will make the principal speech at the unveiling ceremonies.

Correspondence transferring made easy

Do you transfer your correspondence all at one time, about the first of the year? That means extra work and interference with routine in the midst of your busiest season.

By a very simple, convenient plan, this task of transferring can be begun now, and done as knitting work, a little every day for the next two months, with no perceptible increase in your office routine. The results, in every respect, are more satisfactory than from the rush method.

Our plan requires no additional or different equipment from what you have been using. We shall be glad to demonstrate it to you with an actual file on our salesroom floor.

Or we will gladly send you a concise description of it if you will ask for it by telephone or mail. No charge or obligation. Telephone Worth 1400.

TAMMANY LEADER HELD.

Engel Puts Up $2,000 Bail for Williams on Ballot-Stuffing Charge.

Roswell D. Williams, Tammany leader of the Seventeenth Assembly District, who was arrested last week charged with ballot-box stuffing in the September primaries, was before Justice Crain, in General Sessions, yesterday morning to answer two more indictments of the same nature which the Grand Jury returned on Monday. Philip F. Donohue and Peter J. Galligan were arrested with Williams on the same complaint. Justice Crain fixed bail at $2,000 each, which in Williams's case was furnished by Martin Engel.

Special Deputy Attorney Reass, who is conducting the prosecution, examined more than a hundred men in his office yesterday. All of these assert that when they went to the polls their names had already been voted upon. According to Mr. Reass their accusations implicate the Captains in fourteen districts. More indictments are expected before the week is out.

ATTACKED BY GALVIN, TOO.

One Statement of Municipal Research Bureau, He Says, Cost City $18,000,000.

John F. Galvin, Democratic candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, arraigned the Bureau of Municipal Research yesterday in a noonday speech before the Commercial Travelers' League, at 686 Broadway, for misrepresenting facts concerning the management of the city, and cited one instance in which this alleged misrepresentation cost the city more than $18,000,000.

According to Mr. Galvin, the society recently published the statement that the city was within $300,000 of the debt limit. A taxpayer's action, continued Mr. Galvin, developed the fact that the city was not within $107,000,000 of the limit, and he added that as a result of misstatements of this kind the sale of $50,000,000 of 4 per cent. bonds realized a sum nearly $18,000,000 in proportion less than was realized ten years ago.

DEMOCRACY CHEERS BANNARD AND FUSION

In a Rapid Tour He Addresses Four Enthusiastic Throngs on City Issues.

DOWN WITH GRAFT, HIS CRY

Says All Municipal Affairs Should Be Administered on a Purely Business Basis.

Otto T. Bannard, Fusion candidate for Mayor, made another of his rapid tours of the city last night, speaking in four crowded halls to about 5,000 people. He was received with great enthusiasm at each place, particularly at the last one, in the Harlem Casino, at 124th Street and Seventh Avenue. There he addressed the Cleveland Democracy, the first out-and-out Democratic audience he has faced so far in the campaign.

Mr. Bannard's remarks were for the greater part extemporaneous, and he enlivened them with many flashes of humor at the expense of Tammany that brought his audiences to their feet.

The meetings began in Maennerchor Hall, at Fifty-third Street near Third Avenue, where a throng cheered the candidate for over a minute. Mr. Bannard traveled alone, and as a result did not have to wait for a co-star, as he called Job Hedges on Monday night, to finish speaking before starting for another appointment.

There was not an inch of standing room in Maennerchor Hall when Mr. Bannard worked his way through to the stage.

"I understand it has been said," Mr. Bannard began, "that I really don't care to be elected Mayor of New York. It was said that I didn't want the office and that therefore I did not want to be elected.

He Denies a Report.

"That is entirely untrue. I consider this nomination the greatest honor of my life, and not only do I want the office, but I expect to get it. I have had a long business training. For ten years I was a practicing lawyer. I have been a member of the Board of Education, I have worked for better tenements, and I have always been a saver, and if elected Mayor I will continue to save, but not at the expense of education, tuberculosis, or more playgrounds for the children. I wonder if the reason Tammany doesn't give us more playgrounds is because the children can't vote.

"A labor leader said a few days ago, I am told, that he was against me because I was interested in charity. I am glad he said that, for it gives me the chance to say I am interested in charity, but the kind that lifts a man up, gives him work, a good home to live in, health and strength, and not the kind that drags him down.

"I don't believe in that so-called charity of giving every man who asks it a quarter. That kind only degrades him and drags him down still further. I don't think there is any difference of opinion between me and the labor leader.

Bannard Is No Windmill.

"I'm not a windmill. I admit it. I am a business man who wants to spend the hardest four years of his life in stamping out graft and introducing business machinery into New York City government. It can be done, and I believe I can do it. It will be an important four years for New York City. Decide carefully as to who who shall be Mayor.

"Work and not wind is what you want. The next Mayor has serious responsibilities, and it is an opportune time to speak of our police courts and of Essex Market Court House. In 1908 there were 175,000 cases in the Magistrates' Courts in Manhattan and the Bronx and 63,000 in Brooklyn.

"They were made up of two classes—misdemeanors, relating to liquor licenses, domestic relations, and disorderly conduct involving moral turpitude; and a second class relating to violation of regular statutes in the interest of system and order such as traffic regulations and speed of automobiles—not criminal matters at all, humanly speaking.

"These courts leave their impress upon the minds of the people as to whether it is a Government for justice or injustice. Whether the law is to be respected or the contrary rests largely with the administration of these courts.

"The character of Police Magistrates and the courtroom surroundings are therefore vastly important. The next Mayor during his term will have the appointment of twelve Magistrates, a most serious responsibility. Some of our Magistrates are a great credit to the city, but during the last year two Magistrates have been removed for cause by the Supreme Court; one has resigned under fire and one has been indicted by the Grand Jury.

"Prisoners are often overcharged and grafted by lawyers, bondsmen, clerks, and attendants. Stamp out the graft. Even a prisoner is entitled to protection, and to rob him is setting him a poor example.

"The Essex Market Court has long been a disgrace to the city, yet it has not been touched by Tammany, and Tammany is the friend of the poor people—as long as they can vote. My slogan in this campaign is 'Down with graft.' Let's put it out. Let's stop it. It runs all through the system and somebody has got to take off his coat and rid us of it.

"I have been asked if I am elected how I'm going to do it. I replied that I didn't know, but that I was willing to try and would try my best if elected. It can be done, and great, sincere efforts will be made to do it if this Fusion ticket is elected.

"Another question that interests us all is the tax question. Taxes have gone up 19 points in the last two years, and the rent payers pay the taxes. For every $20 that you pay for rent, $3 or $4 of it goes for taxes. You may not pay the taxes directly, but you pay them just the same. Stop extravagance and waste, and some of this money will be saved.

"I want to say that I am glad to see so much interest manifested in the budget. That is a good sign. There should be more publicity about the city's business. When millions are spent some statement should be made to show what has been done with it. The same business rules should apply for the city as apply in the management of private corporations. There should be an intelligent interest shown by the people in the spending of their money."

East Side Speech.

National Hall, at Seventy-third Street, near Second Avenue, was the next speaking place. There another big audience was waiting to hear Mr. Bannard. Carl Hauser was speaking when the candidate reached the stage. In the course of his speech, when he referred to what he termed the injustice of hurrying a teamster off to court for a minor infraction of the traffic regulations, a man in the audience shouted:

"You're right. It's damn wrong!"

"I think so, too," replied Mr. Bannard, "and I thank you for expressing it in the way you did, for it would not be proper for me to so express it from the platform." And the crowd stood up and yelled.

"I have been asked why I am willing to give up a larger salary for the smaller salary of Mayor," Mr. Bannard continued, "and the answer is because I am willing to give you four years in an effort to stop plunder and graft; to give every child in this city a seat in school; to stamp out tuberculosis, and give you more parks and playgrounds. If I am elected I will feel that I have done credit to myself as well as you if I can do these things."

As Mr. Bannard left the hall the band played "Dixie," while the crowd stood up and cheered the candidate.

Majestic Hall, in 125th Street, was the next stop.

"I have no illusions about the hard work that I will have to do if elected Mayor," Mr. Bannard said at that meeting, "but it is a task that stirs a man, and I would like to have a chance to try it. I have not spent my time in this campaign abusing other candidates. I have decided to let the others do that, and while they are eating each other up I hope you will help me to get in between them."

The meeting under the auspices of the Cleveland Democracy in the Harlem Casino was the last of the night. There another big audience was waiting, and the candidate got a great welcome.

"I congratulate the Cleveland Democracy," said Mr. Bannard, "on this splendid meeting. I am a believer in organization, whether in business or in politics, and I welcome political organization, whether it be of my own faith or of another, so long as the organization is founded on the principles of good government.

"We all know about the Chelsea dock improvements. They were leased in 1906 for thirty years to the steamship companies, and yet they are not finished. After the bulk of the money is spent on a great city improvement Tammany loses interest in the work, and the city loses the interest on its money.

"I consider the rest of my ticket absolutely elected, city and county."

Before starting on his tour Mr. Bannard was the guest of honor at a dinner in the National Arts Club, Gramercy Park.

BANNARD AT NOON MEETINGS.

Two Audiences Greet the Fusion Candidate Enthusiastically.

Otto T. Bannard spoke at two noonday meetings yesterday. One of his speeches was delivered at the opening of the downtown headquarters of the Merchants' Municipal League, the other at the opening noon rally of the Bannard Campaign Club in the Flatiron Building.

The headquarters of the league at 412 Broadway was crowded. There had been no time to provide seats and the audience listened to the speech standing in the crowded hall. Mr. Bannard was received with a roar of welcome as he appeared and was introduced by William H. Fuller of the league Executive Committee. Among the Vice Presidents of the meeting were Cornelius N. Bliss, Charles A. Schieren, Marcus M. Marks, and Charles L. Brown. John Claflin is President of the league.

Mr. Bannard began by relating his business experience, and added that if elected he thought he would be able to do as well as either of the other two candidates. He then turned his attention to the experiences of contractors who are doing work for the city.

"It is too bad that a man who is entitled to something must pay to get what is his right, must 'step up and see the chief.' It is a shame. Let us put a stop to graft. If I am elected I will put a stop to it. There must be honest contracts with the city, and the contractors must be honestly dealt with. City employes must be honest or they will go."

At the Flatiron Building, Mr. Bannard was cheered for several minutes by a large audience.

"Some thoughtful soul has been passing around word that I don't care whether I am elected or Mr. Hearst," said the candidate. "I may be a philanthropist, but I am not giving myself away, I hope. I am in this fight to win."

Mr. Bannard was warmly applauded by the audience, which was composed very largely of independent Democrats.

WORKERS RALLY TO BANNARD.

Building Trades Unions for Him Because of the Hollow Tile Dispute.

The heads of labor bureaus which have been established for the Republican-Fusion candidates started yesterday to prepare for an active campaign. The Bannard, Labor and Railwaymen's Committee, of which John J. Morey, President of the United Railwaymen's organization of the State, is Chairman, said he had arranged for many outdoor and indoor mass meetings.

A RIVAL TO MISS PURITY.

The Hundred to Show the Greed of the Tammany Tiger in Plaster.

The Association for New York will not have a monopoly on the employment of sculpture in the municipal campaign. The Committee of One Hundred announced yesterday that a plaster creation would be unveiled to-morrow in its exhibit in Sixteenth Street as an answer to the "Miss Purity" statue erected in Times Square.

The statue, which is to be added to the other exhibits in the Civic Museum, will represent Miss Purity prostrate, with the Tammany tiger clutching at her throat. Max Bachman, the sculptor who modeled the Lincoln statue which has been set up in the lobby of the Republican Club, is at work on the Committee of One Hundred's statue.

Job E. Hedges will make the principal speech at the unveiling ceremonies.

50 Votes May Be Stricken from Lists.

Attorney General O'Malley obtained yesterday from Supreme Court Justice Bischoff fifty orders to persons who have registered for voting requiring them to show cause why their names should not be stricken from the registration books. Mr. O'Malley said he intended to obtain from 100 to 150 more such orders.

Gaynor Thinks Race Charge Answered.

Judge Gaynor has replied to Isidor M. Levy, a Manhattan lawyer, who wrote urging him to reply to the Ivins race-track conference charges.

Very likely you now see that it may not be necessary for me to make any further denial. I denied the matter most distinctly, and am surprised that you did not see it. Every one now knows that the matter was made up out of whole cloth, and that there was no foundation for it. If you are not satisfied about it please let me know.

FUSION BATTERIES NOW ON HEARST

Leaders Now Profess That He Is More to be Feared Than Judge Gaynor.

PARSONS PUTS GAYNOR 3RD

He Figures That "the Conservative Vote" in Tammany Will Go to the Fusion Candidate.

It was said yesterday on the Republican side that William R. Hearst, once regarded almost in the light of an ally in the Fusion camp, was now looked upon by the leaders of the Fusion fight as an opponent almost as formidable as ex-Justice William J. Gaynor, the Tammany candidate for Mayor.

Mr. Hearst's speech of Monday night attacking Mr. Bannard and asserting that from then on he would conduct the fight with a view to being elected, seemed to worry some of the Fusion leaders yesterday, though President Herbert Parsons of the Republican County Committee viewed the situation with equanimity.

"I think the attack by Mr. Hearst on Mr. Bannard will help rather than hurt our candidate," said Mr. Parsons. "The attack was to be expected. Personally I can only say that I am glad it came at this time."

Mr. Parsons says he believes Mr. Gaynor will run third, this judgment being based on a canvass made by his district leaders in Manhattan and the Bronx. Mr. Parsons does not believe that Tammany will be able to poll the ordinary vote for its Mayoralty candidate. He takes it for granted that a large percentage of the vote that Tammany will lose will go to Hearst as it did in 1905. He also intimated yesterday that "the conservative element" in Tammany would vote for Bannard when it was realized that Hearst was as much of a radical as Gaynor.

Mr. Bannard himself made an emphatic statement yesterday to dissipate any impression that he might be indifferent as to whether he or Hearst was elected, as long as the anti-Tammany candidates for the Board of Estimate came out victorious.

"I am for myself, and emphatically not for Mr. Hearst," said Mr. Bannard. "I fail to understand how there ever could have been any doubt as to my attitude."

It was learned yesterday that one effect of Hearst's speech will probably be to turn the heavy artillery of the Fusion forces on Mr. Hearst in the closing weeks of the campaign.

A start will be made by the Merchants' Municipal League, which opened headquarters yesterday under the leadership of John Claflin and Lloyd C. Griscom, former Ambassador at Rome. The league will conduct a vigorous campaign for Mr. Bannard, and may arrange a business men's Bannard parade for the last Saturday of the campaign. In conjunction with the West Side Republican Club the league will hold a big meeting in Durland's Riding Academy next week.

Some complaint was heard on the Fusion side yesterday of a shortage of funds. The campaign this year has been on a very expensive scale, and Mr. Bannard's campaign managers are contemplating a speaking campaign which will last until half a dozen hours before the polls open. This last is unusual in a municipal campaign.

Mr. Bannard is receiving hundreds of letters assuring him of the support of business men. Three such were made public yesterday by his campaign manager, Congressman Bennet.

James R. Keiser, President of the James R. Keiser Company, wrote: "Under the existing municipal conditions, which present so many problems that are essentially business propositions, we believe that your training and experience qualify you for the important position of Mayor."

Knother Brothers, a manufacturing concern at 122 Fifth Avenue, wrote: "We think that it is absolutely necessary that New York should have a man of your kind for Mayor, and each member of this company is doing all within his power to help elect you."

Lesher, Whitman & Co. wrote: "In view of the many and important questions which will come up before the next administration for solution, we feel that your election will be most timely, as these questions require the solid judgment and executive ability of an experienced business man such as you will be able to give them."

Cebulsky for Sullivan.

Jacob Cebulsky, who was the Republican nominee for the State Senate last year against Christopher D. Sullivan, is this year taking an active part in Sullivan's campaign for Sheriff. Mr. Cebulsky is a member of nearly all the Jewish east side fraternal and social organizations.

JAPANESE BANKS CLOSE.

Two More, One at Ogden and One at Sacramento, Suspend.

OGDEN, Utah, Oct. 19.—The Ogden Japanese-American Bank is now in the hands of the State Bank Examiner. The closing of the bank to-day created great excitement among the Japanese bank depositors, and at one time so large a crowd gathered at the bank entrance that a Deputy Sheriff was called to disperse it. Many of the Japanese did not understand the situation and thought the bank had become insolvent.

The officers of the bank got permission of the State Bank Examiner to place the following notice on the door:

"This bank is temporarily closed. The same is due to the closing by the California State Banking Superintendent on Oct. 18, 1909, of the main bank at San Francisco and the branch bank at Los Angeles."

State Bank Examiner Glazier said he believed that the bank was solvent, but could not give definite information until he had had time to overhaul the books and make an itemized statement.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Oct. 19.—The Nippon Bank of Sacramento voluntarily closed its doors to-day and advised State Bank Commissioner Anderson of its suspension. This is the second Japanese bank in this city to close within a week.

SAVE 39 HORSES AT A FIRE.

Three Stables in Greenwich Village Ablaze at Once—Checked by Wall.

The brick wall of the J. C. Linde paper warehouse, an eight-story structure at 610 and 612 Greenwich Street, was all that prevented the entire block being set on fire by a blaze which started in an adjoining stable last evening, according to Deputy Fire Chief Martin. The wall acted as a buffer for the flames, which spread from one building to another until three two-story wooden stables were on fire at once.

The fire started in the stable at 614 and 616 Greenwich Street, owned by James P. MacDonald, who kept nine horses there. Thomas Hughes of 135 Leroy Street discovered it as he put his truck away for the night, and after turning in an alarm, returned with several men and rescued the horses by wrapping blankets over their heads and leading them through the smoke.

The next building to catch was the stable of George Lesher, at 618 and 620. Here were seventeen horses. They were rescued. The wind carried embers and sparks to the stable at 134 and 136 Leroy Street, around the corner, belonging to Thomas M. Blake, and thirteen horses were saved there.

It was estimated that the damage was about $5,000. How the fire started is not known.

CHURCHES TO ADVERTISE.

Home Missions Council Plans Campaign Against Modern Problems.

After the fashion of big business advertisers, the combined Protestant Churches of this country will early in January begin a campaign to advertise social, racial, economic, and religious problems, which imperil American life and American institutions. The advertising will be by newspapers, magazines, periodicals, posters, bill boards, and literature.

The advertising will be directed by the Home Missions Council, representing a membership of about 18,000,000 and a constituency of 40,000,000 or more. The advertising will be directed to the public at large and such topics as the labor questions, the immigration problem, the negro problem, the condition in the city and in the village and the town will be discussed.

LABOR'S HOPE IN FIGHTING.

Gompers Tells Union Men They Must Be Ready for It.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, to-day made a vigorous plea for the increased fighting efficiency of labor unions. His plea was made in a speech before the annual meeting of the United Textile Workers of America here to-day. He told the textile workers that all that was good came by fighting and that money was as necessary in industrial as in military warfare.

There were present about forty delegates, representing 10,000 organized workers, the entire body of such employes numbering about 700,000 in the United States.

Labor Leader's Salary Doubled.

The local unions in this city were notified yesterday that the salary of William D. Mahon of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railroad Employes has been doubled by the Executive Committee on account of his successful efforts to secure better conditions for the street railroad men in Chicago without a strike. He will now receive $5,000 a year.

LEADING NEGROES DINE MATT HENSON

WATCH PRESENTED TO HIM

Commander Peary Telegraphs a Message of Congratulations from Eagle Island, Me.

Matt Henson, the negro who made the trip to the north pole with Commander Robert E. Peary, was the guest of honor last night at dinner in Tuxedo Hall, Fifty-ninth Street and Madison Avenue, given by colored people of the city. More than 200 men and women sat at the tables.

Charles W. Anderson, Collector of Internal Revenue, as toastmaster, presented Henson with a gold watch studded with diamonds, the gift of his negro admirers.

"Whatever may be said in the controversy as to which white man discovered the pole," said Anderson in presenting the watch, "there is not a shadow of doubt as to which black man got there."

In a brief speech accepting the watch Henson said that the colored man had tried for years to show the opposite race that he is a man of grit.

"When I went to Greenland they said I never would come back," said Henson. "They told me I couldn't stand the cold—that no black man could. I said I was willing to die if necessary to show them. I survived all right, and here I am."

This telegram, sent by Commander Peary from Eagle Island, Me., was read:

I congratulate you and your race upon Matthew Henson. He has driven home to the world your great adaptability and the fibre of which you are made. He has added to the moral stature of every intelligent man among you.

His is the hard-earned reward of tried loyalty, persistence, and endurance. He should be an everlasting example to your young men that these qualities will win whatever object they are directed at.

He deserves every attention you can show him. I regret that it is impossible for me to be present at your dinner. My compliments to your assembled guests.

Booker T. Washington sent this telegram from Tuskegee, Ala:

Am sending you my subscription for the Henson dinner. Permit me to congratulate you and your co-workers upon the wisdom and generosity manifested in providing the dinner in honor of our distinguished and deserving fellow-citizen who has by his achievement lifted the race to a higher level. My congratulations to the guest of the evening and to those assembled.

The dinner began at 8 o'clock. Among the toastmasters were James A. Cobb, Assistant District Attorney at Washington; ex-Judge Hiflen W. Gibbs of Arkansas, James Curtis, lawyer; Gilchrist Stewart, who led the legal fight for the negro soldiers in the Brownsville riot; Bishop Alexander Waters of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, the Rev. Dr. W. H. Books of St. Mark's African Methodist Episcopal Church, Prof. W. S. Scarborough, President of Wilberforce University; the Rev. Dr. Reverdy C. Ransom of Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church, Frederick B. Watkins of the Liberty National Bank staff, and Dr. Marcus F. Wheatland, President of the Colored National Medical Association.

At the conclusion of the dinner three rousing cheers were given for Henson as "The black man who helped discover the pole."

Louis Stern Home from Europe.

Louis Stern returned yesterday on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. from a four months' trip to Europe. He was accompanied by his wife and daughter, Miss Beatrice L. Stern. Mr. Stern said he had spent practically all his time motoring through Europe, visiting France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Switzerland, and Great Britain. He appeared to be interested in the coming election, and said that Bannard should have a good chance of being elected Mayor, every vote Hearst took away from Tammany counting in his favor.

Miss Dorothy Diehl Weds in London.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—At St. Paul's Church, Knight's Bridge, to-day, the wedding took place of Robert Coningsby Clarke, son of the late Col. Hannam Clarke, at one time Surveyor General of Ceylon, and Miss Dorothy Diehl, daughter of Dr. William Diehl of Philadelphia.

ARE YOU GOING DEAF?

Did you ever take a big dose of quinine and then notice how, after a short time, you had become quite deaf and your ears would ring and buzz? Quinine in big doses is a poison which enters the blood and attacks the ear nerves. When the ear nerves are poisoned there are ringing and roaring noises in the ear and deafness.

Professor Politzer of Vienna, the great ear specialist, said that the ear nerves were usually the first part of the body to point out the poisonous substances circulating with the blood.

Head noises are the signs given us by nature to point out the fact that our blood contains poison. Head noises also point out the fact that there is a disturbance at work in the ear which, if not corrected, will destroy the hearing.

We have learned to-day how disease breeding poisons are created. We know that germs in the act of living throw off poisons from their bodies.

Take catarrh, for an example. Here the germs attack the membranes that line the nose and throat. These germs do not enter the blood, but they throw off a poison which is absorbed into the blood. This accounts for the dull, tired feeling, the backache, the headache and pains through the limbs that go with a cold, an attack of grippe, and catarrh.

The catarrh poisons attack the ear nerves and cause the head noises and deafness that are so often met with in catarrh sufferers.

I have made a discovery in the treatment of head noises and deafness which I consider an important one. My discovery does away with the necessity of passing instruments into the ear tubes, which measures have proved unsatisfactory, are painful, and instead of curing the disease have often forced it further up into the ear tubes.

I know that if deafness is taken in time and the blood is freed of those poisonous substances which irritate the ear nerves the head noises will usually disappear and the hearing will improve. I know further that even later in the disease, where the head noises and deafness have been present for several years, once the system is freed of the poisons which cause the trouble the hearing will be improved.

Here is who I am and what I have done: I graduated in medicine in New York in 1879. I was the prize winner of my class. I won in competitive examination the position of Physician to Bellevue Hospital, where I served in 1879 and 1880.

I have made a specialty of diseases of the throat and ear for thirty years. I decided the best way I could tell the people who I was and what I had done was to advertise in the daily papers.

The following interview with Professor Loomis will explain what he thought of me:

(N. Y. World, Sept. 2, 1894.)

"Professor Loomis of the University of New York, the great specialist, said, in alluding to medical men who advertise: 'Dr. McCoy, for instance, is an able man, well educated, a thorough scientist and a first-class physician. He is a graduate of Bellevue Hospital. He advertises, does an immense business and is doing much good.'"

Among the first upon whom I tested my new method for head noises and deafness was Mr. W. P. Frazier, a gentleman who was 64 years of age at the time he sought my aid in my Chicago office. Mr. Frazier and his brother are manufacturers of high grade light vehicles. Mr. Frazier consulted me nearly two years ago. The story he told me then was as follows:

"Over twenty years ago I began to have trouble in my left ear. I gradually lost my hearing in that ear until I could not hear a watch tick with it unless it was held right close to the ear. I got along pretty well until the Fall of 1906, when I had an attack of grippe that attacked my other ear—the right. My right ear got so I could only hear a watch tick that was pressed up against it. I had sounds in my head like frogs croaking and crickets singing."

Mr. Frazier was a good patient and visited my office regularly. I put him under the new method I had devised, and in three months time Mr. Frazier was cured. At that time he said:

"I can now hear a watch tick when three feet away from my right ear. The noises are all gone, and with the ear that has been deaf for twenty years I can hear as well as I could before it became affected."

Mr. Frazier has had no trouble with his ears since I treated him, nearly two years ago, excepting a slight return of the head noises which a few days' treatment cured. His place of business is 371 Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

I only mention this case to show what can be done by proper treatment in many cases of deafness and head noises of long standing in persons well advanced in years.

If you think my training and experience should make me a good ear doctor, I should be pleased to have you visit my offices. It will cost you nothing for an examination and advice. If your ears have been so neglected that treatment will not restore your hearing, I have the best instrument ever invented to make deaf people hear. It is called the Baker Microphone. I will be pleased to give you an opportunity to test this little device free.

If Parents Knew

How important it is that school children have proper food, they would see to it that and cream is served one or two meals a day regularly.

Grape-Nuts is scientifically made of wheat and barley and contains the phosphate of potash, grown in the grain, for building brain and nerves to the highest degree of perfection.

This food can be eaten and digested in the time required to cook an ordinary meal, and children like its neutral flavour.

It is not only a brain-builder, but keeps them plump and rosy.

TAKE THEM OUT
Or Feed Them Food They Can Study On.

When a student begins to break down from lack of the right kind of food, there are only two things to do; either take him out of school or feed him properly on food that will rebuild the brain and nerve cells. That food is Grape-Nuts.

A boy writes from Jamestown, N. Y., saying: "A short time ago I got into a bad condition from overstudy, but Mother having heard about Grape-Nuts food, began to feed me on it. It satisfied my hunger better than any other food, and the results were marvelous. I got fleshy like a good fellow. My usual morning headaches disappeared, and I found I could study for a long period without fatigue.

"My face was pale and thin, but is now round and has considerable color. After I had been using Grape-Nuts for about two months I felt like a new boy altogether. I have gained greatly in strength as well as flesh, and it is a pleasure to study now that I am not bothered with my head. I passed all my examinations with a reasonably good percentage, extra good in some of them, and it is Grape-Nuts that has saved me from a year's delay in entering college.

"Father and mother have both been improved by the use of Grape-Nuts. Mother was troubled with sleepless nights, and got very thin, and looked care-worn. She has regained her normal strength, sleeps well nights, and looks well."

Fur Auto Garments

We eliminate every element of chance as to quality by purchasing the raw pelts from first hands. Only the best skins are considered. From the moment they reach us until the completion of the garments each progressive step is confined to our own workrooms. That means the bestowal of care and skill of the sort which furs "manufactured" for the general trade have never received.

Attention is particularly directed to the elegance of our models. Primarily designed for comfort and protection, their distinctive outlines commend them for their gracefulness and beauty as well.

AMERICA MAY RESIST HIGH FRENCH DUTIES

Imposition of the Maximum Rate Likely to Lead to Protracted Tariff War.

PURE FOOD LAW AS A CLUB

Retaliatory Action Considered—France Cannot Meet Necessary Conditions to Get Minimum Figures.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—In case the French persist in their apparent determination to impose their maximum tariff rates on imports from the United States there is a likelihood that this country will retaliate by subjecting French wines and spirits to a rigorous test under the pure food law.

The reason for the contemplated action is that otherwise we should have no weapon against France until April 1, when our maximum provisions under the Payne law become effective. The plan of the French Government, according to the belief here, is to impose its maximums against us on Nov. 1. That would allow France five months in which to discriminate against this country with impunity.

It was reported to-day that a preservative was used in French champagnes which might come under the ban of the pure food regulations.

While the effect of the rigid enforcement of the Pure Food act against French liquors can only be guessed at, it is believed that France would lose far more than she would gain in a struggle of that sort. On the other hand, it has repeatedly been charged that France uses her own inspection laws to our disadvantage, and that she realizes it is only a question of time before she must feel the weight of our health regulations.

On Aug. 7 President Taft, in pursuance of the provisions of the new Tariff act, gave formal notice to France, Switzerland, and Bulgaria that our commercial agreements with them would be terminated on Oct. 31.

About the middle of last month the Secretary of State received from Consul General Mason at Paris the text of the announcement by the French Government of the abrogation of our commercial agreement with that country, and since that time there has been no expectation here other than that beginning on Nov. 1 American exports to France would be taxed at maximum rates, as from that date the exportations of France to the United States will likewise pay our full schedule rates. These rates will be continued until March 31, 1910, when the new maximum and minimum features of the act will go into effect.

The pending trade treaty between this country and France relates to but few articles, the bulk of the trade between the two countries being conducted under the general tariff rates.

The reason for France's proposed action against us arises from the certainty on her part that on and after April 1, 1910, she will get our maximum rates unless she makes impossible concessions.

This country and France long have been hostile commercially. In tariff matters concessions have been mutually withheld, and all along it has been held in the Senate and in the Treasury Department here that there was no chance of France coming within the provisions of our minimum tariff. The imposition of the maximum tariff must be by order of the President through the State and Treasury Departments.

France more than any other country in Europe, has discriminated against American products. Germany gives to the United States her minimum rates on about 95 per cent. of our exportations into that country. France, however, has charged this country her maximum rates on all our exportations, with the exception of a few articles.

Purchase of Railways Ratified.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 19.—The stockholders of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company in annual meeting here today verified the purchase of three short railroads operating in the Virginia and West Virginia coal fields. These lines will add a total of nearly 200 miles of trackage to the purchasing road. The three lines are the Coal River Railway of West Virginia, the Southwestern Railway Company of West Virginia, and the Virginia Air Line Railway of Virginia. The following Directors for 1910 were elected: Decatur Axtell, James H. Dooley, Edwin Rawley, Henry E. Huntington, Frederick W. Scott, Theodore P. Shonts, (in place of John W. Castle, deceased;) George W. Stevens, Frank Trumbull, and Frank A. Vanderlip.

SATISFIED WITH TAFT.

Europe Likes His Way of Doing Things, Mr. Schiff Reports.

Jacob H. Schiff, the banker, returned yesterday on the North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm II. from his short visit to Europe. In an interview with a TIMES reporter while coming up the bay, Mr. Schiff said:

"I have been away from home just five weeks, two of which were spent on the water, and the remaining three spent in Germany on family matters, so I can say little concerning European conditions and affairs.

"In Germany general prosperity seems to have returned, and considerable activity prevails in commerce and industry. General colonial enterprises seem likewise to be looking up, and altogether much encouragement is felt all over the Fatherland.

"In England this hardly appears to be the case, the rather radical budget being still the bone of contention and source of much uncertainty. It can hardly be denied that English industry is suffering, and that the demand for labor is not on the increase. All over, except perhaps in France, there is a considerable advance in money rates. Speculation is rampant everywhere, but the legitimate investment demand for securities has fallen off to a large extent.

"Much confidence is being felt in the Taft Administration, and the quiet but still efficient manner in which it is dealing with important questions is admired and gives general satisfaction."

PANAMA CANAL BY 1913.

Gov. Blackburn Cuts Two Years Off the Engineers' Estimates.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Joseph C. S. Blackburn, Governor of the Canal Zone, has arrived in Washington from Panama. He is on fifty-six days' leave. Whether or not he intends to resign Gov. Blackburn would not say, out of courtesy to the President. It has repeatedly been stated that his resignation was in the President's hands and the fact that there are two bills before Congress—both with good chances of passage—abolishing the Post of Governor of the zone and substituting another form of government has given support to this rumor.

"The canal will certainly be completed by the latter part of 1913," said Gov. Blackburn. "They have 36,000 men employed on the job, and are taking out 4,000,000 yards of dirt every month. This is an increase of 200 per cent. over last year's record. The laborers are good, steady men, and their health is exceptionally good. The Engineer Corps says the canal will not be completed before 1915. I believe it will be finished two years earlier, because I have watched the work many months."

AMERICAN BANK AT HANKOW.

Branch Is Opened by the International Banking Corporation.

PEKING, Oct. 19.—The International Banking Corporation opened a branch bank at Hankow to-day.

The International Banking Corporation is an American concern and was the first American house to enter the banking field in Peking, where it opened an office last June. Its purpose is to develop the trade of this country in the Far East. The Hankow branch is the eighteenth that has been opened, others being located at Hong Kong, Canton, and Shanghai, China, and in Japan, British India, the Philippines, and South America. Its home office is in New York City.

AMERICAN STEAMER SEIZED BY REBELS

ATLANTIC PORTS CLOSED

Washington Government Recognizes Zelaya's Decree—Progress of His Army Checked by Heavy Rains.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Following Gen. Estrada's request yesterday that this country recognize him and his Provisional Government in Nicaragua, the State Department to-day learned that Estrada's followers had seized the steamship Yulu, belonging to the Emery Company.

The vessel in question had been practically sold by the Emerys to the existing Zelaya Government, but with the understanding that the company should continue to use the ship until eight months had expired. It is believed that the uncompleted sale was what induced the rebels to seize the American ship, under the impression that they were capturing Government property.

The State Department announced this afternoon that promises had already been made by the insurgents that the vessel would soon be returned. The Government here is not inclined to view the seizure seriously. It is inclined, to look sympathetically on the revolution because of a long and well-founded dislike of Zelaya, and would on that account hesitate to insist on a technical point that might hamper Estrada's operations. The department feels certain that the Emery Company will regain its ship at an early date, and will probably wink at the whole affair.

The United States Government to-day officially recognized the action of Nicaragua in closing her Atlantic Coast ports. The closing of the ports was proclaimed by Nicaragua several days ago. Acting Secretary McHarg of the Department of Commerce and Labor has telegraphed Collectors of Customs of the facts, and directed that, pending termination of the trouble, issuance of clearances to the Atlantic Coast ports of the Nicaragua Government shall be refused.

This is not a blockade, for under international law a blockade must be effective, and Nicaragua has not the means of making it effective. But it is the next thing to a blockade. The Atlantic Coast is in possession of the revolutionists, and any duties paid the revolutionary authorities would now have to be repaid to the Zelaya Government in the event the coast should be retaken and the shipments should be traced.

A denial of the charges contained in telegrams originating in Managua, asserting that the Government of Guatemala is promoting and aiding the present revolutionary movement in Nicaragua has been received by the Minister of Guatemala at Washington. The telegram, which is signed by the President of Guatemala, reads:

> You will make denial of these false assertions, stating that the Government of Guatemala is complying strictly with its international obligations.
>
> EMANUEL ESTRADA CABRERA.

BLUEFIELDS, Nicaragua, Oct. 19.—Gen. Estrada, the rebel leader, who has proclaimed himself Provisional President of Nicaragua, returned to this city to-day after having established outposts to the north of Rama and sent a detachment of 500 of his best men to meet the expected approach of the Government forces.

Estrada says that he can hold Rama against 10,000 besiegers, and it is believed here that if the interior is lost to President Zelaya he will never be able to regain the Atlantic Coast, now in the possession of the rebels. President Zelaya's army is reported to be moving toward the interior from the western coast, but to be impeded by heavy rains and the consequent bad going. The telegraph lines between Bluefields and Managua, the capital, have been down since they were cut on Oct. 13.

The rebel movement is a serious one despite the tenor of official dispatches emanating from Managua. Schooners arriving from the south to-day brought 10,000 rifles for the insurgents.

Confirmatory dispatches have been received here that Rivas, Corinto, Leon, and San Juan del Sur have been taken by the insurgents. Gen. Juan Reyes, former Governor of the coast provinces, who led two previous revolutions against Zelaya; Gen. Mena, and Gen. Fornos Diaz, accompanied by nearly one hundred exiles, have arrived here from Limon and Bocas del Torro. They got a great reception and probably will join Gen. Estrada at Rama immediately.

Dispatches are expected from Gen. Chamorro, who is now at Greytown. He has mined the San Juan River in several places.

Recruiting has been going on with great success, many thousands along the Atlantic Coast flocking to the aid of Gen. Estrada. Vessels left here to-day on the return trip to Limon for more exiles. Only a lack of arms prevents an advance.

Lopez & Martinez, a prominent firm of Bluefields, who have been enriched by concessions received from President Zelaya, have been seized by the revolutionists. Señor Lopez, who was formerly Governor of Bluefields, has been placed in jail, and will be held until he pays $20,000 to aid the revolution.

CZAR STARTS FOR ITALY.

Will Receive Pledges of Loyalty at Odessa—May Visit Naples.

YALTA, Russia, Oct. 19.—Emperor Nicholas sailed from here to-day on board the Russian imperial yacht Standart en route for Italy. The Standart was convoyed by two Russian cruisers, and is due to arrive at Odessa to-morrow morning.

The arrival of the Emperor at Odessa will be made the occasion of a general holiday. He will receive deputations representative of the municipality, the nobility, and the Jewish residents, who will present the traditional bread and salt and loyal addresses. Following these ceremonies the imperial party will proceed by train to Alexandrov and Posen. It is expected that Emperor Nicholas will be at Raccanigi on next Saturday.

NAPLES, Oct. 19.—The arrival here today of a Russian Naval Attaché tends to confirm the belief held here that Emperor Nicholas and King Victor Emmanuel, following their meeting at Racconigi and escorted by an Italian squadron, will visit the Gulf of Naples while en route for Messina, where the Russian sailors covered themselves with glory at the time of the great earthquake.

TURIN, Oct. 18.—The number of troops and police concentrated for the arrival of the Russian Emperor is unprecedented. Emperor Nicholas will be with King Victor Emmanuel and the Queen on the anniversary of their marriage, Oct. 24, which is considered a tactful arrangement.

It is reported that if the Emperor goes to Naples by sea and later to Messina a French squadron also will escort him.

GERMAN LINE GETS TRADE.

Driving Other Steamship Companies Out on South American Coast.

VALPARAISO, Oct. 19.—The competition of the Kosmos Steamship Line, which is subsidized by the German Government, is causing a shipping crisis on the west coast of South America.

The South American Steamship Company has asked the Government for a subsidy of $250,000. The Chilean Steamship Company is selling its steamers, and the minor companies engaged in similar traffic will probably also dispose of their vessels.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

PEKING, Oct. 19.—The Government announced to-day that the four treaty ports in Chientao would be opened Nov. 2.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The case of Edward William Bedfort, the Canadian who is charged on his own confession with the murder of Ethel Kinrade at Hamilton, Ontario, was called to-day in Bow Street Police Court, but the prisoner was again remanded for one week, when it was announced that certain papers concerning the case expected from Canada had not arrived. Bedfort was originally arraigned on Oct. 12, since which time the police have sought to verify the details of the murder as related by him.

LISBON, Oct. 19.—King Manuel's physician announced to-day that his Majesty, who is suffering from an intestinal trouble, accompanied with some fever, should recover within ten days unless unforseen complications develop.

LIMA, Peru, Oct. 19.—The Pan-American Committee met with officials of the Foreign Office yesterday and approved the programme prepared for the fourth Pan-American Conference at Buenos Ayres. Certain suggestions from the State Department of the United States were adopted.

WRIGHT MOTOR STOPS WITH TWO IN FLIGHT

Aviator Lands Safely and Spends Hours Searching for the Cause of the Trouble.

SIMPLY HAD NO GASOLINE

Soldier Forgot to Replenish the Supply—Government Pays $20,000 on the Army Aeroplane.

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 19.—While the Government aeroplane was flying twenty feet above the earth to-day, with Lieut. Frank P. Lahm operating the levers, the motor suddenly stopped. It was a new sensation for the embryo sky pilot, but his instructor, the cool-headed Wilbur Wright, grasped the levers without delay and brought the machine safely to earth.

The sudden quitting of the motor, which might have been followed by a serious accident, proved the source of much amusement when discovered. After the machine had been skillfully brought to earth by Mr. Wright, the most strenuous efforts of the Signal Corps and Mr. Wright himself could not get a single responsive "chug" from the motor. Mr. Wright at first pronounced it magneto trouble, and the magneto was carefully gone over. Then other parts of the motor were suggested as possible trouble makers, all with no result.

After several hours of investigation it was found that a private soldier whose duty it was to keep the gasoline tank filled with the fluid had failed to replenish the supply after yesterday's flights. When the gasoline was forthcoming the motor proved itself worthy of more trust than had been placed in it.

Altogether, five instruction flights were made to-day, two in the early morning and the other three after 4 o'clock. Lieuts. Lahm and Humphreys each accompanied Mr. Wright on one of the morning flights, while Lieut. Humphreys made two of the later flights and Lieut. Lahm the other.

During one of the afternoon flights, when Lieut. Humphreys was with the instructor, the aeroplane again raced with a railroad train. It seemed to be moving faster than the train. In the last flight of the day, on which Mr. Wright was accompanied by Lieut. Lahm, the machine remained aloft 19 minutes and 5 seconds, being the longest flight that has been made at College Park.

Lieut. Foulois to-day gave Mr. Wright the Government's check for $20,000 as a part payment for the machine which was purchased from the Wright brothers for the Signal Corps. Another $10,000, making the total contract price of $30,000, will be paid when the two army officers who have been receiving instructions are pronounced accomplished aviators.

BELGIAN EXPLORER HERE.

H. Arctowski Will Compare Climatic Changes with Europe's.

Among the passengers who arrived yesterday from Antwerp on the Red Star liner Zeeland was Henryk Arctowski, who was the scientific head of the Belgian antarctic expedition of 1897. Asked for his opinion on the north pole controversy, he replied that the whole question was a very large one, and he preferred not to discuss it at present. Mr. Arctowski intends to spend some months in this country, endeavoring by observations at the weather bureaus to determine the relationship between American climatic changes and those of the eastern part of Europe.

BATONYI DIVORCE GOES TO THE JURY

Horseman Testifies That He Tried to Make His Wife a Better Woman.

SAYS STURGIS BLOCKED HIM

Denies Testimony of Wife's Witnesses as to His Relations with Other Women—Sealed Verdict To-day.

The trial of the suit for divorce brought by Mrs. Frances Work Burke Roche Batonyi, daughter of Frank Work, against Aurel Batonyi, the horseman, ended before Supreme Court Justice O'Gorman yesterday. The case went to the jury soon after 3 o'clock, and two hours later the jury received instructions from the court to return a sealed verdict to-day. Immediately after the jury was charged Mr. Batonyi left the courtroom and did not return. His wife remained with her two sons and her attorneys until word came that she would not know the outcome of her action until to-day.

The first witness yesterday for Mrs. Batonyi's side of the suit was Annie Nelson, once maid for Margaret Allen, or Mrs. Lillian Lawrence, of 226 Central Park West, the co-respondent. Her testimony brought out nothing material.

Denies Telephoning Mrs. Lawrence.

Mr. Batonyi was then called to the witness chair. He responded to the questions put to him by Morris Cukor, his counsel, in a voice that could hardly be heard a dozen feet away. He denied that on Dec. 19, 1907, he had called up 1912 Riverside, which was Mrs. Lawrence's telephone number—in fact he denied ever having called up that number at any time; denied that he ever saw Margaret Allen or Mrs. Lawrence, or that he had ever been at 226 Central Park West. This testimony was in direct opposition to that given on Monday by Detectives Swinton and Haupt, as well as that of the elevator man Brembry, who testified that he had taken Mr. Batonyi up on the elevator to Mrs. Lawrence's apartment and later saw him at her door in his shirt sleeves.

When the matter of his acquaintance with Lucille Brabant or Brevans, known as "the fencing girl," was taken up, the witness denied that he had ever taken a taxicab ride with her, as testified to by Arcouet, a chauffeur, and the druggist, Spaeth, and flatly contradicted the testimony given on Monday by Nellie Shakespeare, who said that she had heard an engagement made by Mr. Batonyi and Miss Brabant over the telephone, of which the taxicab ride was said to have been the result.

Ex-Judge Olcott, counsel for Mrs. Batonyi, then took the witness in hand for cross-examination.

"What is your name?" was the first question put to him.

"Aurel Batonyi," was the respone.

"Well, didn't you ever have another name?" asked the lawyer. Mr. Batonyi glared at the questioner and grasped the rounds of the chair.

"Yes, I had two," he finally answered.

"Well—and what were they?" asked Mr. Olcott.

"I was born Kohn," replied Mr. Batonyi. "That was my family name originally, but it was changed by them to Marburg. Yes, they changed it just as my wife's family changed theirs from Worth to Work when they were sailors." This brought a laugh from those in the courtroom.

In answer to further questions Batonyi said he had come to this country as Aurel Batonyi. He admitted that he had previously been married and divorced.

He was asked if he had not sued his wife's father, Frank Work, for $500,000 for the alienation of Mrs. Batonyi's affections.

"Yes," said the witness. "I brought three suits—each for $500,000. One was against Work, one against Frank K. Sturgis, and the other against Peter Cooper Hewitt."

"Don't you realize," asked Mr. Olcott, "that your suits will fail if you are found guilty in this trial?"

"I don't care for the money," began the witness. "I intend to give it to charity—"

"Stop offering cheap charity," suggested Mr. Olcott, "and give me an answer."

"All I want is vindication," said Mr. Batonyi. "Frank K. Sturgis is at the bottom of all this trouble."

After some delay, during which Batonyi glanced repeatedly at his wife and her attorneys, Mr. Olcott produced an affidavit made by the defendant in connection with the alienation suits, and which he read in part. In this Batonyi declared that he did not know at the time he married his wife that her relations with Frank K. Sturgis and others were improper; that he had made an effort to make Mrs. Batonyi a better woman, and that he was succeeding until Mr. Sturgis again exercised his control over her. The affidavit went on to say that there never had been a happier couple than the Batonyis until, as the defendant averred, Sturgis interfered in their private affairs.

While the affidavit was being read the witnesses's face grew livid under its tan. Finally, as if unable to stand it any longer, he burst forth:

Denies Testimony of Wife's Witnesses.

"Every witness for the plaintiff has testified falsely. It will all come out some time—come out just as it did in the Morse divorce case. It may take years to do it, but it will come out!"

No notice of this outburst was taken by the court or by counsel.

Mr. Batonyi balked at answering several of Mr. Olcott's questions until he was quietly told by Justice O'Gorman that he must have more respect for counsel and answer questions "yes" or "no." The rest of his testimony was to the effect that he had not lived at the Hotel Empire after Dec. 9, 1907, but had been forced to seek seclusion in a boarding house in West Seventy-first Street because he was "continually being hounded by detectives."

Throughout the examination of her husband, Mrs. Batonyi's eyes hardly left him. Once or twice she smiled faintly at some remark of his—especially at that regarding the change of names.

Lawyer Frank Moss summed up and addressed the jury for Mr. Batonyi. He argued that the plaintiff's case was based only on circumstantial evidence, which in divorce must be examined most carefully, and asserted that there was a deep motive behind this action—that of litigation. This was understood to refer to the alienation suits brought by Mr. Batonyi.

"They are defending a large sum of money," said Mr. Moss, "and why shouldn't they do this by cutting the ground underneath?"

Mr. Olcott in his plea that Mrs. Batonyi receive a verdict declared that the evidence given was honest testimony and for an honest purpose. He closed by asking the jury "to put this man out of this splendid woman's life for ever."

MRS. COYNE WANTS DIVORCE.

Young Wife of Aged ex-Judge Off to Reno—Husband in London.

Mrs. Mary Coyne, who was married a little more than a year ago to ex-Judge Edward P. Coyne, lawyer and turfman, has gone to Reno, Nev., to establish a residence in order that she may sue for a divorce. She was Miss Mary Gatins, daughter of Joseph P. Gatins, who came to New York a few years ago from Georgia and made an instant success in Wall Street. Mrs. Coyne was 22 at the time of her marriage; her husband had passed his sixtieth birthday.

Mr. Coyne sailed ten days ago on the Adriatic for London. J. S. De Saulles of 225 Fifth Avenue, a real estate broker, who was present at the marriage, and is a trusted friend of Mr. Coyne's, said yesterday that the aged husband would not contest the suit. Mrs. Coyne will ask for a divorce on the ground of desertion. She will ask for no alimony. Mr. De Saulles said that "it was plain to those who saw Judge Coyne before he sailed that he was a stricken man."

Joseph P. Gatins said yesterday:

"It is true that my daughter has gone to Reno, accompanied by her brother Benjamin and some servants, to get a divorce. Personally I have nothing against my daughter's husband. He is a fine gentleman. My objection to the marriage was not based on his personality, but on the difference between his age and that of my daughter. The result merely proves, as it has proved so often before, that a union between so old a man and so young a woman can mean nothing but misery and trouble for both."

Mrs. Beach Wilson Charges Desertion.

Mrs. Emily Waterlow Wilson of 580 West 115th Street, daughter of the late James R. Waterlow, a real estate broker, was the plaintiff in a separation suit brought against Frank Beach Wilson, tried before Supreme Court Justice Dowling yesterday and decision reserved. The action was based upon desertion, and Mrs. Emily M. Crevling, sister-in-law of Mrs. Wilson, together with other witnesses, gave evidence to the effect that Wilson disappeared in August last, after disposing of his farm at Pelham. Mrs. Wilson said that for a time her husband sent her $70 a week, but finally the remittances ceased.

BUDGET INCREASE CERTAIN.

Belief That It Will Reach About $165,000,000 After Revision.

With estimates from the city departments asking for a total appropriation of $185,000,000, it is believed at the City Hall that when the Board of Estimate has completed its revision of the budget for the next year it will approximate $165,000,000, a nine-million-dollar increase over last year's total.

Mayor McClellan was asked yesterday whether there was any chance of the figures being cut below those of last year.

"They can't be," he replied, with a smile, "candidates to the contrary notwithstanding."

"There's a good deal for them to learn," hazarded one of his interviewers.

The Mayor fondled a copy of the City Charter and said:

"There is, indeed. In fact, there's a great deal for every one to learn."

One of the important increases asked for was the $487,250 which prominent physicians explained to the board on Monday is absolutely necessary if the proper measures are to be taken to fight tuberculosis. This was brought to the attention of the Mayor, and he remarked:

"I can't speak for the other members of the board, but under this administration, as stated by Dr. Koch last Summer and other physicians yesterday, more has been done to decrease the deaths from tuberculosis than in any other city in the world. We are not going to go backward in the fight, but the question is how much can we afford at present."

It was generally rumored that this year is not likely to be a good year for the increase of salaries. Of course, many of them are mandatory and must be granted, but it is believed that the Board of Estimate will look closely into all other requests for higher pay.

The Board of Education has asked for increases of pay which amount to $3,000,000, and it is understood that President McGowan and Borough President Ahearn are in favor of these, while the Mayor and Controller Metz are not entirely convinced of their necessity. Mayor McClellan did not answer yesterday when the matter was brought before him.

NEW RECTOR FOR ST. LUKE'S.

The Rev. E. H. Schlueter of Albany Accepts a Call to the Chapel.

The Rev. Dr. T. W. Manning, rector of Trinity Parish, paid a visit to St. Luke's Chapel last night to announce that the Rev. Edward Henry Schlueter of Albany had accepted a call by the Vestry of Trinity Church to become vicar of St. Luke's, and would take up the work soon.

As after much litigation and discussion the parochial work of old St. John's in Varick Street has now been transferred to St. Luke's, the latter chapel becomes one of the most important of the nine conducted by Trinity. Mr. Schlueter for the last four years has been a canon of the Albany Cathedral, under Bishop William C. Doane. He is a native of this city, 35 years old, and a graduate of the City College and the General Theological Seminary. Before his connection with All Saints' Cathedral at Albany he was rector of St. John's Church, at Roxbury, Mass., in succession to Bishop Codman.

Dr. Manning told St. Luke's congregation that the new vicar had not only shown power as a speaker, but had been especially efficient in practical church work. It was also said that nearly all of the communicants of old St. John's, which is now closed, had transferred their membership to St. Luke's, and that harmony prevailed.

MAYOR SEES ESSEX MARKET.

Finds Cells Unsanitary and a New Court Needed at Moderate Cost.

Mayor McClellan inspected Essex Market Court and Jail and the Ludlow Street Jail adjoining yesterday afternoon, in company with committees of the July, August, September, and October Grand Juries and Magistrates Barlow, House, Herbert, and Corrigan. He was asked to note the lack of air and light and other unsanitary conditions. It was pointed out that there is more light in the prison than in the courtroom.

In the Ludlow Street Jail, where civil prisoners are confined, Warden Regan informed the Mayor that there are twenty-three employes to care for an average of eight prisoners.

When the inspection was over a formal conference was held in the ante-room of the jail. Magistrate House stated that the Board of Magistrates, the four Grand Juries, and the Board of Health had united in asking for an appropriation of $300,000 for a new Court House and prison.

"That's more reasonable," said the Mayor. "We have been asked for $1,500,000, and that was preposterous."

Upon the Mayor's promise to recommend to the Board of Estimate any suggestion of prison reforms it was agreed that the commitees should meet on Monday to draw up recommendations.

METZ WANTS TO KNOW

Where the Money's Coming from for 32d Street Widening—Views the Street

Controller Metz said yesterday that he has already made an inspection of Thirty-second Street, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues with a view to its widening, made necessary by the coming opening of the new Pennsylvania Terminal. At the hearing last week the suggestion was made that any widening of the roadway might be avoided by the retraction of the stoop privileges on Thirty-first, Thirty-second, and Thirty-third Streets.

"I don't think much would be gained," said Mr. Metz, "by merely removing the stoops. There is no doubt that something will have to be done sooner or later by widening the roadway, but I don't know where the money's coming from.

"As for the objections made to the widening of Thirty-second Street on the ground that the station carriage entrances will be oposite to Thirty-first and Thirty-third Streets, carriages may drive down Thirty-second Street and swing around there. I suppose, too, that a strip could be cut off the grass plot in Greeley Square without any real loss. The traffic there is much congested."

NEW PANEL FOR ICE CASE.

Still One Juror Missing in Trial of the Concern as a Monopoly.

The trial of the American Ice Company as a monopoly in restraint of trade was continued yesterday before Justice Charles B. Wheeler, in an extra sesion of the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court. The day was spent in examining talesmen. At 4 o'clock there was still to be obtained one juror, and the panel of a hundred talesmen had been exhausted. The court was adjourned until 2 o'clock to-day, to give time for obtaining a new panel.

So far the jury is made up of elderly men. It is the plan of the prosecution to leave the opening to Deputy Attorney General Clark and the summing up to Mr. Osborne.

MEDALS AND HONORS FOR 91 LIFE SAVERS

Two Girls in the List, Both of Whom Rescued Drowning Boys at Great Risk.

ONE ONLY 16, OTHER LAME

Three Brothers Among the Medal Winners—Many Too Busy to Attend the Ceremonies.

Ninety-one awards for saving persons from drowning were made yesterday in the Aldermanic Chamber of the City Hall by the United States Life Saving Corps. To two girls and forty-four men either silver medals or silver bars were presented, in token that the rescues they made were at the peril of their own lives. Thirty-one men received bronze medals in recognition of risks hardly less hazardous, and the others received certificates of merit.

For the sixth year in succession Alderman Reginald Doull carried out the presentation and made a brief speech of thanks to those who had earned the awards. Ex-Congressman John R. Howe, President of the United States Life Saving Corps, also spoke briefly, and President McGowan was in the chair.

Of the two girls who had earned silver medals, Miss Hannah Seligsohn was not present. The official record of her act of bravery says:

> On July 26, 1908, she saved Michael B. Kolis of 1,774 Washington Street, the Bronx. The drowning boy nearly exhausted Miss Seligsohn by clinging to her, and the case is particularly meritorious when it is considered that she was lame.

Miss Mamie Kavanaugh, as she answered her name, astonished the audience by her youth. She seemed to be only 16, but the record showed that at real risk she had saved the life of a boy. The record says:

> On Aug. 3, 1908, in Jamaica Bay, off the Canarsie shore, she rescued Russell Fink, (this is a fictitious name given by the boy, who was afraid to have his family hear of it.) The water was about fifteen feet deep where the twelve-year-old boy fell from a raft and was carried off by the tide. Miss Kavanaugh swam with the boy to the float after considerable difficulty, there being no adult near enough to help.

Another youthful life saver was Herbert Elder, who is 13 years old, and is described officially as the protégé of the South Beach Division. He received a bronze medal for rescuing Gladys Conklin on Sept. 2, 1908, at South Beach.

To three brothers medals were awarded. Moe Levy on Sept. 1, 1908, rescued Albert Bandtleman of 998 First Avenue, off Fifty-second Street, in the East River. He dived from the Fifty-first Street dock and succeeded in finding Bandtleman and bringing him to the surface after he had sunk for the last time.

On Sept. 20 Irving Levy saved Peter Klug of 424 East Fifty-first Street, near Man-o'-War Reef, in the East River, off Forty-fourth Street. It was just after midnight and Levy had to fight the man to subdue him before he pulled him out. It was a dark night and the official record states that the rescuer took big chances of being upset from his boat and run down.

To those two brothers silver medals were handed and the family record was made complete by the award of a bronze medal to a third brother, Abraham Levy, for rescuing Joseph Graf from the East River at Fifty-second Street, on Sept. 12, 1908.

Most of those who were honored were lads from the east side, and many of the rescues were performed while they were swimming in the East River or at the near-by beaches. One or two business men were among them, and occasionally a man already gray.

In many cases those to whom medals were granted were not even able to get away from their work to attend at the City Hall and their rewards were either handed to representatives or will be sent to them later.

Examined for Rhodes Scholarships.

Candidates from this part of New York State took the first of the preliminary examinations for the Rhodes scholarships in Hamilton Hall, at Columbia University, yesterday. The examinations will be concluded to-day. The Rhodes scholarship examinations are not competitive, the successful candidates being chosen from among those who attain the required standing, principally on their past records and promise of future usefulness. Two men are selected from each State.

Diamond Smuggler Fined $200.

Collector Loeb announced yesterday that he had been advised by United States Attorney Vreeland that G. I. Schnull of Indianapolis, who arrived on the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, on Sept. 3, and was locked up for the night in Hoboken for smuggling a diamond brooch valued at $500, had pleaded guilty to the indictment. A fine of $200 was imposed. The brooch was found in his waistcoat pocket and the case in his hip pocket.

MRS. EDISON GETS LOST RING.

Lucky Day for Finder When He Returns It After Six Years.

Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, wife of the famous inventor, to-day recovered a diamond ring worth $1,100 which she gave up as lost six years ago. The young man who found it at that time and had kept it ever since, believing it to be without value, was rewarded with a good-sized check and the promise of a job, something he has been in want of lately.

Robert F. McCarthy of 52 Mount Vernon Avenue, Orange, was the lucky man. Six years ago, when he was still a student in St. John's School, he was chestnutting in Llewellyn Park, not far from the Edison mansion, when he found the ring among the leaves. He thought, because of the size of the stone it must be imitation. He showed it to friends, who thought the same way about it. He tried to sell it for anything any one was willing to give time and again, but none would buy. Several times he loaned it to friends who wanted to adorn themselves.

Only a few days ago McCarthy was told by an acquaintance that it was a real diamond. Then he decided to make a house to house canvass of the park. He began with the Edison house.

WILSON'S ARREST SET ASIDE.

Court Dismisses an Order Placing Him Under $10,000 Bail in Alienation Suit.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 19.—Justice Voorhees filed an opinion in the Supreme Court to-day setting aside the arrest of Theodore D. Wilson of New York and Asbury Park and dismissing the order placing him under $10,000 bail to answer a civil suit instituted by Malcolm Hufty, formerly of Washington, D. C.

Hufty charged Wilson with alienating his wife's affections and had him placed under bail to answer a declaration in a suit for $50,000 damages in the Supreme Court. Hufty also surrendered himself and was placed under bail to answer a criminal charge in the Monmouth County Court growing out of the same subject.

Justice Voorhees says he fails to see any special cause in Hufty's affidavits which would warrant the issue of the capias under which Wilson was arrested. The fact of Wilson's non-residence, the court said, had not been ascertained, and there had been no adjudication of the fact that Wilson would not be present at the time of rendering a judgment. Justice Voorhees said he failed to understand how the fact that Wilson has given bail to answer a criminal charge shows a special reason why he should be arrested in a civil action.

BRIDE'S FATHER PROPOSED.

He Also Had a Shotgun, Hanft Testified in Annulment Suit.

According to the story told by Albert Morgan Hanft of Union Course, L. I., who has begun an action before Justice Garretson in the Flushing Supreme Court for the annulment of his marriage to Miss Bessie Hubbard of Crewe, Dinwiddie County, Va., he did not have much of a hand in the courtship, the question being popped to him by the bride's father, shotgun in hand, while several stalwart brothers looked on approvingly and a minister stood by with ritual open ready for action.

The case was heard by Justice Garretson at a special term. In his testimony Hanft told the court that he was born in Union Course, but moved with his family to Crewe, Va., where he met the Hubbard family. In the night of April 30, 1908, he testified, he was invited to a gathering at the Hubbard home, and when he got there was met by Miss Hubbard's father, shotgun in hand. He was told, he testified, there was to be a wedding in the house that night. He was next informed that he had been selected as the bridegroom, and as he demurred he was informed that it was either get married or get buried, so he and Miss Hubbard stood up and were made one by a minister.

Justice Garretson reserved his decision.

HEAVY SEAS WASH LINER.

The Kaiser Wilhelm II. Arrives in Port Twelve Hours Late.

The North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm II. arrived yesterday from Bremen, twelve hours late, owing to severe storms which she encountered from the time of leaving Cherbourg last Wednesday until she arrived at Sandy Hook yesterday at 7:25 P. M. The worst day was on Saturday, the 16th, when the liner experienced a strong westerly gale, a very rough sea, and high westerly swells, which compelled Capt. Clippers to reduce her speed for thirteen hours. About 5 o'clock in the afternoon she shipped a heavy sea over the starboard bow, which swept clear over the bridge, smashing in the skylight of the Captain's cabin, and also the one leading into the reading room, to which the water flowed in.

Several of the passengers kept to their cabins the whole voyage across through seasickness. Altogether the Kaiser Wilhelm II. was under reduced speed for thirty-five hours during the voyage, which occupied 6 days 4 hours and 5 minutes.

Extra Session to Fight Water Plan.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 19.—Gov. Fort held a conference with Mayor Otto Wittpenn of Jersey City yesterday and received his protest against the proposed diversion of waters from this State to Staten Island. The Mayor wants a special session of the Legislature to stop the proposed diversion. The Governor said he would confer with the Attorney General.

ODELL TO FOUND SANITARIUM.

Files Articles of Incorporation for $75,000 Tuberculosis Institution.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 19.—The State Board of Charities to-day received from ex-Gov. B. B. Odell, Jr., a certificate of incorporation of the Newburg Tuberculosis Sanitarium, which he proposes to establish at an expense of $75,000. The certificate will be approved without a hearing.

The incorporators and managers are Linda C. Odell, Alice C. Reid, Anna B. Nicoll, Katharine S. V. Barton, Mary A. Gatter, John T. Howell, Joseph Stroock, Charles E. Townsend, W. They Believe in Lamberts' Time.

Every day thousands of people compare their watches with the clock in front of our store, and if there is a difference between clock and watch they know that the watch is wrong. If the watch persists in its misconduct its owner brings it into the store so that our experts may clean it, regulate it, and repair it if it needs repairing.

Nobody ever thinks of questioning the accuracy of the Lambert clock. It is a fine thing to have public confidence AND TO DESERVE IT.

The confidence in the clock on the sidewalk extends to all the gold and diamond jewelry, watches, clocks, opera glasses, etc., in the Lambert store. When we say that everything we sell is guaranteed to be the best of its class people believe us. Yet we do not charge for our reputation.

For high class jewelry you can't beat Lambert goods nor Lambert prices anywhere.

17 JEWEL GRADE $7

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 20TH, I shall offer several hundred of these watches with the understanding that if the same kind can be purchased elsewhere for less than $16.00 the money will be refunded. Mail orders will be filled from anybody except dealers. The plain truth about the Watch Trust is this: The Waltham and Elgin companies control practically the watch industry of this country, and for the purpose of making large profits they have established retail selling prices for their watches which no retail dealer dares to cut. For nearly thirty years I have opposed their methods, and shall continue to, as I believe that any dealer who buys his goods and pays for them has the right to sell them for any price he sees fit.

FREE On the above date I will present FREE to every purchaser a Peragile Patent Watch Protector. It prevents the watch from being stolen from the pocket. This, in a sense, is almost as valuable as the watch itself.

HILL KILLED GIRL, INSPECTOR ASSERTS

Police Official Declares Man Now Held Dismembered Body in Fall River Office.

SAYS THAT HE USED A DRUG

Evidence Found in Search of Supposed Scene of Crime May Clear Up Tiverton Mystery.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 19.—Police Inspector Medley, who is at work on the Tiverton murder case, made the following announcement just before noon to-day:

"We have discovered bloodstained furniture and other articles which establishes the fact, in our minds, beyond a reasonable doubt, that an operation upon Miss Amelia St. Jean of Woonsocket, R. I., was performed unsuccessfully in the office of Prof. Frank Hill on Bedford Street, a week ago last Friday afternoon, and that she died there and the body was subsequently dismembered in that shop.

"A vehicle was then procurred and the body was taken to the town of Tiverton, across the Rhode Island boundary, and there distributed along the highway known as the Bulgermarsh Road.

"Our evidence is absolutely positive that the St. Jean girl came to the office on Bedford Street, shortly after she had eaten her dinner Friday afternoon. The examination of the stomach of the girl found at Tiverton shows that the food was still in the process of digestion. The operation was evidently unsuccessful, a drug was used in hope of restoring life, and the girl passed into a faint. Not being a skilled physician, Hill, in my mind, believed that she was dead, and went about to dispose of the body. He cut her head off with an axe and proceeded to dismember the other parts of the body. Packing the torso in the box, found Sunday afternoon, and the remainder of the body in the telescope bag, he washed away all evidences of the dismemberment. Then he quietly went home to supper, and about 7 o'clock in the evening hired a horse and buggy from the Lynch stable.

"Mausoli Ludovic, the Greek peanut vender who occupied the front part of the building where Hill's office is located, tells me that he saw Hill come out of this back room a little after 7 o'clock on that Friday evening. He saw Hill carrying the box which is now at the Tiverton Police Station. It is my opinion that Hill drove out into the country. Finally, passing Bliss Four Corners, he started to distribute the dismembered parts of the girl's body along the lonely country roads.

"Probably arriving back in Fall River in time to put the horse up at 11 o'clock, he again went to his office, wrapped the head up in the St. Jean girl's skirt, and with the rest of her clothing put it into a basket. He must have taken the last car on the Bay Street line and spent the night in the dense thicket which borders the small by-path there, burying the head and attempting to dispose of the clothing.

"A car conductor and motorman are sure they saw him there early Saturday morning with his baskets. The St. Jean girl's corset was found there Saturday afternoon by the weavers.

"These pieces of evidence establish the facts without a doubt that the crime was committed as I have pointed out on Friday night."

The statement was made by the Inspector when he was asked to explain the presence of James M. Swift, District Attorney, who was called into the case by the police to-day, and who, in company with Inspector Medley, visited the herb shop, and later had a long conference with the police.

When pressed to tell what evidence was found in the herb shop to-day, the Inspector refused to talk further. It is known, however, that parts of the walls and floor were ripped open in the search for evidence.

The Inspector was in consultation with City Marshal Field and District Attorney Swift this afternoon. Afterward he said, with reference to his previous statement:

"When I say the evidence is absolute I mean that it appears to be important, but there are many points which we are up against yet."

A city official, who requested that his name be withheld, said this afternoon that he thought Inspector Medley was too sanguine.

"Although the police have much positive evidence that the crime was committed in this State," he said, "as far as I can see, there is no conclusive proof that the girl met her death in Hill's office."

Inspector Medley declined to indicate what "other articles" had been found, but said that they were not articles of clothing. He said that the evidence was found "behind a bloodstained door," and that the office furniture which had been removed to Police Headquarters also bore "conclusive" marks.

At Police Headquarters no more definite information could be gained than that given by Inspector Medley. It was admitted that important evidence had come to light. It was said also that no effort was being made to apprehend any person now at liberty.

It could not be learned from the police that any immediate action was contemplated against "Prof." Hill or Wilfred Thibeault, who were arrested last Friday and were ordered held for ten days in connection with the case.

The report from Prof. W. F. Whitney, the Harvard Medical School expert, to the police with reference to his examination and tests of the stomach of the girl was received to-day. The report, it is said, shows that the girl died shortly after having partaken of a meal, and that some drug had been administered, apparently to restore consciousness during a period of insensibility.

ACRITELLI SUES FOR HIS PAY.

Coroner Wants $600, Garnisheed Under Judgment, Returned to Him.

Coroner Peter P. Acritelli, who is a candidate for the same office on the Tammany ticket, obtained an order in the Supreme Court yesterday against the City Paymaster, ordering him to show cause why he should not refund some $600 retained out of the Coroner's salary at the rate of $50 a month.

The action grows out of a suit brought against Acritelli by Meyer Vessell, who, in 1908, obtained a judgment against the defendant for $3,144. An execution was issued and returned unsatisfied. In September, 1908, the Coroner's salary was garnisheed on this account at the rate of 10 per cent. of his salary of $500 a month, pending the outcome of his petition in bankruptcy, made last September. Having been declared a bankrupt Acritelli now declares that it releases the money held out of his salary.

About a week ago Acritelli was examined in supplementary proceedings before trial in the City Court on a judgment obtained against him by Giovanni Sanfretello, a shoemaker, on a demand note of $241. At that time he testified that he had no bank account, and gave an account of his September salary by saying that $200 of it went to Rocco Marasco, $50 to his stenographer, and $60 for two suits of clothes. He also said that he had no interest in his October, November, or December pay.

ROW OVER BUTTERICK MERGER

Van Wyck Interests Object to the Union with Everybody's Magazine.

The only dissent to the purchase of Everybody's Magazine by the Butterick Company at the meeting of stockholders yesterday, which increased the Butterick stock from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 for that purpose, came from some of C. W. Morse's old friends in the concern. Before his affairs went to smash Morse was a large stockholder in the company, and put some of his friends, including the Van Wyck family and the late C. T. Barney, into it. He has since lost all of his stock.

At yesterday's meeting ex-Justice Augustus Van Wyck, representing some 3,800 shares of the total of 120,000 outstanding, engaged in a lively argument with President G. W. Wilder as to the value of Everybody's Magazine, for which his company is paying $3,000,000 of its stock.

He did not see things President Wilder's way, and intimated that litigation might ensue. One of Mr. Van Wyck's objections was to the large valuation placed on the "good-will" of the magazine, which President Wilder admitted comprised the chief asset represented in the deal.

He pointed out that the magazine had paid 10 per cent. dividends for the last two or three years and had a circulation of about 500,000, which is growing. He did not divulge what the exact earnings were, but said that they had been considerably in excess of the 10 per cent. paid on the company's $1,000,000 of stock.

The unsuccessful attempt of the Ridgway Company, which publishes Everybody's, several years ago to publish a weekly in fourteen cities simultaneously was brought up in the argument on values, and it was stated that the losses involved, which, it is understood, amounted to about $450,000, have been completely wiped out. The last sale of Ridgway stock, Mr. Wilder said, had been made about a year and a half ago at par. Butterick stock is selling at around 34 and a 2 per cent. dividend is paid.

The Ridgway Company is capitalized at $1,000,000 and has a bond issue of $500,000. The Butterick Company now has $15,000,000 capital stock and $575,000 in bonds outstanding. The latter company publishes The Dellenator, The Designer, and The New Idea Woman's Magazine. The vote showed only 4,580 shares against the merger of which about 900 were the property of the Barney estate and the rest the holdings of the Van Wycks, including 1,600 in the name of Augustus Van Wyck, 2,021 in the name of ex-Mayor Robert Van Wyck, and 257 in the name of Miss Van Wyck.

SHOOTS AT ARMY RUNAWAYS.

Blood Found in Boat in Which Two Escape from Governor's Island.

Preferring to run the risk of death from a sentry's bullet rather than serve out their sentences in Castle Williams O. J. Dipple and Thomas Conway, ex-privates in the United States Army, who were serving sentences for desertion, escaped yesterday morning from Governors Island in a small boat and disappeared in South Brooklyn.

Dipple was under a five years' sentence and was waiting to be transferred to Fort Leavenworth. Conway had less than a year to serve.

At 4 o'clock yesterday morning the two men were coaling the ferryboat General Hancock when they took advantage of the dense fog to jump into a small dory which lay alongside the pier.

The sentry, who was guarding the prisoners with a loaded rifle, saw them pulling away and called out: "Halt, or I shall fire!" Dipple and Conway pulled at the oars all the harder, and the soldier fired several shots without effect. The sound of the rifle shots aroused the garrison, and Capt. Halstead Dorey, who has charge of the military prison, soon arrived. The sentry explained that he did not see the prisoners slip into the boat owing to the fog.

An alarm was sent out from Police Headquarters to all points on the East and North Rivers and down the bay to Staten Island.

At 9 o'clock yesterday morning the Captain of the tugboat Moran found the empty dory at Bush's Stores, South Brooklyn. There were splashes of blood on the woodwork of the boat, which showed that one or more of the sentry's bullets had found a mark.

Search was made all over South Brooklyn, as it was not considered likely that Dipple and Conway could go far in their uniform of brown cloth marked with red paint.

GASOLINE IN THE SEWERS.

Alderman Who Stirs Board About It Sidetracked as "Playing Politics."

Alderman Béyer brought to the attention of the board yesterday the recent gas explosions in the upper west side. In a resolution he offered it was declared that "at no time of the day or night is it safe to go upon the streets or to be in adjacent buildings fronting thereon." He summed up the state of affairs by declaring that "a veritable volcano is daily laid beneath the homes and places of business in that neighborhood."

The explosions, according to the Alderman, are due entirely to gasoline vapor collecting in the sewers, which is ignited through drainage ducts leading from the underground conduits of the street railways and the Edison Light Company. He asked the board to demand an enforcement of the ordinance prohibiting the discharge into the sewers of any inflammable liquid gas or vapor, and called for an inspection of the conduits of the street railway and electric light companies.

The Aldeman considered this so important that he asked immediate consideration by the board. Alderman Dowling, in the absence of "Little Tim" Sullivan, majority leader, declared this request "merely part of the game of politics." On his objection the resolution was referred to the Law Committee.

Pay Voted for Taxicab Inspectors.

With considerable difficulty, and only after the calling of the roll several times and the reading to the board of the Mayor's message on the subject, Alderman Dowling induced the Aldermen yesterday to adopt the resolution voting salaries for the Chief Inspector and six taxicab Inspectors authorized by an ordinance adopted some weeks ago. Provision was also made for the appointment of four Inspectors of dancing academies at $1,200 a year.

CONFESSES TO GRAFT IN CUSTOMS DEAL

Inspector Brehm Tells How He Helped Cheat the Government by Weighing Cheese Short.

TELLS AGAINST IMPORTERS

Got Half of the Duty Saved to A. Musica & Son—Implicates Other Federal Employes.

George Brehm, a Customs Inspector still in the service, told yesterday, under promise of immunity, at the trial of Antonio and Philip Musica, in the Criminal Branch of the United States Circuit Court, how the Government was cheated on importations of cheese by the defendants, who compose the firm of A. Musica & Son. Brehm not only admitted that he had taken money to put in false weights on the weighing records of the cheese, but that he had paid money to Charles Wardell and John O'Brien, former United States' weighers, who, he said, knew where he got the money.

Brehm's story made it appear that he received approximately half the duty that he saved the defendants, who are charged with a conspiracy to defraud the United States. Answering questions by Assistant United States Attorney Buckner, who, with Deputy Attorney General Wickham Smith, is handling the Government's end of the matter, Brehm said that before getting his present place as Customs Inspector he was an assistant weigher, and on Oct. 17, 1906, weighed a consignment of cheese for the Musica firm which came in at Pier 64 North River on the steamship City of Naples.

The rule is that weighers must record the weights of articles handled in a day book provided for the purpose. Brehm, however, said that he put down the weights on a pad that he carired in his pocket, and the same evening went to the office of Musica & Son, where he met the younger Musica, named Philip. Brehm said that young Musica showed him the weights entered on the Consular invoice, which had been falsified on the other side of the water and on which the duty had been paid through the ordinary employment of a Custom House broker.

Then the two weights were compared, Brehm said, and the declared weight deducted from the actual weight. The difference represented the amount of cheese that A. Musica & Son got in free, and Brehm said that he got a sum equivalent to half the duty "saved" on this difference. In the particular case in question Brehm's graft was somewhere between $150 and $170. Brehm said that he believed that the elder Musica, Antonio, took the money that he received from a safe in the office of the firm. Later in the evening or the next day he entered in his day book data that corresponded with the false statement of weights contained in the Consular invoice.

Brehm admitted that immunity had been promised to him, and on cross-examination by Mr. Rushmore he stated that George F. Lamb of the Customs Service, who is acting with the representatives of the Department of Justice in the matter, was the man who made him the offer.

"You are still in the Government employ?" asked Charles N. Rushmore, who appears for the defense with Lewis L. Delafield.

"Yes," said the witness.

"In what capacity?" Mr. Rushmore wnated to know.

"As Inspector of Customs," said Brehm.

"So that, while you admit having committed a crime, you are still in the service of the Government?" Mr. Rushmore commented. The witness assented.

Brehm admitted that he had recorded false weights for other people than the Musicas, and had been paid for so doing. That sort of thing, he said, had been going on for a year or a year and a half before the occurrence involved in the present trial. Then Mr. Rushmore undertook to find out what other weighers stood in with Brehm. Judge Holt, who presided, let the evidence go in over the protest of Mr. Buckner, who said it would embarrass the Government in its pursuit of other persons implicated.

Brehm said that an assistant weigher named Philip Sawyer was one of those with whom he "divvied," and that Wardell and O'Brien were also in the game. He admitted also giving tips to foremen on the dock to make them "nice and agreeable."

The remainder of the testimony yesterday had to do with tracing the particular consignments of cheese that figure in the case. The Government has two more former assistant weighers whom it proposes to call as witnesses, to tell of other payments by the Musicas to obtain false entries of weights in the importation of cheese.

The case will go on again to-day.

HELD FOR SMUGGLING.

Dr. de Bellis of the Italian Line Accused of Bringing in Gloves.

Dr. Salvino de Bellis, the ship's surgeon on the steamer Regina d'Italia of the Lloyd Swoboda Line, was arrested down the bay yesterday and brought before United States Commissioner Shields charged with being the ringleader in a plot to smuggle gloves into this country. The arrest winds up a search the Government has been making since the latter part of last year. Dr. de Bellis was held by the Commissioner in $2,500 bail for examination.

It was discovered last Fall that Mme. de Louise of 97 Schenck Avenue, Brooklyn, and Senefonte Manzi of West Eighth Street, New York, had obtained smuggled gloves. Treasury agents traced the smuggling to Dr. de Bellis, whom they considered a leader. Mme. de Louise and Manzi were both arrested and Manzi jumped his bail. The doctor was indicted, but he disappeared from the steamer on which he was employed, and it was only about a week ago that the customs authorities learned that he was on the Regina d'Italia.

STERN ALLEGES CONSPIRACY.

Beneficiary of Mrs. Vogel's Will Says Family Seeks to Defame Her.

Nathan D. Stern, the fiancé of Mrs. Minnie H. Vogel, owner of the Hudsonia Apartments, Seventy-ninth Street and Riverside Drive, who died last August after an operation for appendicitis, leaving a will and codicil, the latter drawn by Stern, by which she left him $50,000 and cut off her family with $20,000, gave out a statement through his counsel last night concerning the arrest of James A. Roach of 149 West Ninety-sixth Street and Julius J. Michael of 12 East 107th Street on Monday, on the allegation of having induced Mrs. Anna Brown, a former servant of Mrs. Vogel, to sign a false affidavit in connection with the action brought by Mrs. Vogel's father, David R. Heine, to have the will and codicil upset.

By the decision of Surrogate Thomas last week the will and codicil were admitted to probate, Heine having failed to prove that undue influence was used by Stern or that Mrs. Vogel was incapable of making the will and codicil. The case goes now to the Supreme Court.

The detectives who arrested Roach and Michael allege that the defendants came to Mrs. Brown's house on Monday and read her an affidavit which set forth that while she was in Mrs. Vogel's employ she had seen nothing improper in the relations of her mistress and Stern. According to one of the detectives, one of them offered Mrs. Brown $200 to sign the paper and $15 for expenses. Mrs. Brown signed the affidavit on instructions from the District Attorney, and then the detectives arrested Michael and Roach.

In his statement Stern said that the arrest of Michael and Roach was part of a conspiracy to defame the memory of Mrs. Vogel, to whom he was to have been married.

Roach and Michael were held in $3,500 bail each by Magistrate Breen in the Tombs Court yesterday. The amount in cash was deposited with the City Chamberlin and they were released. There was no examination yesterday, and the two men will be arraigned on Thursday.

MUSIC NOTES.

Milloecker's opera, "Der Arme Jonathan," which has been given in English in this country as "Poor Jonathan," will be produced at the Irving Place Theatre to-morrow night.

Mrs. Rosita Mapleson, the wife of Col. Henry Mapleson, the impresario, is in New York at the Hotel Seville. Col. Mapleson is expected later in the Winter.

Mme. Louise Homer will give a song recital on the afternoon of Nov. 1 at the Lyceum Theatre for the benefit of the MacDowell fund. The entire programme will be composed of compositions by Sydney Homer, the singer's husband, who will play the accompaniments.

"Les Contes d'Hoffmann" was repeated at the Manhattan Opera House last evening. The audience was of good size.

FINDS WIDNER SHOT HIMSELF.

Magistrate Tighe Discharges Tucker and Women Witnesses of Shooting.

An investigation into the death of Carl Widner, an employe of the Hotel Margaret, in Brooklyn, who was found shot in the left breast in front of 54 Willow Street early yesterday morning, convinced Magistrate Tighe in the Adams Street Court later in the day that it was a case of suicide. He discharged Richard Tucker of 30 Hicks Street, who is in the cordage business in Manhattan, and Agnes Kelly and Elizabeth Bannon, the three prisoners who were arrested as material witnesses and were locked up all night.

The police believe that Widner killed himself in a fit of jealousy.

CALIFORNIANS PAY HOMAGE TO PORTOLA

Celebrations Throughout the World Also Commemorate Rebuilding of San Francisco.

ALL DRINK TAFT'S TOAST

Dinner at the Waldorf Here—Warships in San Francisco Harbor Salute Landing of Portola.

Californians—300 or so in number—gathered in the Waldorf-Astoria last night at a jubilee dinner celebrating the reconstruction of San Francisco. It was an echo of the Portola festival which began yesterday in the new San Francisco, the city which has risen from the ruins left by the earthquake and fire of three years ago.

Throughout the world where Californians have congregated in force dinners just like that at the Waldorf were held last night, for California's sons and daughters are very proud of their native State and its metropolis.

At most of the hotels and restaurants in this city there appeared on the menus a toast to San Francisco by President Taft. This toast was as follows:

"Since Portola looked through the Golden Gate on the descending sun, San Francisco has twice become the imperial city of the Pacific. First, by the energy of a pioneer race and steady growth into the Western metropolis; second, after complete destruction by the greedy flames and in the face of insurmountable obstacles by a regeneration so rapid and complete as to be the wonder of the world. May her future growth be as remarkable as her past, and may her civic righteousness and the individual happiness of her citizens keep pace with it."

They drank that toast last night at the Waldorf and they sounded the praises of their native State and its greatest city until little else was left to say of them. They sounded them so loud and long that Patrick F. McGowan, President of the Board of Aldermen, who was an invited guest, wanted to know why those sons and daughters of California ever left and became content to dwell in a city like New York.

John A. McNaught, one of California's sons, acted as toastmaster. He said that the rebuilding of San Francisco was the greatest achievement in the annals of industrial enterprise.

"Thirty seconds of earthquake followed by three days of fire and that which men called the city of to-morrow was all at once a city of yesterday," said Mr. McNaught. "The swiftness of the recuperation was as wonderful as the suddenness of the disaster. While the world was yet waiting for news of the extent of the destruction, telegrams came announcing that plans were already prepared for rebuilding the city at once.

"With something of an afterglow of the ardor and enthusiasm of those crowded days, we meet this afternoon to rejoice in the accomplished work. We hail a San Francisco rebuilt, augmented, and adorned. It is with a just pride that as San Franciscans and as Californians we exult in this splendid achievement of our city and State. Yet we would miss the full significance of the portents of the time if we did not remember that, while the charm and the beauty of San Francisco are essentially Californian, her greatness and her energies are broadly American."

Several telegrams from civic and commercial bodies in San Francisco were read by the toastmaster, who then introduced Paul Morton. He said in part:

Paul Morton's Speech.

"We are all to be congratulated on having a man in the White House who is so well equipped by environment, education, and experience to fill that great position. In view of the fact that we are now generally regarded as a world power, where could we find in this country a man for Chief Executive who has had more experience in foreign affairs than has Mr. Taft?

"His experience in the Philippines has especially qualified him to deal with the Far East, and in my opinion that is to be the panorama of the great events to come in the next twenty-five years.

"President Taft is a man of high integrity, a fine sense of justice, and the longer he is President the better we will like him.

"It is not necessary for me to say here this evening that I am a great optimist on California. That State has only one rival in all the world, and that rival is not an American Commonwealth. Italy is the only real rival California has. In population Italy to California is at present another case of a ratio of about 16 to 1. In area California has the advantage. In climate there is but little difference with an advantage in favor of California.

"In time California is sure to surpass Italy in production. It will produce better fruits of all kinds and grow better harvests. It has better transportation facilities, and, best of all, it has a better market for its products. It has a constituency to supply which can afford to pay good prices for choice produce. But the one thing in the production of which California will excel Italy is that a more intelligent and more prosperous race will be reared in California who will enjoy much greater happiness."

Mr. McGowan, who responded to the toast "New York," was inclined to twit the Californians.

"You so love California that you give us imported wines to drink here to-night," he said.

The Californians began to look scared at that, but they were soon reassured, for Mr. McGowan went on to say:

"There is nothing small or mean about the true San Franciscans. They believe as we do, that the man is good who makes good, and if he doesn't he had better move on somewhere else."

This is what they ate:

WELCOME A NEW PORTOLA.

San Francisco Pageant Shows Landing of Discoverer of the Bay.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 19.—Rejoicing over her rehabilitation after almost complete destruction by earthquake and fire, San Francisco made merry to-day. Guests had been summoned from all parts of the world to participate in the festivities of a carnival week. Ostensibly to commemorate the discovery of San Francisco Bay by Don Gaspar de Portola, the celebration in reality is more in honor of those who have rebuilt a greater city on the ruins of the old.

The warships of five nations joined with those of the United States in welcoming Portola on his rearrival to-day, and he was greeted on shore by many thousands of citizens of all lands. For five days the carnival spirit will prevail, and by day and night the town will be given up to pleasure.

Although the day opened under leaden skies and with a light rainfall, the clouds broke soon, and the sun shone brightly on the decorated city. Having boarded the revenue cutter Golden Gate and gone outside the bay at dawn, Don Gaspar de Portola, impersonated by Nicholas Coverrubias, a descendant of the Spanish settlers of the State, with his guard of honor, entered the Golden Gate soon after 10 o'clock to the booming of guns from the forts and ships of war.

The naval contingent consisted of the United States cruisers St. Louis and Albany, the gunboat Yorktown, the Naval Militia training ship Alert, the revenue cutter McCulloch, and the torpedo boat destroyers Whipple, Truxton, Hull, Perry, Goldborough, Preble, and Lawrence.

Immediately south of the Fair Way, occupied by the American fleet, lay the British fleet, composed of the armored cruiser Bedford and the sloops of war Algerine and Shearwater. Next to the British war craft were anchored the Japanese cruiser Idzuma, the Italian cruiser Calabria, the Netherlands cruiser Noord-Brabant, and the German cruiser Arcona.

The parade in honor of Don Gaspar contained the United States regulars, the American bluejackets, leading the sailors and marines of Great Britain, Holland, Japan, Germany, and Italy. Don Gaspar's personal escort consisted of the Portola dragoons, a mounted company of sixty men in glittering armor. At historic Marshall Square the procession passed in review before the army and navy officers of six nations. The parade ended at Union Square, where the Golden key to the city was presented to Don Gaspar.

The toast proposed by President Taft to the rebuilt city was drunk. Don Gaspar was then presented to Queen Virgilia, who will reign during the festival.

GOOD WISHES FROM ITALY.

Roman Newspaper Presents Its Compliments to "American Phoenix."

ROME, Oct. 19.—The Giornale d'Italia, commenting on the Portola celebration at San Francisco, sends greetings "to the American Phoenix on the Pacific, rising again handsomer and richer from the ruins."

The newspaper expresses the hope that "when another phoenix rises in Italy on the ruins of the Straits of Messina, there will be with us on that day the ships of the powerful American federation which has been a friend of Italy in the days of sorrow as well as in the days of joy."

Day-Time Toast of Californians.

Members of the National California Club in New York celebrated Portola Day with a session yesterday afternoon at the Waldorf-Astoria, where, with all the rest of the Californians of the country, they drank in California punch President Taft's toast in honor of San Francisco and the man who discovered the Golden Gate. Mrs. Thomas J. Vivian, President of the club, presided. Mrs. Vivian's husband was admitted to the sacred precincts to tell a little about the Portola history, and Mrs. Theodore Roberts read the toast. This the club had printed in gold on white cards, one for each member and guest, tied with red and gold, the Spanish colors. Several California women told what a fine State California was, and every one received a nice little golden chrysanthemum, the California color.

$12,000 BAIL FOR GARNETT.

Prosecutor Feared the Mining Stock Seer Might Disappear Again.

William J. Garnett, yogi and seer of Brooklyn, who was arrested by Lieut. McConville on Monday night, was duly held by Justice Crain, in General Sessions yesterday, for trial. Garnett is the man who sent the women coming to him for spiritual treatment to the offices of Henry T. Rodman & Co., where they were led to invest in some highly unprofitable mining securities.

At the time of the arrest of Rodman, a year ago, Garnett left town. He has since been masquerading under various names and in various towns, until he made the fatal error of returning to New York for the Hudson-Fulton Celebration.

The seer is held in six indictments of grand larceny, two in the first and four in the second degree. Assistant District Attorney Kindleberger suggested that unless the bail were fixed at a high sum Garnett could not be found when wanted, and Justice Crain named $12,000, adding, however, that it might be reduced when Garnett's lawyer, Charles J. Campbell, makes his appearance.

GIRL NOT RANSOMED, THE LOPEZES SAY

BUT POLICE ARE INSISTENT

They Are Certain the Child's Father Told Them of Receiving a Demand for $10,000.

Italian women and Italian children, her playmates, thronged the little flat at 305 East Thirty-ninth Street yesterday, where four-year-old Jennie Lopez, who vanished so strangely—kidnapped, everybody says—on Sept. 7, and unaccountably returned to her home on Monday night, lives with her father, mother, and six brothers and sisters.

None asked a question of ransom or identity of kidnappers. Of that they would not speak a word; nor would the father or mother, except to deny that they knew any cause for the kidnapping or that they had ever been approached for the $10,000 ransom which the police say Lopez told them had been demanded in Black Hand letters.

The Italian detective force has not a clue. Little Jennie was alone at the time of the disappearance, sliding down the stairs outside the flat, the door of which was open. It was dark on the stairs, and when the mother no longer heard a sound of her there she called her, but Jennie was gone. That was at 8:35 A. M., five minutes after she had seen her.

Two Irishwomen in West Thirty-seventh Street, near St. Gabriel's Church, off Second Avenue, saw a little girl, at 11:30 on Monday night, with a big piece of cloth wrapped around her head, so as to hide her mouth, crying on a doorstep. They took her to St. Gabriel's parish house. Father Rossi thought she might be the Lopez child, so they took her to the West Thirty-fifth Street Station. A little later there came to the station Mrs. Josie Lopez, sister of the girl's mother. She was looking for her son, who had gone to the theatre, and the police showed her the little girl, who was sitting stiff and solemn on a chair. Seeing her aunt, she began to cry.

Mrs. Lopez carried her home, picking up on the way a crowd of Italians who knew the story of her kidnapping. They flocked into the Lopez flat, all telling the news together. Out came Lopez from his bed, and also the six children from their beds, but little Jennie was fast asleep in her aunt's arms and would not be aroused.

Her father said yesterday that she told of a man taking her by the arm as she sat on the stairs. "Come on, little girl," said he. He led her "over there," she said, pointing west, and put her on a car. But she could tell nothing more of her adventure.

Lopez declares he never received the letters with skull and bones that the police tell of; that no man came to his stand on Monday to talk of her return and money for it, and that he has no enemies nor any money. He denied all knowledge of any kidnappers.

So the police, who had been working on the basis of a ransom demanded, are at a loss. No help can they get from Lopez or his neighbors.

YORKTOWN CELEBRATES

The 128th Anniversary of the Surrender of Lord Cornwallis.

YORKTOWN, Va., Oct. 19.—On the historic ground where Lord Cornwallis surrendered 128 years ago to-day patriotic Americans celebrated to-day the anniversary of that surrender which put an end to the Revolutionary War. The exercises were held under the auspices of the descendants of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, the Yorktown Historical Society of the United States, and the citizens of York County.

The inaccessibility of the place made the attendance comparatively small. Situated on the York River more than ten miles from any railroad, Yorktown is practically without direct connection with the outside world, save for an occasional steamer from points down the river. To-day every automobile within a radius of thirty miles was pressed into service to bring the patriots to the celebration, and excursion steamers from Norfolk, Newport News, and Old Point Comfort took care of the overflow.

Four companies of Coast Artillery from Fort Monroe and a detachment from the Atlantic torpedo flotilla participated in the celebration. The exercises began with the marking of fifteen historic spots by a special committee from the Yorktown Historical Society. The places marked included the Old Nelson House, the Custom House, which was the first in the United States; the old Grace Episcopal Church, the third of that denomination to be erected in the country; the grave of Nelson, the office of Thomas Nelson, the progenitor of the Nelson family in Virginia; the Yorktown Inn, the British fortifications, and the redoubts captured by the American and French forces on the night of Oct. 14, 1781.

The principal event of the morning was a parade of the school children of York and surrounding counties. They marched to historic spots. Flowers were strewn on the graves of the soldiers who fell at Yorktown and on that of Thomas Nelson, Jr.

FIVE POINTS MISSION SAVED.

Landmark Turned Into a School Which Old and Young Attend.

The Five Points Mission, at Mulberry Bend, one of the landmarks of New York, is not to be sold, as had been practically determined at one time. Charles Loring Brace, Secretary of the Children's Aid Society, which now has part control of the property, said yesterday that the decision to reserve the buildings for philanthropic work was due to the almost phenomenal success of the industrial school recently established there.

Under the arrangement with the Five Points Mission the Children's Aid Society takes care of the mission children on the society's farm in Westchester County in exchange for the use of the mission buildings for school purposes. Mr. Brace said that the pupils range in age all the way from three years to fifty-five. In many cases heads of large families are sitting side by side with their children, all learning how to read and write.

Among the older pupils are a number of Italians, all more than fifty years old, learning to write Italian that they may correspond with relatives in the old country. There are 700 pupils in all classes.

A dental clinic has been established in connection with the school, thirty-five dentists having volunteered their services.

Driver Killed in Car Crash.

Frederick Bermer of 702 Belmont Avenue was killed and Louis Schutte of 428 Elton Street will probably die following a collision yesterday morning between a wagon, on which the two men were riding, and a Church Avenue car at Church Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street, Brooklyn. The motorman of the car, John Cook of Sand Bay, Canarsie, was arrested for homicide and held in $2,000 bail.

MRS. PANKHURST DUE TO-DAY.

Suffragists Going in Force to the Pier to Welcome the English Leader.

Delegates of New York woman's suffrage organizations will be on hand to meet the English founder and leader of the suffragette movement, Mrs. Pankhurst, when she arrives to-day on the Oceanic. The New York suffragettes will not be represented, but they will have a box and their "Votes for Women" flag in evidence at the big mass meeting at which Mrs. Pankhurst will speak on the 25th at Carnegie Hall.

The Equality League for Self-Supporting Women, under whose auspices Mrs. Pankhurst comes to America, will take to the pier to meet the English leader the English suffragette flag of purple, green, and white, with the words "Votes for Women" upon it. Miss Forbes Robertson, the actress, will go personally to meet Mrs. Pankhurst with the banner of the English actress suffragettes.

A wireless message was sent to Mrs. Pankhurst by Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch, President of the League of Self-Supporting Women, yesterday, saying:

"Welcome to the first political leader among women in the history of the world."

Mrs. Pankhurst, after her reception here, will leave for Boston, where she will have a big meeting in Tremont Temple on Friday night, and another in Worcester, Mass., on Saturday. She will return to New York for a reception on Sunday afternoon by the State and National Woman's Suffrage Associations at their headquarters, 505 Fifth Avenue.

The mass meeting at Carnegie Hall on Monday, the 25th, will be free, with the exception of the boxes, which have been purchased by prominent people. Among those having boxes are E. H. Gary, Mrs. Henry Phipps, Miss Clara Spence, Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Mrs. Robert Abbe, Mrs. Howard Mansfield, Mrs. John E. Milholland, Mrs. Pierce-Bailey, Mrs. John Calvin Day, Mrs. William M. Ivins, Mrs. Francis Cabot, Mrs. J. G. Phelps Stokes, and Mrs. Wendell Bush.

The women physicians of New York will occupy five boxes, and forty of them will be on the stage. There will be sixty college girl ushers.

Political Conversion by Button.

New Yorkers are to be converted to woman suffrage by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont by means of cards and buttons. There are four kinds of cards and two sizes of buttons, and all will be distributed to the men attending political meetings. The small buttons are the size of a nickel and the others nearly as large as a half dollar. The buttons are white, with a dark blue edge, four dark blue stars, representing the woman suffrage States, and in the centre the words "Votes for women" in red. The cards are blue, each with four stars, and ask woman suffrage questions. Mrs. Belmont has ordered 10,000 cards and nearly 20,000 buttons.

The Violyn Plate in the KRANICH & BACH Piano

Any musical authority will tell you that the violin represents the most perfect disposition of strings employed to produce musical tones.

The Kranich & Bach Standard Uprights are the only pianos in the world built with a full metal plate with inclined pin block permitting a method analogous to the violin principle of stringing.

In the violin the strings have a straight, free stretch from bridge to pegs, hence are tuned with the least excess of tension. The greatest tone vibration is produced without unnecessary strain.

The Kranich & Bach "VIOLYN" plate insures the minimum pull upon the strings—this results in a longer vibration, which means a purer, more sonorous and greater sustained tone. It means ease in tuning, reduced strain upon all the strings, and the merit of "Staying-in-tune" twice as long as without this marvellous improvement.

¶ Write for pamphlet fully describing this wonderful "VIOLYN" plate and the pamphlet describing the "ISOTONIC" pedal used in our GRANDS. They will be sent you with our new catalogue.

Favorable installment terms. Old pianos in exchange.

WHAT DO THE VOTERS THINK ABOUT IT?

It has been said that it must have been difficult for two Roman augurs to meet each other without smiling. Possibly Mr. HEARST and Mr. GAYNOR could not meet without loud and mutual guffaws. Just now nothing is too bad for either to say of the other. Two weeks ago Judge GAYNOR said, "I value Mr. HEARST's support more highly than I can express. He knows me and does not doubt me." Have these two weeks wrought such a moral deterioration upon Mr. HEARST that, whereas the Tammany candidate welcomed his support and prized his confidence then, he now finds him to be the weak and unworthy instrument of wicked men? On the other hand, immediately after the nomination of Judge GAYNOR, Mr. HEARST prepared to support him in the campaign and gave evidence of his purpose to aid in making him Mayor. Now Mr. HEARST says that "Judge GAYNOR would rather be elected than be honest." Can it be possible that Mr. MURPHY's candidate, so pure and honorable ten days ago, has now become so base?

But why should the intelligent and sensible voters of the city trouble themselves about Mr. HEARST and Mr. GAYNOR? They are belaboring each other mightily, and the crowd, no doubt, finds it vastly diverting. They exhibit large capacity for vituperation. What assurance does that give that either has the capacity for a proper administration of the office of Mayor? Does their dreadful raking over of each other's records impress those who hear or read their speeches with the conviction that either of them could meet the urgent need of this city for competent and businesslike management of its affairs? Do law-abiding men really want to put the power to appoint a Police Commissioner into the hands of Judge GAYNOR, who is railing at the police and abusing them with a ferocity hardly explainable on any other theory than that of a desire that the town should be kept "wide open"? If through the adoption of the debt limit amendment it becomes possible for the city to spend tens of millions for subways, do the taxpayers think it would be to their advantage to choose as Mayor, and the Mayor has three votes in the Board of Estimate, Mr. HEARST, with his well-known views about municipal ownership and operation?

Let Mr. HEARST and Mr. GAYNOR go on tearing each other to pieces. That is no concern of the voters, or not a very serious concern. But it is to the vital interest of the voters that the next Mayor should be a man of business capacity and experience, sober-minded, sane, a man competent to undertake and achieve that work of thorough reorganization in the city departments that is of prime necessity. Mr. BANNARD, the Fusion candidate, said in his speech Monday evening:

> Your business in the next two weeks is to pick out a man for Mayor for four years to reorganize the departments of the City Government; to get on the job from top to bottom and find out which man is earning his pay and which man is asleep at the switch or riding for nothing; to find out what they buy and what they pay for it and why; to introduce good methods, good manners, and good business morals, and this is just by way of organization. When your Mayor gets a staff and working force that is honest and efficient he has just begun.

That kind of talk might not evoke the shouts that greet the violent attacks of HEARST upon GAYNOR and of GAYNOR upon HEARST. It might not interest a Hearst audience or a Gaynor audience. But of what material are these campaign audiences made up? It is evident that Judge GAYNOR has a pretty low opinion of the intelligence of his audiences. He blunders in his statements. He grossly perverts facts. He falls into grotesque errors in respect to matters of common public knowledge, and he indulges in tirades of abuse that ought to disgust those who hear him. Mr. HEARST is not much better. He has a great deal to say about Mr. GAYNOR. He indulges in amusing quips and turns of speech, but his audiences do not learn from him very much about what the next Mayor ought to do, must do, to establish order and system in the City Government and protect the credit of New York.

Mr. BANNARD speaks as one addressing intelligent human beings. It is evident that he proceeds upon the assumption that his audiences are made up of reasoning men. Who is right, Mr. HEARST and Mr. GAYNOR in their judgment of the intellectual capacity of their hearers, or Mr. BANNARD, who addresses his fellow-citizens as the head of a great business concern would talk to the owners of the property?

It is for the voters themselves to decide who is right. If they elect Mr. GAYNOR or Mr. HEARST we shall know that they accept the estimate which those gentlemen put upon them, upon their mental capacity, upon their ability to think and reason. If they elect Mr. BANNARD, they will by that act give evidence not only that they prefer to be considered intelligent, but that Mr. BANNARD is right in thinking them so. No Mayoralty campaign ever afforded a better test of the capacity of the people of this city to manage their own affairs.

CESARE LOMBROSO.

His book, "After Death—What?" is but just published when Prof. CESARE LOMBROSO, the psychiatrist, dies. Though he lived the champion of many theories about criminals, lunatics, and men of genius that had not altogether withstood the attacks of critics, and died the defender and believer in a spiritism which he knew to be tinctured with fraud, much of this man's work was substantial and enduring. He was the first to point out convincingly the relationship between more or less obvious physical defects in individuals and crime. True, he pushed this theory too far, creating criminal "types" where there were no types. But largely because of his labors vicious, truant, and backward children in the public schools are now transformed into bright and conscientious pupils by simple operations for adenoids and treatment for spinal curvature. His usefulness among the desperately poor people of Italy was owing to his recognition of certain easily removable conditions of environment or diet that bred diseases of which crime and immorality were merely symptoms.

This is true especially of his demonstration that a form of lunacy common in Italian asylums was a symptom or result of malnutrition, produced by the consumption of maize that had been badly grown and cured. The fungi, penicilli, and aspergilli that form on the fermented maize secrete toxins, which LOMBROSO extracted and administered to healthy men and animals. The resulting symptoms of pellagra were unmistakable. Now that the disease has invaded our own Southern States we shall hear more of LOMBROSO, who by ascertaining its cause has prepared the way for its cure. This demonstration of at least one cause of insanity from vitiated blood and tissues has impressed alienists with the belief that other violent and chronic neuroses may originate in like manner.

LOMBROSO's belief in the Neapolitan medium, EUSAPIA PALADINO, was quite characteristic, though advancing age may have predisposed him to it. He was what conservative authorities call a "yellow scientist." Perhaps he wrote too much and talked too much before he could reach safe conclusions. The process of "thinking aloud" has its advantages. For one thing, a person much given to it never lacks criticism which he may employ to advantage in the testing of his theories.

MR. TAFT'S TACTICS.

The advices submitted to the attention of our readers from our correspondent in the Middle West throw a good deal of light on the political situation which Mr. TAFT has created for himself and for his party.

We say "political situation," because Mr. TAFT has very frankly so treated it in his speeches in that section. There are those who think that he would have shown more sensitiveness to the proprieties of his office had he confined himself to the discussion of subjects in which all parties are alike interested and had not so specifically addressed himself solely to Republicans. And certainly there is incongruity in the appearance of the President of the United States upon a public platform explaining and justifying to his own party a line of conduct relating only to party obligations and party benefits. When Mr. TAFT told his friends that he had acted in harmony with Mr. CANNON and Mr. ALDRICH, without too close regard to the requirements of the National platform, because that seemed to him the best way to secure legislation, he could hardly be said to be talking from the point of view of National interests. His apologia had the merit of frankness, but it is not surprising that it appeared to some of his fellow-citizens to lack in taste and dignity.

The object of Mr. TAFT plainly was to establish an understanding with that portion of his party represented by the Senators and Members of the House who had felt compelled to vote against the Tariff bill to the last. His plan was not limited to an explanation of what had been done or left undone in the past, but included his propositions for the immediate future. These related especially to the modifications of the Inter-State Commerce Commission and the law governing its functions, to the anti-trust law and amendments of it, and to the general subject of corporation control. It constitutes a pretty extensive programme, and has been criticised in the East as being rather too comprehensive. It now appears that in the Middle West it has not accomplished its author's purpose of regaining the confidence lost to him by his alliance with Mr. ALDRICH and Mr. CANNON. According to the reports we have thus far received, the party there is distinctly dominated by the so-called insurgents, and these are not reconciled by the hopes and promises held out to them by Mr. TAFT.

The fact is that what has discouraged the insurgents and rendered them cautious and even suspicious of Mr. TAFT is not the intention he may entertain as to carrying out the policy to which his party is pledged, but the manner in which that intention has been treated by him. They are particularly apprehensive as to the agents and associates engaged by and with him in this task, and the influence these have exerted on the outcome. They think, not to put too fine a point on it, that he has been misled in part, in part confused, and in part betrayed by Messrs. CANNON and ALDRICH and the powerful combination of pecuniary interests which they represent. They say that if these men could balk the President as completely as they did in the matter of the tariff, as to which his intentions were apparently clear and sincere and his pledges definite and complete, he will be unable to accomplish anything against them in other matters which he now brings forward. Practically the men of the Middle West will not again give their confidence to Mr. TAFT until he has shown that he can resist these men and the forces behind them.

It will be noted that this is a matter entirely between Mr. TAFT and a section of his own party. There is no professed intention among the insurgents to leave the party, and no desire to do so. There is a profound desire and a firm intention to sway the party in the direction of their own views and principles. The contest, if there is to be one—and it is not easy to see how it can be avoided—will be for the control of the party organization. Its first field will be the Congressional elections of next year. Its final field may be the National Convention of 1912. As matters now stand Mr. TAFT's tactics, adopted with the hope to prevent such a contest and to gather all the differing elements of the party into a harmonious camp of which he should be the accepted head, cannot be said to have been successful.

JUDGE GAYNOR AS A FINANCIER.

Judge GAYNOR rehearsed the speech which he delivered last Saturday as long ago as last June, when he made his bid for the nomination which he has at last received. But between June and October he learned nothing. He retains after months of deliberation the impression that the city built the Subway for Interborough operation, and lent it out for seventy-five years for nothing, the lessee taking whatever he could make out of it. It is hard to say whether Judge GAYNOR is more blameworthy for spreading this impression honestly or dishonestly. If he really thinks so he does not understand the matter. If he knows better, he is campaigning on false pretenses. "The city put every dollar into it," said the Judge. And, again, "Although we put every dollar into it, we did not own it when it was built"; "hereafter when the city has built a subway there will be no seventy-five years' lease on it, with a rental of how much do you think? One per cent. on the money invested by the city."

This is grotesque. The city never invested a dollar in the Subway. The city lent its credit. The city's bonds were sold, and the money invested was the money of the buyers of the bonds. The city cannot invest anything unless and until the lessee shall default upon his contract, and the default is as remote as anything financial well can be. If the default should occur, the worst which could happen to the city would be that it would get the Subway for the outstanding bonds. The worst thing which could happen to the city would be also the best thing, for the acquisition of the Subway upon payment of the bonds would be a better bargain than the best which it was possible to make at the time it was made.

It must not be forgotten that the Interborough became the builder of the Subway only by overbidding in the market. The Subway was as much a leap in the dark as the elevated roads were. The boldest bidder got the contract. Mr. GAYNOR says he made ten or twelve millions on the construction. If he did he earned it, for the estimates were made by the city engineers, and the builder took a long chance in assuming the risk. Judge GAYNOR proceeds to represent the 1 per cent. for seventy-five years as a rental. It is in fact the amortization of the bonds, the city's guarantee for advancing money to the enterprise. The operator engaged that during that period he would make the road earn enough to pay him his profit, and the bonds, too, interest and principal. When the city gets the Subway it comes to it free and clear. The road will have been paid for by savings from the fares. Nothing now or hereafter will have been paid by the taxpayers.

Judge GAYNOR thinks that the lease period is too long, as though the city's bonds were all that have to be paid. As a matter of fact the company provided $26,000,000 worth of electrical equipment from its own resources, besides building a tunnel to Brooklyn for less than cost, and giving a longer ride than the original agreement called for. It was a stroke of commercial genius, such as Judge GAYNOR's administration never will know. The city will really and truly build more subways with city money, the Judge says. It is safe to say that on the construction, according to experience with the bridges, the city will lose double the profit the subways contractors made. After completion the Judge, if then Mayor, will make a "lean lease" of ten, fifteen, or twenty-five years, and will repeat the operation. It is as simple as possible, on paper. The "lean lease" will be on the manner of the Chelsea pier lease, we suppose, which does not earn interest. The city will take nothing but profits, of course. Why does not the city make some profits on the bridges?

WHO OWNS THE AIR?

The owner of land absolutely owns the air above it, says the Roman law, cited by Mr. LYTTLETON FOX before the Aero Club of America on Monday evening. Will the invasion of the air by aeroplanes be repelled by suits for trespass?

We think not. The first successful human flight made the air a highway—a possibility not contemplated in the Roman law. Besides, there can be no effective possession of the upper air by a land owner. Where possession neither is nor has been, there should be no ownership. At any rate, this is assumed in Germany and Switzerland, which have passed statutes establishing rules of the aerial road.

THE NEW GAME LAWS.

We doubt whether it is generally known, or realized, that every State in the Union is being stocked with game as never before. "Hunter-naturalists" like Mr. ROOSEVELT know it, and, in his first installment in Scribner's relating his African adventures, he remarks:

> The wise people of Maine, in our own country, have discovered that intelligent game preservation, carried out in good faith, and in a spirit of common sense as far removed from mushy sentimentality as from brutality, results in adding one more to the State's natural resources of value; and in consequence there are more moose and deer in Maine to-day than there were forty years ago; there is a better chance for every man in Maine, rich or poor, provided that he is not a game butcher, to enjoy his share of good hunting, and the number of sportsmen and tourists attracted to the State adds very appreciably to the means of livelihood of the citizen.

"Provided that he is not a game butcher." The Boston Transcript has just printed a review of the game laws as amended this year throughout the United States and Canada, chiefly with the purpose of excluding the game butchers. With the exceptions of Arkansas and Georgia all the States now require licenses of non-resident hunters, while three-fourths of them license residents, and about one-half license aliens. The license legislation enacted in some form for the first time includes twenty-two States.

The States appropriated this year the largest funds recorded for the extension of their forest, fish, and game departments and for the development of game preserves. Massachusetts, for example, made game refuges of all State parks; New York appropriated liberally for the purchase and stocking of a State game farm like that in Illinois; Minnesota made refuges of all its State parks and National forests, and Wyoming, Idaho, and California modified their laws in this respect. Everywhere restrictions were placed on the export of game from the State. The limit of the bag was materially reduced. Governors were authorized to suspend the hunting season in time of drought to prevent the starting and spread of forest fires.

By such beneficent legislation the wild game, the fish, and the forests and streams which they inhabit are being preserved and their value increased. By and by the wilderness which civilization protects will be more teeming with life than the primeval wildernesses.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Denmark's Course Explained. A dispatch from Copenhagen brings the news, at once surprising, disappointing, and mysterious, that the Danish Royal Geographical Society has advised the University of Copenhagen not to renounce its right or claim to make the first examination of Dr. COOK's records. Contrary action to this was confidently expected, for the conditions which existed when Dr. COOK made his promise ceased to exist the moment Commander PEARY asserted his priority in attaining the pole, and the obligation which the accused explorer has since found so convenient as an excuse for delay became, one might fairly suppose, a source of embarrassment to the Danes.

From the disinterested judges they were before, the controversy turned the Danes into judges confronted with the necessity to render a decision which, if adverse to the claimant, would not only condemn him to deepest obloquy, but would seriously humiliate the Danish scientists and Danish royalty. On the other hand, if favorable, there would theoretically be room for the suspicion that a desire to prevent that humiliation influenced the arbiters. Saying that, of course, is not saying that the suspicion would be even probably true, and no sensible person really thinks that for any such reason the Danish experts would pronounce a judgment which they knew to be false.

It takes some careful thinking, however, to discover another and more plausible and more kindly explanation why the Danes do not voluntarily release Dr. COOK from his promise. After such thinking it occurs to us that the present action may be based on a growing anxiety as to the validity of Dr. COOK's claims, and an appreciation of the fact that while Denmark, having rashly accepted his unsupported announcement, would be humiliated if forced to declare him an impostor, it would suffer less in pride and reputation if its own scientists pronounced the fatal word than if it were said by those of another country. In other words, it would be better for them to convict themselves of overhaste in the expression of a generous enthusiasm than to have it done for them.

This theory of the situation may or may not be true, but for the present we much prefer it to any other that has been put forward. It is, however, one that could be openly avowed, and only such an avowal, frankly and promptly made, would reconcile the world to Denmark's allowing herself even to seem to stand in the way of settling a controversy that will work the more injury to all concerned the longer it lasts.

Virginia's Schools for Negroes. A paper read before the twelfth annual Conference for Education in the South contained the statement, since widely circulated, that in the State of Virginia school taxes to the amount of $507,305 were collected from the negroes in 1907, and that on negro schools only $489,288 was expended. A like ratio was said to exist in eleven Southern States, or, in other words, they were charged with not spending for the education of the negroes even as much as the negroes contributed to the State Treasuries for that specific purpose.

These figures were referred to the Commissioner of Education at Washington, and by him in turn to J. D. EGGLESTON, Commissioner of Public Instruction in Virginia, for a report on their accuracy so far as concerned his own State. After what he says has been a careful investigation of the facts, Mr. EGGLESTON declares that in Virginia, at least, there is no basis for the charge. He elaborately tabulates the various sources from which the school fund is aggregated, and he reaches the conclusion that, while the State spends annually on negro schools over $500,000, the total amount of taxes collected for all purposes from the negroes is only $345,276. Instead of contributing to the total school fund a share proportioned to the number of colored pupils taught, which would be about 40 per cent. of the whole, they provide less than $87,000.

Not only, according to Mr. EGGLESTON's computations, do they not pay for their own schools, but they contribute nothing toward the other sums spent for their race, including those devoted to criminal courts, maintenance of State schools for the normal training of teachers and for the deaf and blind, charges for asylums, jails, almshouses, and funds for the indigent poor.

And yet, he says, the showing, all things considered, is not a bad one for the negroes, since it reveals the remarkable achievements of those among them, a small minority, who are thrifty and accumulating property. The State, he thinks, is doing its duty toward the colored population, and he especially resents the charge that it is educating white children with money collected as school taxes from black parents. Apparently Mr. EGGLESTON's refutation of this accusation is complete. He does not enter into the question whether Virginia is doing all it should for the education of all its children, irrespective of color.

DEATH OF FERRER.

It Was Inflicted Because He Taught Anarchy in His Schools.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The attempt to make it appear that Ferrer was done to death because he had sought to introduce into Spain the blessings of education for the masses and not because he had plotted against the State, exposes those responsible for it to the suspicion of being in sympathy with what his schools actually taught, or of being persons of dangerous tendencies. The education his schools imparted was precisely of the kind that bars an immigrant from landing upon these shores. It consisted fundamentally of hatred of Church and State and all institutions of which these are respectively the religious and political expression. I quote from an article in a local newspaper of this date, in which the writer thereof singularly (or significantly) enough speaks of Ferrer as a martyr to the cause of modern education:

> Some of Ferrer's teachings as quoted from one of his books are as savage attacks upon the existing order as ever were penned by Kropotkin or Reclus. Take this from one of his text books: "Society to-day is divided into the privileged and the disinherited. That capital should appropriate the fruit of the workman's labor is an injustice supported by the law. * * * To maintain order is to maintain injustice against the workingman."

Yet these apologists declare that Ferrer was merely a "philosophical Anarchist," and that this particular kind of Anarchist is not to be confounded with the active revolutionist. If this is true, then the view held by many persons that the two differ merely as to function and not as to principles is correct and sound. The one supplies the philosophy, the other the bombs.

Equally futile must be the attempt to lay Ferrer's execution at the door of the prevailing religion of Spain. His schools inveighed not only against that faith, but against all religions. This is readily seen in the text books, from one of which the following is taken:

> All religions are based upon ignorance and imposture, and aim at exploitation and oppression. The Gospels relate the life of the so-called Jesus Christ, and it is truly a misfortune that such ideas exist for the deceiving of the people.

It was for its opposition to such doctrine that the Church to which the Spanish so generally belong has had its consecrated edifices pillaged and destroyed. And as a demonstration of the international character of the special hostility borne against that faith by the forces of social revolution the great cathedral at Pisa, to which thousands of art-loving tourists are attracted each year, has been made the scene of shameful vandalism. It is plain that had any other religion been the prevailing one in Spain, and have stood for law and order with equal fortitude, it also would have suffered in like proportion.

Just what evidence is demanded from the Spanish Government to prove complicity upon the part of Ferrer in the Barcelona uprising it is hard to understand. Is it thought that the Government must show that he personally took part in the rioting in the streets? That was not his place. It was enough for him that he should have implanted in the minds of the rabble the desire for revolt, and that the leaders thereof should have graduated from his schools. If it is true that the court that tried the Anarchist convicted him upon the "merits of the case," so to speak, and not upon the evidence before it, its course was simply along lines followed by the court that convicted Mrs. Surratt, and which is to be explained by the psychology of a loyal people whose chosen ruler had been foully murdered, and whose Government was then fighting for its very life.

But whether or not the execution of Ferrer is to be explained upon these grounds is a question upon which judgment must be suspended until further information is forthcoming.

If further demonstration of the nature of the education imparted by the schools of the dead Anarchist were needed it is richly supplied by the mobs that at this very moment threaten the life of more than one State in Europe. Even in London, where Anarchists have always found asylum, the "international solidarity of the proletariat" finds expression in such inveighing against State, Church, and capital as to have won for a Socialist member of Parliament, Victor Grayson, the distinction of having delivered the most violent harangue yet heard in that country of practically unlimited free speech.

Whether such demonstrations will be made here in this country remains to be seen. Judging from the speeches made yesterday by those splendid exponents of the "modern schools," Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman, we cannot safely count upon it that these scenes of destruction will not be repeated here. A word of warning. Let those citizens who stand for orderly progress and who are not revolutionists see to it that a misplaced, uninformed sympathy does not lead them to participate in the indignation meeting now being planned by Socialists and Anarchists.

We are a sympathetic people. This is impressively seen in the welcome we give to the revolutionists of other lands, who requite our kindness by preaching here the same doctrines they had preached in those other countries. Only the other day one of our local newspapers in commenting upon Ferrer's death compared him to Wendell Phillips, Adams, and Washington! It is upon just such mistaken sentiment that Socialists and Anarchists depend for material with which to make their planned manifestations appear as representative of all elements in the community.

Let those good citizens who have received invitations to meetings of indignation arranged by these elements reflect how grievous must be the responsibility that shall attach to all such who participate in these demonstrations.

KINDBERG WILL CASE ENDS.

Surrogate Closes It and Orders Lawyers to Submit Briefs.

Surrogate Thomas brought to a close yesterday the hearing of the contest by the Presbyterian Hospital and Charles A. Kindberg of the two wills of Edward O. Kindberg of 219 East Seventeenth Street. The hospital opposes the probating of the last will, by which the residuary estate is left to Augustus Reymert, a lawyer of Flushing, L. I., and $5,000 each to Reymert's three daughters.

The first will, the validity of which is contested by Kindberg's brother, left the bulk of the estate, which is said to be worth $90,000, to the Presbyterian Hospital and cut off his brother with only $100.

Katherine McKee, in whose house Kindberg boarded, continued her testimony yesterday, and said it was only after the funeral that she learned of the existence of the last will. At one time she testified: "Mr. Kindberg told me that if anything happened to him—that if he died—I should send to the Presbyterian Hospital. 'They are to have all my money,' he said. He also told me to send for Mr. Reymert, who he said was his lawyer."

When the Surrogate asked the witness if Kindberg had not said executor instead of lawyer she denied it, and repeated that he had used the word lawyer.

When Reymert, who drew the last will, which was in his favor, was put on the stand he testified that he had never told William L. Soule that he had got Kindberg to make a will in his favor.

The Surrogate allowed the opposing counsel ten days in which to submit briefs and reserved decision.

VALENTINE RICHES TO CHARITY

Greater Part of $2,000,000 Estate Goes to Hospitals and a Home for the Aged.

By the will of Mitchel Valentine, a retired business man who died on Sept. 5, at Westchester, N. Y., the Peabody Home for Aged and Indigent Women of 2,064 Boston Avenue, the Bronx, receives $100,000 to be known as "The Alexander Valentine Memorial Fund." The income only is to be used.

Mr. Valentine's will was filed yesterday. Judge Martin Keogh of New Rochelle is made sole executor. The estate is said to be valued at $2,000,000. Among the other charitable bequests St. Peter's Episcopal Church of Westchester receives $10,000. The income from this is to be used to keep Mr. Valentine's burial plot in the churchyard in good order and to assist the worthy sick and poor of the parish.

The Hahnemann Hospital receives one-half of the residue of the estate as a separate fund to be known as "The Stephen Valentine Memorial Fund," and the Presbyterian Hospital receives the remaining one-half of the residue to be held as "The Isaac E. Valentine Memorial Fund."

A $1,000 mortgage, held by Mr. Valentine against the Methodist Episcopal Church of Westchester, is canceled.

Mr. Valentine leaves to nieces, grandchildren, and other relatives sums ranging from $1,000 to $10,000 each.

Mr. Valentine's will directs that if any beneficiary takes action to prevent or delay probating he revokes the clause in which the name is mentioned.

MRS. BULL RENEWS CONTEST.

Submits Copy of Melville Bull's Will Making Her Son Sole Heir.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 19.—Mrs. William T. Bull, widow of the New York surgeon, has renewed her contest over the estate of her husband's brother, the late Melville Bull. Mrs. Bull made a contest in August, when a will of Melville Bull, made in 1902, was probated. This will divided the estate among the relatives, and under it William T. Bull, 2d, Mrs. Bull's son, would receive his father's share of the estate.

At that time Mrs. Bull contended that a later will had been made, leaving the entire estate to William T. Bull, 2d. The estate is worth $100,000. A copy of the new will was filed in court to-day.

The petition represents that the original will has been either lost accidentally or unintentionally destroyed by the testator when, by reason of sickness and mental weakness, he was unable to understand the nature or effect of such an act.

Although the Probate Court had already admitted to record one will of Melville Bull, it referred the petition to Nov. 15 and ordered notice thereof.

GOOD GOVERNMENT PRAISE.

From a Republican Alderman to Commissioner Edwards, D. S. C.

Alderman Downing of Brooklyn introduced to the Aldermen yesterday resolutions congratulating Street Commissioner Edwards and the men of his department on their work in the Hudson-Fulton Celebration. The Alderman is a Republican, but he remarked:

"There's no politics in good government. I believe in giving honor where honor is due."

The resolutions were passed unanimously.

Slippery Roads in Central Park.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The attention of the Park Commissioner should be called to the extremely dangerous condition of the roads in Central Park. The same have become very hard, and, through oiling, very slippery and a positive menace to the life of both horse and driver. At this time of the year, especially in the mornings, when the dew is heavy, no driver would consider endangering the life or limb of a good animal on the dangerous roads.

New York City drivers have few places outside of the Park for use, as the asphalted streets are no improvement on the Park, and as a consequence many lovers of the horse have given up driving.

If the Commissioner would sand the sides of the roads very persistently and maintain the same for the use of horsemen, keeping autos nearer to the centre of the road, I am sure that the problem would be solved and horsemen would resume the use of the roads, which have been practically abandoned except by automobiles.

Texas Cooking.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

H. E. C., who has read the English Consul's comment on "Texas Cooks" with "a sort of grim satisfaction," would probably be more competent to pass intelligent opinions on the subject under discussion if he would stay at first-class hotels. As he travels, his employers probably think he does, by his expense accounts.

Any one who recommends the study of a cook book is either an unsuspecting newly-wed or a gastronomic freak. Charity is supposed to begin at home, and if H. E. C. would consider this important fact he might find that cooking is not so much geographical as it is financial.

J. P. T.

New York, Oct 14, 1909.

A Solution.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I would like to suggest that a solution of the whole problem would be that we have equal suffrage and that no one under 50 should be allowed to vote.

AUNTY.

BROOKLYN.

O Brooklyn! Fair Brooklyn!
Your countless shining spires
Point upward to the midnight stars,
And catch the morning's fires.
Your parks are green and pleasant,
Your streets are broad and bright,
The lights of all your homes create
A glory in the night.

O Brooklyn! Fair Brooklyn!
Your girdle is the sea,
Long Island's rich and fertile farms
You proudly hold in fee.
I long to build a mansion
Upon your highest ridge,
But I live in little old New York,
And cannot cross the bridge.

TAFT TAKES IT EASY ON BROTHER'S RANCH

Plays 18 Holes of Golf—Happy Because He Doesn't Have to Make Speeches.

TO SEE ROUND-UP TO-DAY

Two Wild Cats, Two Boars, and a 'Possum Caught in a Church Are Presented to the President.

GREGORY, Texas, Oct. 19.—President Taft began his three days of doing as he pleased on his brother's ranch to-day by playing eighteen holes of golf this morning over a muddy course, and by "just loafing" through the long afternoon and evening. Mr. Taft was as happy as a boy out of school. The idea of eating a dinner without having to make a speech and of going all day without having to bow and shake hands appealed to him strongly. He declared he wished that his vacation could last a week and three days instead of the latter period.

While the President was golfing and resting, the members of his party enjoyed themselves in various ways. Secretary of War Dickinson and Capt. Archibald Butt were up before the sun and out on an all-day duck-shooting expedition at the fresh-water tanks on the ranch, ten miles away from the "farmhouse," at La Quinta, a veritable palace set on the shores of Corpus Christi Bay, looking out over the Gulf of Mexico. They returned late this afternoon with a full bag and denied the President's jesting insinuations that the birds had been presented to them.

Others of the party took long horseback rides and a swim in the bay. Beginning to-morrow, the President will probably go in bathing each remaining morning of his stay, as both weather and water are warm.

Ranch hands to-day killed two wildcats, two wild boars, and a raccoon, which they presented to President Taft to-night.

To-morrow morning the President will play golf and in the afternoon he will have a ten-mile run to the Rincon section of the ranch to see a small round-up of cattle and sheep and some exhibitions of cow punching. He will use a big and comfortable saddle made especially for him.

To-night a 'possum which was caught in a church at Aransas Pass by Tom Martin was given to the President.

The President's play days will end Friday morning, when he will be taken by boat to Corpus Christi to be the guest of that city during the day and to address the convention of the Inland Waterways Association.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 19.—Announcement was made to-day of the completed programme for the entertainment of President Taft at this place Nov. 4 and 5. The President will reach Savannah at 7:30 o'clock on the evening of Nov. 4. He will be a guest at a banquet at 9 o'clock. On Nov. 5 he will board the revenue cutter Yamacraw and make a trip of inspection along the river front, disembarking to enter an automobile for a fast trip around the Grand Prize race course to a luncheon at Thunderbolt. Later the President will go to his train and depart for Charleston.

Among the speakers at the Taft banquet will be President Taft, Gov. Joseph M. Brown, Secretary Dickinson, and Admiral Charles S. Sperry.

Herman Ridder Points to Trouble Caused by Print-Paper Schedule.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Herman Ridder of New York, President of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, has written a letter to President Taft calling attention to a blunder on the print paper schedule. Mr. Ridder's letter, written some time ago, was made public to-day, following its indorsement by the Inland Daily Press Association. It follows:

To the President:

The full text of your address at Winona, Minn., on the Tariff bill has just come to hand. With the utmost respect we submit that your statement respecting the paper schedule shows that you could not have correctly read or understood what the print-paper paragraph contained, as it passed the House of Representatives.

You were apparently misled by designing men into a serious blunder when, in the closing days of the tariff conference, they induced you to reverse your previous attitude upon print paper, and changed your notions of what the Mann committee recommended and of what the House of Representatives had approved. The Mann committee, after a ten months' investigation, marked by unusual thoroughness, reported that a rate of $2 would cover the difference in cost of production at home and abroad. The draft proposed absolutely safeguarded American paper mills against the serious Canadian tangle, which your advice to the tariff conferees has since precipitated.

The fixing of the rate on print paper at $3.75 per ton, which you advised, has decided the Province of Quebec to prohibit the exportation of its pulp wood, and many American paper mills must close or move to Canada to obtain their supplies of raw material. The country is now in a fair way for a trade war with Canada because of your apparent failure to read carefully the Mann committee's recommendations. We are threatened with an industrial disturbance which will involve business interchanges with Canada amounting to $285,000,000 per annum.

We sincerely trust that you can find some method of rectifying the mistake into which you were led. We fully appreciate the difficulties and responsibilities of your exalted office, and we believe you are trying to do the best you can. We know that you must rely upon others for your information. We feel that every citizen is under obligation to help you. Therefore we write this letter to you.

Yours respectfully,
HERMAN RIDDER,
President American Newspaper Publishers' Association.

ROOSEVELT KNOWS HIS DOG.

McMullen Says He Can Prove Ownership by the ex-President.

After Dr. D. H. Mackie of 351 West Fifty-sixth Street had, as he contended, snatched his valuable Canadian collie from his wife's arms from in front of his residence last night, William McMullen of 54 West Sixty-fifth Street had the doctor taken to the West Sixty-eighth Street Station, and there, despite the physician's claim that the animal belonged to him, McMullen asserted his ownership, and declared that he could prove it by ex-President Roosevelt.

The physician contended that the dog was his "Billy," and that it had been stolen from him about four weeks ago. He had seen the animal in McMullen's possession on several occasions, and followed McMullen to his home.

McMullen declared the dog was his "Rex," the son of "Bobby," a dog owned by Douglas Robinson, brother-in-law of the ex-President. He said that Col. Roosevelt knew the dog and could prove his ownership.

COCHRAN ESTATE $8,577,238.

Yonkers Woman's Wealth Mostly Stocks and Bonds.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 19.—The State Controller's office, through W. A. Moore, its counsel in Westchester County, has computed the inheritance tax on the estate of Mrs. Eva Smith Cochran, who was the daughter of Alexander Smith, founder of the Alexander Smith & Sons' Carpet Company of Yonkers. The estate amounts to $8,577,238.

The amount subject to the inheritance tax is $8,304,641, classified as follows: Government and railroad bonds, $6,243,855; stocks, $1,368,016; mortgages, $42,400; bank balances and miscellaneous property, including contents of houses, Duncraggan, Yonkers, and 5 East Forty-fifth Street, New York, $584,467. The bequests to churches, charities, and servants amount to $473,000, including $1,000 each to 300 employes of the carpet company who have worked in the factory twenty years or more. Each of Mrs. Cochran's six children receive $1,311,790.

The executors deposited $100,000 with the Controller's office to cover the tax. Mrs. Cochran's brother, who died six years ago, left $36,000,000, which paid $1,000,000 to the State.

THE FIRST STEPS IN THE DRAMA

"NELL" WARMLY WELCOMED

Actress's Name Cut to One Syllable in a Piece That Is Appropriate to the Change.

SPRINGTIME. A play in four acts. By Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson. Liberty.

Louise	Helen Lindroth
Aunt Marguerite	Alice Parks Warren
Lamaitre	Charles W. Butler
Father O'Mara	Joseph Brennan
M. de Valette	William B. Mack
M. Raoul de Valette	Samuel Forrest
L'Acadienne	Bijou Fernandez
Wolf	Edwin Holland
Crawley	William Harrigan
Madeleine	Nell
Gilbert Steele	Earle Browne
Julie	Sallie Brent

They did more than cut down Mabel Taliafero's name at the Liberty Theatre last night; they cut down the drama to words of one syllable, or to have been entirely consistent they should have done so. And, were time not pressing and the dictionary so very clumsy, that is what the reviewer ought to do in telling all about it. For "Springtime" is so juvenile and "Nell" (that's Mabel Taliaferro that was) so very youthful through it all that it would seem like breaking a butterfly on a wheel to deal with it in that hard, cold, practical, matter-of-fact way in which the callous critic always must approach a really, truly grown-up play.

They decked the Liberty Theatre in Autumn flowers last night to show that it was Springtime, and when the play was over the ushers were kept busy ever and ever so long carrying up baskets and designs of "roses red and violets blue," with cards of "Nell" saying, no doubt, that "sugar is sweet and so are you," and that a "Mabel Taliaferro by any other name would be just as sweet," or words to that effect.

Whether the authors received any violets and sentiments deponent knoweth not, but they have no doubt succeeded in what they have attempted—a picture book play in many colors, with a sort of music-box accompaniment that begins a new tune every time a page is turned.

"Springtime" is one of those plays about things in the never-never-could-have-happened land, where complete innocence of youth is for a little while at the mercy of the craftiness of age, where lovers fall in love without knowing what love means, and go their dangerous course without in the least understanding why there should be so much fuss about it. You are to imagine, however, that it all took place in Louisiana in the days when there was still antagonism to the native American, and when it was held disgraceful for the daughter of the old French families to look with favor on a Yankee. And so little Madeleine De Valette, betrothed to a man many years her senior, and still ignorant of everything in life, is quite content to be married to him until the handsome stranger comes along. As a matter of honest fact, he is not handsome, but what would the play be like without some license?

This youth is quite as innocent as Madeleine, and the prettiest moment in the play is a scene of mutual confession of something that neither of them understands, but which they both admit is very sweet and pleasant. However, as might be supposed, the cruel father interposes and the boy goes away to join Andrew Jackson's men, who are about to fight the British. Then Madeleine steals away from home and innocently follows him, and he as innocently agrees to allow her to accompany him to the front. There the cruel military routine interferes and she is made to drag her weary way back through the forest to her father's house, where she is coldly received and treated as one dead.

The play begins with the burning of candles for a dead servant—sixty odd candles, one for each year of the servant's life, for that is a custom of the Vallettes as you are emphatically assured—and the play very nearly ends with the burning of sixteen candles for little Madeleine, who—poor thing—has gone quite daft at news of her lover's death in the war, and the subsequent cruelty of her silly old father, who persists in treating her like a woman, although he must have known that she was only a very little girl. But, happily, for everybody the lover comes back unharmed, and Madeleine's reason is restored, her father relents, and there is every reason to believe that the funeral baked meats will coldly or otherwise furnish forth the marriage table.

It is all quite chromo-lithographic even to the acting, which, however, is not always as highly colored as the story, though by rights it should be. The actors, in fact, put off their French dialect—of which there is a great variety ranging from the nearly-like-it to the never-was-much more readily than they put it on, and there is a musical accompaniment by Mr. Harry Rowe Shelley, which gurgles quite merrily whenever Madeleine appears, excitedly trembles whenever she is unhappy, and rumbles quite fiercely whenever there is the least allusion to a soldier.

"Nell"—it really does seem too familiar, this calling by first names—is quite as youthful and as pastel as innocence itself, and in complete contrast to Bijou Fernandez, who makes a rich splash of color all over the piece. William B. Mack, an admirable actor, succeeds in maintaining the dignity of his rôle, though he is sadly miscast, and Joseph Brennan is moderately successful in one which gives him little opportunity.

Edwin Holland and Samuel Forrest fill in the other figures very well, and Earle Brown, as the youthful hero, does not look it, but plays it very well. The best bit of acting in the piece is provided by William Harrigan. The scenery is beautiful, and the costumes designed by Howard Pyle appropriate and effective.

At the end of the third act Mr. Winchell Smith came before the curtain to say that "Nell" did not believe that players should be seen between the acts. When the play was over, however, she was welcomed most enthusiastically.

Miss Irene Brandon to Wed To-day.

The marriage of Miss Irene Brandon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Brandon, 300 Central Park West, to Leslie Graff will take place at the St. Regis to-day. Miss Estelle Aziel will be the bride's only attendant.

Social Notes.

Miss Elizabeth Gorham Bacon, daughter of Dr. Gorham Bacon and Mrs. Bacon of 47 West Fifty-fourth Street, will make her début at a reception to be given at the Colony Club on Saturday, Nov. 27. Miss Bacon is the sister of Mrs. Austin Cheney of South Manchester, Conn., and of Mrs. Richard M. H. Harper of Boston.

Dr. Ensign B. Pardee and Mrs. Pardee of 74 West Forty-eighth Street have returned from their country place in Lawrence, L. I. They will give a reception and dance in December to introduce their daughter, Miss Gertrude B. Pardee.

Grenville Clarke, whose marriage to Miss Fannie Dwight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Dwight, takes place in Boston next month, will give his bachelor dinner at Delmonico's on Nov. 13.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Huntington Wolcott Jackson, daughter of Gen. Joseph Cook Jackson, to Martin S. Watts, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Henry Watts of Baltimore, takes place to-day in the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Epiphany.

Miss Florence Hotchkiss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry De Witt Hotchkiss, and James A. Force of this city will be married this afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, 315 West Seventy-fifth Street.

The wedding of Miss Mary Clay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Clay of Long Island City, to Fisher Tenney Bullard takes place this afternoon in St. John's Episcopal Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Damon Lyon have returned to town from Newport and the White Mountains, and will be at home on Tuesdays from 4 till 7 o'clock.

MRS. JOHN JAY'S FUNERAL.

Widow of Ambassador Once One of the Famous Beauties of New York.

The funeral of Mrs. Eleanor Jay, 90 years old, widow of John Jay, who died on Monday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William H. Schieffelin, 242 East Fifteenth Street, will take place to-morrow from the historic old Protestant Episcopal Church of St. Matthew, at Bedford, seven miles north of Mount Kisco, which was built largely through the efforts of Chief Justice John Jay, her husband's grandfather.

Mrs. Jay, who was Eleanor Kingsland Field, daughter of Hickson W. Field, one of the leading New York merchants in the China trade nearly a century ago, was born on May 29, 1819. When 19 she married John Jay, son of William Jay, the noted Abolitionist, and grandson of Chief Justice Jay, then two years her senior. She was then regarded as one of the most famous beauties of the city, and even in 1869, more than thirty years later, when her husband was appointed by President Grant Minister to Austria, she became a striking figure at the Austrian Court.

John Jay was twice appointed Minister to Austria, but resigned in 1875 before the expiration of his second term. In 1883 Gov. Cleveland appointed him the Republican member of the State Civil Service Commission, and in all this period until his death in 1894, Mrs. Jay was a social leader in this city, as she had been in the fifties and until she went abroad to live. Upon the death of her husband Mrs. Jay lived for the greater part of each year at Bedford House in Westchester County, becoming the modest "lady bountiful" to all the needy and ill in that section.

Mrs. Jay had five children—Eleanor, who married Henry Grafton Chapman, and is now living at 12 East Thirty-first Street; Col. William Jay, the only son; Augusta, now dead, who married Edmund Randolph Robinson of Philadelphia; Mary, who married William H. Schieffelin, and Anne, who married the late Gen. von Schweinitz, German Ambassador to Austria.

CAPT. M. K. O'MALLEY WEDS.

British Army Officer Takes Miss Jane B. Malley as Bride.

The marriage of Miss Jane Byrnes Malley, only daughter of the late Edward Malley, a leading business man of New Haven, to Capt. Middleton Keys O'Malley of the Royal Field Artillery, British Army, took place yesterday morning in the Church of St. Charles Borromeo, in West 141st Street. Owing to the recent death of the bride's father only the members of the immediate families were present. Mr. and Mrs. O'Malley will leave in a few days for their future home in England.

Capt. O'Malley has been visiting Miss Malley's brothers, and recently returned from a fishing trip to the Rangeley Lakes. The bride spent a year in Europe with Capt. O'Malley's relatives.

MISS GLEASON A BRIDE.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Gleason Wedded to Franklin Escher.

The wedding of Miss Mildred Blanchard Gleason, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Gleason of 210 Fifth Avenue, to Franklin Escher took place yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Hotel St. Regis, where the reception and supper were held. The Rev. Herbert Shipman, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, officiated.

Mr. Gleason gave his daughter in marriage. Her gown was of white satin with pearl embroidery, and she wore a tulle vail fastened with orange blossoms, carrying lilies of the valley.

Mrs. William W. Gleason, the bride's sister-in-law, was matron of honor and only attendant. She wore silver green satin with a large picture hat of green and silver, and carried a bouquet of tea roses.

Edward Escher acted as his brother's best man, and the ushers were Henry and James Escher, brothers of the bridegroom; Howard Barnaby, and W. W. Gleason.

WILSON—PATTERSON.

Miss Clare Emily Patterson was married on Monday to George Anson Wilson of Sewickley, Penn., the ceremony being performed at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Sidonie Thurn, 52 East Sixty-sixth Street.

Clarke-Aldrich Wedding Plans.

The wedding of Miss Helen Hudson Aldrich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Aldrich, to Talcott Hunt Clarke, which was announced in THE TIMES last November, will take place on Thursday, Nov. 28, in All Angels' Church, at 4 o'clock. A reception will follow at the home of the bride's parents, 271 West Seventy-second Street. Miss Maude H. Aldrich is to be her sister's maid of honor, and the four bridesmaids will be Miss Edith Van Santvoord, Miss Ethel Halsted, Miss Beatrice Mahoney, and Miss Mary A. Aldrich, sister of the bride. The ceremony will be performed by Dr. J. Nevett Steele, an uncle of the bride.

Hewlett-Schoonmacher Wedding Oct. 28

Mrs. Schoonmacher has just issued invitations for the wedding of Miss Althea Livingston Schoonmacher, daughter of the late Admiral Cornelius Marius Schoonmacher, to Louis Hewlett. The ceremony is to take place on Thursday, Oct. 28, at 4 o'clock in the Church of Incarnation, and will be followed by a small reception at the residence of the bride's mother, 202 West Seventy-fourth Street, for immediate relatives and friends. Miss Schoonmacher has a younger sister, Miss Virginia L. Schoonmacher. Her mother was Miss Matilda R. Cooper.

Entertains Her Bridal Party.

Miss Mabel Brace, whose marriage to Harold Bartlett Scott takes place to-day in the First Reformed Church, Tarrytown-on-the-Hudson, gave a luncheon yesterday at Braceholme, the residence of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Clement Brace, to the bridal party. Among those present were Miss Marion Scott, sister of the bridegroom, and the Misses Anna Welchert, May Connor, and Isabella Woodbury, and Walter Scott, Maxwell Brace, Stanley Sweet, and Edward Lewis.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The opening of Fiske O'Hara in Theodore Burt Sayre's play, "The Wearing of the Green," has been postponed until the middle of November.

William Faversham and the members of his company will leave for Albany this morning for the first performance of Stephen Phillips's "Herod," which occurs to-morrow evening.

Liebler & Co. have arranged with Louis N. Parker, the English dramatist, who is spending a few weeks in America, to adapt for London production "The Fourth Estate," now running at Wallack's Theatre. An all-American company is to be engaged for the London season.

Lulu Glaser is suffering with a severe attack of pneumonia, and has been obliged to discontinue her tour in "The Girl from the States." Miss Glaser was taken ill shortly after the play opened in Philadelphia, and her physician insisted on her taking an absolute rest for at least five weeks.

The Shuberts announce that Frank Daniels in "The Belle of Brittany" will succeed Viola Allen in "The White Sister" at Daly's Theatre, opening on Nov. 8.

Harrison Grey Fiske has arranged to star Holbrook Blinn, who is now touring with Mrs. Fiske in "Salvation Nell," after the present season. Two plays have been obtained for Mr. Blinn's use.

Mlle. Dazie, the dancer, has been engaged to appear at Hammerstein's Victoria for election week in her pantomime, "L'Amour de l'Artist."

CESARE LOMBROSO, CRIMINOLOGIST, DEAD

Noted Italian Alienist Sought to Prove That Genius Could Be Traced to Epilepsy.

HAD DISTINGUISHED CAREER

His Books, "The Criminal" and "The Man of Genius," Caused Wide Discussion in the Scientific World.

TURIN, Oct. 19.—Cesare Lombroso, the noted Italian criminologist and alienist, died to-day. He was born at Venice in November, 1836. Prof. Lombroso's death was due to heart disease. The members of his family were present at the time of his death, including his son-in-law, Guglielmo Ferrero, the historian.

In the realm of crime, its causes and treatment, the name of Cesare Lombroso has been famous throughout the scientific and civilized world for years. As the most noted criminal anthropologist of his time, the theories first propounded by this Italian alienist nearly half a century ago, originally arousing violent opposition, have been very generally accepted, and form the basis upon which criminal science of the modern day is founded. Many of his views are still open to criticism, but as a pioneer in opening up new fields of study and observation in the cause of criminality Lombroso had established certain broad principles which have radically altered the old-time conception of the criminal and his treatment.

Lombroso, however, did not limit his studies to the causes and effects of crime. Practically all mental phenomena attracted his attention. Next to his great book, "The Criminal," (L'uomo Delinquente,) which aroused widespread discussion in the scientific world, was his book "The Man of Genius," (L'uomo di Genio,) in which he endeavored to prove that the fruits of genius could all be traced to the effects, more or less acute, of epilepsy. So insistent was Lombroso on this theory that many of his critics have been inclined to place Lombroso himself in this category of geniuses.

Verono was the birthplace of Lombroso, Nov. 18, 1836. He was of Jewish descent, many of his ancestors having been rabbis and learned Hebraists. Early in life he studied literature, linguistics, and archaeology, devoting particular attention to Hebrew, Arabic, and Chinese. He then turned his attention to medicine, being graduated from the University of Turin, and studying in the Universities of Padua, Paris, and Vienna. During this time his mind turned strongly to the study of all types of insanity. While a student he wrote two essays on insanity, one of which embodied his ideas later worked out with greater thoroughness of the close connection between madness and genius.

During the Austro-Italian war, 1859, he served as a physician in the army, and as the result of this experience published two papers on amputation which won the Riberi prize, the only official academic reward he ever received. His interest about the same time in archaeology was shown by a work on Calabrian folklore which laid the foundation for an ethnographical-anthropological chart of Italy. Being transferred from Calabria to Pavia, Lombroso requested permission to make frequent visits to the insane asylum to study the causes of mental aberration, but being refused he resigned his medical position in the army.

From Pavia he went to his home university at Turin, where for nearly twenty years he held the Professorship of Psychiatry and Medical Jurisprudence. It was here that he enlarged his famous collection of skulls of criminals, probably the most extensive and instructive of its kind in the world.

Lombroso's name is chiefly identified with his two great theories; first, that genius is a peculiar, psychical form of lunatic epilepsy, and, second, that there is a degenerate class of human beings distinguished by anatomical characteristics who are born with criminal instincts and who represent a reversion to a very primitive form of humanity. Lombroso recognized crime as a phenomenon of degeneration, and he placed the criminal among those abnormal tpyes of the human specie, which, according as their development is either defective or excessive, present examples of atavism or evolution, becoming, in one case, either idiots or criminals or, in the other case, martyrs, revolutionists, artists, or poets. This theory gave rise to the science of criminal anthropology and revolutionized the old-fashioned mode of viewing the criminal and the crime.

His two most famous books have been translated into many European languages. He was an active writer and wrote over a score of books and many magazine articles on his favorite subjects of insanity, crime, and genius. In honor of his great contributions to science and medicine the Sixth International Congress of anthropologists presented a testimonial to him in London in 1906.

Prof. Guglielmo Ferrero, the Roman historian, married one of his two daughters. Lombroso's home life and all his tastes were exceedingly simple. He was an ardent bicyclist and was a familiar figure in Turin, riding through the town and far out into the country for exercise. In literature his favorite authors were Zola, Tolstoy, and Ibsen.

Father Van Hulst, Aged 93, Found Dead

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—The Rev. Adrian E. Van Hulst, aged 93 years, and one of the oldest priests in the United States, was found dead in his room at St. Ignatius College here to-day, of accidental asphyxiation. Father Van Hulst was ordained a priest in 1839, and sixty years ago was a professor of mathematics at St. Louis University, St. Louis, Mo. He had been engaged in charitable work in Chicago for thirty years.

TO TRANSFER 'ARSENE LUPIN.'

Frohman's London Cast to Replace Company Here on April 4.

Charles Frohman has arranged to transfer his two companies playing "Arsene Lupin" by sending the American company to London and bringing the organization headed by Gerald Du Maurier to this country. The exchange will be effected during Easter week, the American company closing here on April 2 and opening in London two weeks later, and the London company arriving here in time to give a first performance on April 4.

During the interval the Duke of York's Theatre in London will be kept open by Mr. Frohman's répertoire theatre company, which he expects to have established by that time. It is said that there is a slight difference in the interpretation of the text of "Arsene Lupin" by the two companies.

Black Opal will be scarce in 1910

The miners of black opal fear that the year 1910 will show a great decrease in the output of the famous Lightning Ridge Mine. The last of this year's mining is now in our hands and some marvelous specimens are coming from the cutters. Large and small pieces alike reveal the flames and flashes of color that have made this stone the most sought after of any gem we have ever offered to the public.

Obituary Notes.

ALEXANDER H. RICKEY, Assistant Secretary of State of New Jersey for more than eleven years before 1902 and in the office of the Secretary of State from 1866 up to his retirement in 1902, died in Trenton yesterday morning, aged 62 years. He was a life-long Democrat and one of the notable men of the State.

Mrs. HARRIET R. COCHRAN, widow of David H. Cochran, formerly President of the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn, died in her home at 301 Clermont Aenue, this city, yesterday. Mrs. Cochran suffered a stroke of apoplexy in February last, and her health had been constantly declining since. She was Secretary of the Brooklyn Home for Aged Men for twenty-nine years.

TED COY'S FORWARD PASSES BEAT SCRUBS

Yale Captain Also Helps Cleverly with His Onside Kicks and End Runs.

BARELY MISSES FIELD GOAL

Lilley and Hyde Slightly Injured in Scrimmage—Andrus Returns To-day from a Visit to Yonkers.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 19.—Scoring plays were reeled off fast by the Yale's 'Varsity this afternoon against the scrubs. The coaches took advantage of the cool weather by ordering a thirty-minute playing period, and the regulars crossed the second team's goal once every five minutes during that time. Capt. Ted Coy took part in the play, and his bewildering forward passes, onside kicks, and long runs around end were the factors which ran up the big score.

In four scrimmages the regulars scored their first touchdown. Putting the ball in play from the 'Varsity 25-yard line Coy lifted a forward pass to Vaughn for a 40-yard gain on the first play. Two line plunges by Daly and Coy released another forward pass on which Vaughn went over the line.

Coy heaved two more forward passes, bringing the ball to the scrubs' 5-yard line, where Daly shot through tackle for the next touchdown. The second team was then given the ball but, being unable to gain ground, were forced to punt. Twice Coy shot around end for a run of more than half the length of the field, eluding the second team tacklers, for the next two touchdowns.

After reaching the scrubs' 15-yard line the regulars were held for three downs in the journey to the goal for the fifth score of the day. Coy's toe neatly lifted a field goal between the bars. More forward passes netted the sixth score of the day. The play closed with a trial for a field goal by Coy from the 40-yard line, which narrowly missing going between the uprights. Coy was not used in the line-boring game.

Lilley, right tackle, and Hyde, centre, were slightly injured to-day, and retired, but will be in the play to-morrow. Morris, substituted first for one and then for the other. Few of the regulars were in the line up, although all except "Ham" Andrus were in uniform and jogged a few laps around the field for exercise. Andrus remained at his home in Yonkers after the West Point game, but will return tomorrow.

To-day's coaching staff included Joe Swan, head coach in 1902; "Bo" Olcott, coach at New York University; Jim McCrea, '95, and Ralph Bloomer, 1904.

Each Winter more motors are kept in commission.

Each Winter we've more practical equipment for keeping drivers and riders comfortable.

But we do not assume that because a man has a motor, expense is nothing to him.

All our motoring wear and accessories are moderately priced, for though we've a much larger variety and much larger stock than any specialty shop could carry, the volume of our general business permits of merchandising fine motor wear without the extravagant profits a specialty shop must obtain.

Here are some suggestions for cold weather—

Greatcoats of medium and heavy weight cheviots and friezes, with specially designed collars and windcuffs, at $22 to $40.

Chauffeurs' livery greatcoats, of heavy boxcloth at $50; of black cloth, Russian style, pony lined, with fur collar and cuffs, at $75; of fine boxcloth, wool lined, with Persian lamb collar and cuffs, $110.

Chauffeurs' Winter suits; Norfolk, Semi-Norfolk and military types; in whipcords and heavy serge, $25 to $37.

Fur greatcoats, with the fur outside, $25 to $100.

Cloth greatcoats, fur-lined, from $35 up.

Gloves, gauntlets and mittens, of heavy black or tan leather, with lining of fur, fleece, or wool; from $2.50 up.

Fur gloves, gauntlets and mittens, $5.50 to $27.

Lap-robes, medium and heavy weights, in a splendid variety of plushes and cloths; from $5 to $35.

Fur robes, from $35 to $75.

Goggles.

Thermos bottles in wide variety, and leather cases to carry one or more.

Fitted lunch baskets.

Cloth caps and fur caps.

Rubber "Auto shirts" and rubber lap-robes.

Flower holders for limousine cars.

Tire trunks and trunks fitted to cars.

Hold-alls that strap on the rail in the tonneau.

Knitted mufflers (also called motor wraps or reefers), a wide variety of colors selected by our buyer in England and just imported.

Over-boots of heavy black leather, warmly lined with wool, to pull on over your shoes, two lengths, $11.50 and $15.

Not to speak of sweaters, Scotch knitted vests and any number of other things which are fine for motoring, but are not specially made for that sport.

Corbett, Harvard Star, Injured.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 19.—The Harvard 'Varsity had stiff football practice this afternoon and in secret. The play was rough, so much so that Corbett, star of the Crimson back field, was carried off the gridiron before the scrimmage was half over. He strained a tendon in one of his legs, and will be out of the line-up for a fortnight at least. The line showed the result of their coaching yesterday, fought every inch of the second team's advance, and held their backs easily. The 'Varsity lined up the same as yesterday, Frothingham taking Corbett's place when he was injured. Minot's line plunging and O'Flaherty's all-around work were the features. The former scored two of the 'Varsity's three touchdowns, and assisted materially in scoring the third. P. Withington opened the scrimmage, punting to the "subs" on their thirty-yard line. The 'Varsity then obtained the ball by smashing a fake quarter back play. Minot tried out one of his favorite stunts, the on-side kick, and got twenty yards. O'Flaherty again called on the big full back, and pushed him through left tackle for eight yards more. From there the giant was sent over for the first touchdown. O'Flaherty, timing Sprague's kick-off accurately, went down the field in the wake of the interference of Long for sixty-five yards. A forward pass to Gil Brown netted the 'Varsity another substantial gain. Minot was called upon again, and dug through centre for the second touchdown. L. Withington made the final tally. Breaking through tackle he blocked one of Sprague's low driving punts on the "subs'" twenty-five-yard line, recovered the ball, and went behind the goal posts in record time.

Tigers Lack End Men.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 19.—University Field was open during football practice this afternoon for the first time in a week, and a large crowd of undergraduates watched the efforts of the squad from the bleachers. The work was of a brisk nature, due to the cold weather, and the scrub line and back field put up a hard fight against the 'Varsity. Two touchdowns were made by the 'Varsity, however—one by Hart and the other by Cunningham. The scrimmaging consisted of two fifteen-minute halves, and the original back field consisted of Hart, Sharks, and Woodle. The latter has just recovered from an injury to an ankle, and was not much used, Cunningham soon taking his place. Bergen again ran the team all afternoon, and satisfied the coaches with his showing. A number of the regulars, including Welch, McCrohan, Read, and Dawson, rested. The coaches are pursuing the policy of not overworking the men this season, as it is thought that that was one of the chief faults last year.

Two new men who have been showing fine form with the scrubs were put in the 'Varsity line for a tryout. These are Musser and Norman.

The question of ends is still an open one, and so far about twenty-seven candidates have been tried in this position. Devito went in to-day for the first time and made some sensational tackles. Ballin, of last year's baseball team, was placed in Welch's position during the latter's absence, and may be tried on the other side to-morrow. Walter C. Booth, 1900, of the Graduate Advisory Committee, was on hand, and spent his time looking over the line.

Cornell Shows Improvement.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 19.—The Cornell 'Varsity team showed marked improvement in the first of the week's games with the second team this afternoon, defeating the scrubs by one touchdown and playing much smoother football than in the past. Early in the game Quarter Back Baker, on the scrubs, got around the 'Varsity ends for several good gains. It was noticed that the 'Varsity tackling was still poor. A punt to Owen in midfield, however, gave the 'Varsity their chance and they began to hammer the line. Tydeman and Krutsch worked through holes for five and ten yard gains, the backs forming better interference, reaching the line quicker, and showing better foot work than formerly. Gass was put in Simson's place and he played his usual gritty game, making several good line plunges. Gass scored the only touchdown for the 'Varsity.

To-day was Eddie Crosby's first appearance in the 'Varsity line-up in a scrimmage since the opening game of the season. The Brooklyn boy is in good condition again and looks like a comer. The coaches put Leventry, the old 'Varsity tackle, at end on the scrubs, where he showed more speed than was expected. Morton, Delano, and Sutton were also coached for ends in the preliminary practice. Hurlburt, McArthur, and Simson were laid off, Simson spending an hour in punting. He got off some fifty-yard kicks and O'Connor put several good drops across the bar. "Pop" Wilder, '06, an old centre, joined the coaches.

Navy Looking for Quarter Back.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 19.—The midshipmen had a long and fairly profitable practice this afternoon, including over a half hour of good hard football. The injury to Wilson and the poor showing of some of the other candidates for quarter back have made it necessary to look for other material for this position. Battle is receiving the most attention at present, but this afternoon Nason, who has been a member of the squad for three seasons, and Shaw, who played quarter back for the fourth-class team last season, both had a chance. Nason took Battle's place for a while on the first team and Shaw played on the scrub throughout hte afternoon. Battle has many of the qualifications for the place. He handles punts better than any member of the squad and runs well in a broken field, though not so well as Wilson. Dalton and Clay were at half back for the first team this afternoon and McCaughey was at full. Dalton was clearly the best ground gainer on the field and made several long end runs, generally on the fake kick formation. Of those who were hurt Saturday Meyer, Reifsnider, and Richardson did not play to-day, but Vaill was in shape again and played right end.

Army Men Tackle Dummy.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 19.—The army football men were once more brought back to the rudiments to-day. Saturday's game showed the army did not tackle as hard and surely as they should, and Coach Beacham kept the men tackling the dummy so fast that it scarcely bounded out of one man's arms before another nailed it on the fly. The ends were taken in hand by Lieut. Cooper and sent down under punts, and the long drill showed some improvement in starting quickly. Dean came out of the hospital to-day and got into the signal practice. Byrne went on the sick list to-day and Hyatt also was absent. Chamberlin is still laid up and is not expected out this week.

Indians Behind Closed Gates.

Special to The New York Times.

CARLISLE, Oct. 19.—Secret practice for the Carlisle Indian football squad was the order of work this afternoon for the first time this season. Carlisle has less secret practice than any of the big schools, and it is only resorted to at the approach of big games. The coaches, Warner and Wingard, have discovered that the redskins are not in as good physical condition as they had thought—in fact, the whole back field is badly bruised. The hesitancy of the redskins in complaining about injuries is often the cause for misapprehension on the part of their trainers. Signals and a short scrimmage this evening followed what is becoming the customary blackboard talk by Coach Warner, who, incidentally, in his discourses questions his charges on the rules, for the observance of which he stands as a stickler.

Fordham in Light Practice.

For the first time in two weeks Coach Gargan gave the Fordham 'Varsity light work yesterday. He feared that his men might get trained too fine for Saturday's contest with Swarthmore at American League Park, and accordingly, after a long signal practice and a short scrimmage, the men were dismissed. Particular attention was given to the forward pass. Capt. Gargan hurled several of these into space, but the keen-sighted ends were always there to get them before they struck ground.

On their showing thus far McCarthy and McCaffrey, the maroon ends, might worthily be considered as possible all-American material. It was the perfect handling of the inside kick at Ithaca by this pair that sent the Cornellians down to defeat.

The only cloud hovering over Fordham Field is the absence from practice of Dad White, who is said to be another Coy. Last Thursday in tackling S. McCarthy, quarter back on the scrub, the big fellow wrenched his left wrist. As he uses his left hand in warding off tacklers, the injured member has handicapped him considerably. In the hope of getting him into shape for Saturday's game the coaches have excused him from practice. The enforced absence of White has brought to light a promising half back in George Walsh, who played in White's place against Cornell. His punting was the best seen at Ithaca this Fall. He is not only a good punter, but also a ground gainer and drop kicker of considerable ability.

Athletics Beat Cubs, 2 to 0.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—The Philadelphia American League Club to-day defeated the Chicago National League team by the score of 2 to 0. Bender and Reulbach were the pitchers, Chicago making two hits off Bender and the Athletics getting eight off Reulbach.

JACK ATKIN ROMPS TO A FAST VICTORY

BLACK MATE BEATS NIMBUS

Marigot Breaks a Long Run of Ill-Fortune for J. E. Madden by Winning a Jamaica Maiden's Race.

With never a real threat to his supremacy among the sprinters, Jack Atkin, giving weight all around, led the swiftest field of the Fall through about all the distance and romped in first for the Richmond Handicap at Jamaica yesterday, in the fastest six-furlong race of the meeting. Only one of the eight horses named to run, Jeanne D'Arc, failed to answer the call to the post, and a substitute for her in King Cobalt brought the field back to the original eight horses named to start. The lot included the most successful sprinters of the season, but Jack Atkin, with his high weight, was always the public favorite, and was practically alone at the finish, pulling up three lengths clear of the light-footed filly Rose Queen and the speedy Half Sovereign, fighting out a head apart for second place.

Sir John Johnson, regarded as Jack Atkin's most formidable rival, and handicapped close to the great Missouri horse, started as second choice, but was never a contender, because of behavior that was queer for even the Beverwyck Stable's star performer. Sir John Johnson looked robust and strong when he left the paddock, but after breaking through the barrier and wheeling and worrying his field at the post, suddenly sank to his knees as if through weakness and rolled over on his shoulder, with his rider, Gilbert, partly under him. The boy remounted when Sir John Johnson arose, but the horse staggered about like a drunken man and finally was left at the post when the others broke away aligned.

The Beverwyck Stable was dissatisfied at the showing and ill-fortune of Sir John Johnson, and, through D. Woodford, trainer of the horse, B. Schreiber, owner of Jack Atkin, was challenged to run his horse for $5,000 against Sir John Johnson. There was no agreement for a match or bet, however, as arrangements already had been made for Jack Atkin to be shipped to Baltimore for the meeting there.

Sou, a cast-off from the Belmont stable, was the only other winning favorite of the day, Sou, running in the name and colors of the one-time jockey, J. Jones, starting at odds-on in a field of four. Sou was led to the post and wheeled and fought in a style equal to Sir John Johnson's worst at the post. The start was delayed, however, until she broke running, and then Sou had it all her own way and led from end to end.

Nimbus, at 9 to 2 on, in a field of three horses, made about the most dismal failure of his eccentric career. Nimbus and Black Mate, wedging together just as the start was made, caused Lord Stanhope to fall with Jockey Ural, and for the remainder of the distance had the race between them. Nimbus made the running, and on the far turn moved away from Black Mate in such commanding style that one of the spectators in the clubhouse offered to bet $800 to $100 that Nimbus would win, and found a taker. Nimbus still looked like winning until well down the straight, and there tired, and when Black Mate challenged again stopped so fast that Black Mate caught him on the post and beat him a head. Ural made complaint that both horses had fouled him when Lord Stanhope was knocked down, but his claim offered too hard a problem to the Stewards, in view of the fact that Lord Stanhope had not even finished, and they dismissed the claim and let the result stand as the horses finished.

In the race for maidens 2 years old, Marigot, coming with a rush at the end, after Howlett made the pace for nearly five furlongs, carried J. E. Madden's colors to the first win for Madden since the Sheepshead Bay June meeting. The summaries:

Ben Ban Wins for Duryea.

PARIS, Oct. 19.—The Prix Saint Maurice was run at Vincennes to-day and won by H. B. Duryea's Ben Ban. Mason Carnes's Revanche was second.

BILLIARD TOURNEY NOV. 22.

Room Keepers' Association to Hold Event for 18.2 Championship.

It was announced yesterday by Maurice Daly, Chairman of the New York Roomkeepers Association, which recently was organized in opposition to the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company as the ruling organization in billiards, that the first tournament under the new régime would be held in Madison Square Garden Concert Hall beginning Nov. 22. The play will be for the 18.2 billiard championship of the world, with six of the leading professional billiard players of the country as contestants. The present holder of the 18.2 title, which he won last Winter, is Ora Morningstar. While Morningstar stands as the champion he is not holder of the emblem, as that was returned to the Brunswick-Balke-Collender people shortly after the new association was formed. The new trophy, which will be in competition for the first time in the coming tournament, will in the future stand as the emblem of the championship.

The announcement of the tournament is taken to indicate that the new association has met with success in its endeavors to enlist the aid of the players throughout the country.

The conditions under which the tournament is to be held have been set forth as follows:

Entries to be limited to six. Each player to pay an entrance fee of $100, which must accompany the entry. In addition to the trophy emblematic of the championship, $5,000 as prize money, together with the amount of the entrance fees and net gate receipts, is to be divided among the players as follows: To the winner of the greatest number of games, 40 per cent.; to the one finishing second, 30 per cent.; to the one finishing third, 20 per cent.; to the one finishing fourth, 10 per cent. All ties to be played off.

The games to consist of 500 points up, subject to the playing rules at present governing this style of game.

The winner of the emblem will be required to defend the same, subject to the rules heretofore governing the 18.2 balk-line championship, and also subject to the amendment to said rules adopted March 20, 1909. Entries to close Oct. 27.

Results of Billiard Games.

Playing in the handicap 18.2 billiard tournament at Daly's Billiard Academy, Broadway and Forty-ninth Street, yesterday, White and Gershell fought out a close game, the former winning by a margin of 25 points, with the score 250 to 225. The average of the winner was 5 38-43, while Gershell made 5 10-43. The high run was made by Gershell, his best inning netting 48. White's best run was 41. In the second game Cutler scored an easy victory over White by 200 to 16. His average was 29 5-7, and his best run 70. White marked up an average of 2 2-6, with a high run of 5.

H. Franzen scored a victory over J. Hanahan by a total of 25 to 16 in the three-cushion handicap billiard tournament at Doyle's Billiard Academy last night. The contest went thirty-six innings, and the high run of 5 was made by Franzen. To-night Alec Smith will play F. Tannehill.

Isaacs defeated Barnes in the 18.2 amateur billiard tournament at the Morningside Billiard Academy, 290 Lenox Avenue, last night, the score being 200 to 176.

Princeton Golfers Win Every Match.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 19.—The Princeton golf team defeated the Lawrenceville team on the university links this afternoon for the second time this season. The score was 8 to 0. Both teams played eight men instead of the usual six. The most interesting match was that between Capt. Lee of Lawrenceville and Seckel, the intercollegiate and Princeton golf champion. The latter won by one hole. In the match between Houston of Princeton and Peacock of Lawrenceville, the former won out on the twenty-first green. The score of each match was as follows:

Seckel, Princeton, defeated Lee, Lawrenceville, 1 up; Kay, Princeton, defeated Spencer, Lawrenceville, 1 up; Houston, Princeton, defeated Peacock, Lawrenceville, 1 up in 21 holes. Vandyke, Princeton, defeated Cook, Lawrenceville, 4 up and 3 to go; McAdoo, Princeton, defeated Fay, Lawrenceville, 4 up and 2 to go; Herron, Princeton, defeated Beall, Lawrenceville, 1 up, 19 holes; Eddy, Princeton, defeated Coles, Lawrenceville, 7 up and 6 to go; Parker, Princeton, defeated Bagby, Lawrenceville, 3 up and 2 to go.

Columbia "Gym" Team Prospects.

Although Columbia loses two intercollegiate champions from her "gym" team, the prospect seems favorable for developing another championship team this year. In the loss of Hanrahan, who held the championship on the side-horse last year, recompense is made in the return this Fall of W. H. Wheeler, who held the same title in 1908. It is doubtful, however, if "Herb" Schoonmaker's place can be satisfactorily filled this year. In the intercollegiate meet at Princeton last Spring, which placed Columbia first, he won 11 points out of 17. As Capt. Wheeler pointed out, however, more men than last year have come out for work, and greater strength will be afforded the team in the opportunity of scoring in second and third places. Two men from other colleges, who were ineligible last year, have reported this Fall. They are Bell, from the University of Alabama, working on tumbling, and Whitaker, from Vanderbilt, working on tumbling and parallels. Voskamp of last year's 'Varsity, is back on the rings and horizontal bar, while Lang is again tumbling. Among the new men Kistner, on the parallels and horizontal bar, and McCanalis, at tumbling, are perhaps the most promising material out.

Young Terry Beats Billy Yanger.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Oct. 19.—One of the largest crowds that has appeared around the prize ring in the Hudson Valley in a number of years witnessed several good bouts at the Gilleran Athletic Club to-night. Great interest was manifested in the main event between Billy Yanger of Newburg and Young Terry of New Orleans, the champion featherweight of the South. It was a bitter clash, both men fighting hard, Young Terry having the better of the contest throughout.

Al King, the English lightweith, who has fought draws in England with such men as Jem Driscoll, Owen Moran, Freddy Welsh, and Johnny Summers, clashed in a four-round semi-final bout with George Collins, a New York boy, which resulted in a draw.

Dan Sullivan Knocked Out.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 19.—Harry Lewis of Philadelphia squelched the championship aspirations of Dan Sullivan of Cambridge in two minutes of fighting at the Armory Athletic Association to-night.

A series of jabs, followed by a left to the stomach and a right to the jaw, dropped Sullivan flat on his back, and he lay sprawled out unconscious while Referee Dick Fleming counted off ten seconds.

Sullivan, who won the amateur National middleweight championship last March, is a brother of the famous twins and his showing as a medal winner led his friends to believe that he was a world beater. He made his professional debut to-night against the clever and more experienced Philadelphian, and the result was what nearly every person versed in ring knowledge anticipated.

VANDERBILT CUP DRIVERS PROTEST

Reported That Strike Will Follow Unless Money Prize Is Offered for Auto Event.

OBJECT TO DISCRIMINATION

Committee Offers $1,000 in Money for Two Minor Events—Cars Will Begin Practice This Morning.

Persistent reports were current yesterday in automobile racing circles that many of the drivers selected for the Vanderbilt Cup race would refuse to drive in that event owing to the fact that no cash prizes are offered for the Automobile Derby. In Classes 1 and 2, which cover the Vanderbilt Cup race, the only prize is a special donor's trophy to the winner of each class, but in Classes 3 and 4, the Wheatley Hills and Massapequa Trophies, respectively, $1,000 in cash is offered to the winner in each event.

The Vanderbilt Cup is the most coveted trophy for automobile manufacturers in the United States. An entrance fee of $500 is charged for each car, while only half that amount is required from the entrants in the contests for the Wheatley Hills and Massapequa Trophies. The drivers think they are being discriminated against in that no cash prizes is offered for the more important event. There has been considerable dissatisfaction among the drivers on this account for some time, and it was freely reported yesterday that some action may be expected from the drivers in a few days.

The entry list for the Vanderbilt Cup race is growing daily, and at the time set for closing the entries, Oct. 25, the Motor Cups Holding Company expects the number to be increased to at least thirty cars.

Preliminary practice begins to-day and will continue daily up to the day of the race between the hours of 5 and 8 o'clock in the morning. The first cars to arrive on the ground were two Chalmers-Detroits, with William Knipper and Joe Matheson as driver. The Chalmers-Detroit headquarters will be the Garden City Hotel. Jack Aiken and Charlie Merz with two Nationals also arrived. The two latter drivers were the heroes of the Indianapolis Speedway contest. Several other cars are expected to-day, and by to-morrow fully a dozen racers will be speeding around the twelve-and-a-half-mile course.

Plans are already being prepared by the Motor Contest Association to hold another race over the Riverhead course on Long Island in June, 1910. It is intended to cut the length of the course from twenty-two to thirteen miles, which will eliminate two railroad crossings, which were objectionable features of the course. The Supervisors of the county will be requested to permit the race to be started at noon, so as to enable the New York City contingent to get down to the course in time, without remaining up practically all night. Instead of opposing the race, the farmers in the vicinity of the course want a renewal of the contest at the earliest possible time. In reducing the length of the course Mattituck will be dropped from the route of the cars.

A special meeting of the New York Trade Association was held yesterday at the Hotel Cumberland, with Gen. John T. Cutting, President og the association, in the chair. It is the intention of the association to play a more important part in local automobiling in the future, and with this point in view a special committee of three was appointed to revise the by-laws of the association, so as to permit the adoption of a more aggressive policy. It is intended to double the annual dues and establish themselves in new fields.

The physicians at the Kings County Hospital last night reported a decided change for the better in the condition of Charles Bowers, the auto driver who received a fractured skull in the twenty-four-hour race at the Brighton Beach Motordrome last Saturday. Unless complications set in the physicians are of the opinion that Bowers will recover.

Breeders' Club Win Bankruptcy Suit.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 19.—Attorneys of this city, representing the New England Breeders' Club, received word to-day that the United States Supreme Court has decided adversely to the plaintiff in the case of the Hub Construction Company of Boston against the New England Breeders' Club of Salem. The company sought to set aside a decree of bankruptcy against the club, which was the builder and owner of the Rockingham Park race track in Salem. The track, which was built by Andrew Miller and other New York capitalists, cost upward of $1,000,000.

Colgate Preparing for Yale Game.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Oct. 19.—The Colgate football team had a gruelling practice to-day in preparation for their game with Yale on Saturday. According to the coaches, the games with St. Lawrence and Hamilton were easier than had been expected, and the need of some hard football to show the men what they might expect at New Haven was felt. So the second team was directed to do its best, and both elevens retired from the afternoon scrimmage pretty well fagged out. The men who were slightly injured in last Saturday's game were allowed to rest to-day. All of them are expected to be in tip-top shape when the squad leaves for New Haven.

ATLANTA HORSE SHOW.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt Among Exhibitors and Boxholders.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 19.—The third annual exhibition of the Atlanta Horse Show Association began here at 8 o'clock this evening, with a larger entry list than ever before.

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt is an exhibitor this year, and his horses were the centre of attraction from the great crowd present. Vanderbilt is one of the boxholders, and the crowd followed his movements as much as they did his horses.

Conspicuous among the out-of-town visitors were Miss Gladys Hoadley of New York and Miss Elizabeth Wilbur of Philadelphia. Gov. Joseph M. Brown of Georgia also occupied a box, this being the first horse show he ever attended.

The exhibition will close Friday night, and Vanderbilt horses will be exhibited every night.

Meadow Brook Hounds Out for Run.

Special to The New York Times.

WOODBURY, L. I., Oct. 19.—After a good run of several miles the Meadow Brook hounds finished here to-day. Those in the saddle were W. Battazzi, H. L. Bell, Ambrose Clark, Henry Godfrey, Robert Patter, Douglass Campbell, Malcolm Stevenson, M. F. H., and Miss Cornelia Bryce. The meet was at the Columbia Stock Farm in Cold Springs, with the check at Syossett.

CONSERVATIVE TASTES.

There is always a certain number of men whose taste runs to dark fabrics, such as black or blue serges or cheviots. In choosing this season's fabrics we felt that men so inclined would be interested in a conservative departure. For instance, there are blue and gray cheviots, which at a distance show no trace of pattern, yet when seen at closer range show unobtrusive self patterns. The effect is unquestionably handsome. We show a considerable variety of them.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—The area of high barometer is moving slowly eastward, the centre now being over Ontario. Cool weather has continued in the northern and central portions of the country, but temperatures will rise slowly in the Middle States. Rain is general between the lower Mississippi Valley and the Rocky Mountain slope, and a storm is advancing eastward beyond the western mountains.

Winds along the New England Coast will be moderate northwest, shifting to northeast; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate northeast; South Atlantic Coast, moderate to brisk northeast.

Steamships departing Wednesday for European ports will have moderate north to northeast winds, with generally fair weather, to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, New England, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair and continued cool Wednesday and Thursday; moderate north to northeast winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1908.	1909.		1908.	1909.
3 A. M.	65	43	4 P. M.	70	53
6 A. M.	64	41	6 P. M.	64	49
9 A. M.	68	46	9 P. M.	56	45
12 M.	73	50	12 P. M.	55	44

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 48; for the corresponding date last year it was 64; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 54.

The temperature at 8 A. M. was 42; at 8 P. M. it was 46. Maximum temperature, 54 degrees at 2 P. M.; minimum, 41 degrees at 5:50 A. M.

Humidity, 71 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 53 per cent. at 8 P. M.

HOW HARRIMAN BENEFITED ERIE

Results of the Improvements He Advocated Shown in the Annual Report.

OPERATING INCOME HIGHER

Net Income Up Nearly Three Millions—Increase in Capacity and Economy Due to the Guymard Cut-Off.

The annual report of the Erie Railroad, made public yesterday, afforded substantial evidence of the recovery in the road's financial position since the Spring of last year, when the late E. H. Harriman stepped in to save it from defaulting on its maturing notes. The gross operating revenue of the system last year amounted to $50,441,161, an increase of $656,925. Its operating income was $13,536,876, an increase of $4,784,336. The net income for the year, being the amount available after the deduction of fixed charges, was $2,947,643.

The good results being obtained from the improvement work which was carried on in 1907 and last year, largely as a result of the personal effort of the late Mr. Harriman in behalf of the Erie Railroad, are noted in President Underwood's statement to the stockholders. Referring to the Erie & Jersey Railroad, known as the Erie's Guymard cuf-off, he said that the completion of this work had not only materially increased the capacity of the road, but had made possible further economies in operation, the train load east bound on this section having been increased over 230 per cent.

Gratifying results are also being obtained from the other improvements of the Erie, which have been recently completed. The report notes that more than $20,800,000, or 56.53 per cent., of the road's total operating expenses was paid direct to labor, being distributed among 36,324 employes.

Included in the annual report are the resolutions adopted by the Directors of the road at their September meeting in memory of the late E. H. Harriman, whose work in behalf of the Erie is extolled by his fellow-Directors.

Mr. Harriman's successor was not elected at the annual meeting of the stockholders yesterday, but will be chosen at a future meeting of the Directors.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 19.—The weakness in the New York market was reflected to some extent in the Boston list. North Butte was under particular pressure, declining to 57½ on sales of over 6,000 shares. Amalgamated declined to 83¼, while the balance of the list shows little or no change. Greene-Cananea and Butte Coalition were both active and a frastion higher. The close was steady, with no stock pressing for sale.

FEDERAL MINING CO. GAINS.

Annual Report Submitted and Francis H. Brownell Elected President.

The annual report of the Federal Mining and Smelting Company for the year ended Aug. 31 shows net earnings of $1,185,947, which is an increase of $118,910. Depreciation and development charges were increased from $184,666 to $285,657, leaving a balance for dividends of $900,290, which was an increase of $17,915 over that item in the previous year's report. The payment of the regular preferred dividends totaling $839,027 and of $89,894 on the common stock left a deficit of $28,631, which compares with the previous year's deficit of $46,546, and reduced the surplus to $1,761,416. The retiring Directors were re-elected and the board elected Francis H. Brownell to the Presidency to succeed Charles Sweeney, whose resignation was announced some time ago.

GOOD ROCK ISLAND REPORT.

Gross Earnings and Operating Income Increase and Outlook Improves.

The annual report of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway, issued yesterday, showed gross earnings of $60,184,886, an increase of $2,700,690, and operating income of $16,400,526, an increase of $1,842,404. The balance available for dividends was $6,166,230, compared with $4,718,102, and the surplus, after dividends, was $2,236,211, compared with $788,317 the previous year.

During the last year President B. L. Winchell says in his statement to the stockholders 402 new industries were established along the Rock Island lines at a cost estimated to amount to about $8,000,000. These new plants give employment to about 11,000 persons, and are expected to create a movement of over 57,000 carloads a year. In view of the close supervision now exercised over the accounts of the railways by the Inter-State Commerce Commission, the Rock Island management has concluded that no reason exists for incurring the expense of having the road's accounts certified by an independent auditor.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—Renewed buying of Lehigh Valley stock, although on only a moderate scale, was the only thing that relieved the dullness of the local market outside of the arbitrage list. The price advanced fractionally on the movement. The trading in United States Steel continued heavy and optimistic reports on the last quarter's earnings were circulated.

Vegetables in Brine Are Held "Prepared," Although Immersion Is Temporary.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday declined to reverse the action of various Collectors of Customs throughout the country in their assessment of certain vegetables at a high rate of duty. While many firms have a direct interest in the litigation, only five are listed on the official papers as protestants.

The goods covered by the protests are capers, string beans, whole green peppers, artichokes, and presumably other vegetables packed in brine. The customs authorities have taken the position that the merchandise is dutiable at 40 per cent. ad valorem under the provision in the Dingley tariff for "prepared vegetables." On the other hand, the importers assert that the goods are properly dutiable at 25 per cent. as "vegetables in their natural state." The basis of the importers' contention is that the brine serves merely for temporary preservation while the vegetables are in transit, and that after serving that purpose the brine is dispensed with. The further point is made by the importers that the brine serves no purpose in the ultimate preparation of the commodities.

According to the importers, a decision by the Federal court in the case of the United States against Stromeyer should control in the cases at bar. In overruling the claims, Judge Waite, for the board, says that no testimony has been presented, and that owing to this fact the classification made by the Collectors will have to stand. The protesting firms include Joseph Pistorino, the Trans-Continental Freight Company, Wakem & McLaughlin, Debber & Dik, and F. B. Vandegrift & Co.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

JACOB SAPIRMAN.—Jacob Sapirman, boss painter, 3,854 Third Avenue, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $4,827 and no assets. Among the creditors are Alfred Peats Company, $1,258, and Benjamin Silverman, $1,659.

PENNEY & ANDERSON.—Schedules in bankruptcy of Penney & Anderson, restaurant, 154 Columbus Avenue, snow liabilities of $8,772 and no assets. Among the creditors are A. T. Fowler, $1,018; James W. Penney, $800, and Kahn & Clark, $757.

GEORGE W. BUSKIRK.—Judge Hand has appointed Jesse A. Lewinson receiver in bankruptcy for George W. Buskirk, stationer at 649 Sixth Avenue. It was stated that a dispossess warrant has been issued for non-payment of rent. The stock is estimated at $2,000 and the accounts at $8,000.

AARON REINHARDT.—Judge Hough has appointed Samuel H. Lummis receiver in bankruptcy for Aaron Reinhardt, dealer in millinery at 272-274 Sixth Avenue, with a bond of $10,000, and authorized him to continue business ten days. It was stated that Mr. Reinhardt is insolvent. Mr. Lummis is Secretary of the Eastern Millinery Association.

HARRY MARTIN.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Harry Martin, dealer in dry goods at Mt. Vernon, by these creditors: Henry Ettelson Company, $213; Durst & Rubin, $168, and Morris J. Rubin, $145. It was alleged that he is insolvent, made preferential payments, and removed stock valued at $1,000. The liabilities are reported to be $12,000 and the assets $4,000.

DAVIS FUR COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Davis Fur Company, manufacturer and dealer in furs at 25 Union Square, by these creditors: Isaac Chaitin & Co., $340; William Hoffman & Co., $318, and Philip Rothenberg, $200. It was alleged that the company is insolvent, made preferential payments of $1,000, and transferred merchandise and accounts of $1,000. The company was incorporated on March 17, 1908, with a capital stock of $500, Walter Davis, President. The liabilities are said to be $18,000 and the assets $5,000. An offer was made to compromise at 25 cents on the dollar.

MUSIC LESSONS FREE

We Give You 96 Free Lessons on Piano, Organ, Violin, Guitar, Banjo, Mandolin or Sight-Singing in Your Own Home

THOUSANDS of men, women and children of all ages have become accomplished musicians through our courses. We teach both vocal and instrumental music, furnishing the lesson-sheets absolutely without charge. They are so simply arranged that home study can be pursued intelligently without a teacher.

A Lesson Every Week.

We teach music by easy stages. By mastering one lesson a week, the pupil may become a finished musician before the end of the 96 lessons. Our lesson-sheets are sent out each week, and the only expense during the entire time you take the course is the cost of postage and the music you use, which is a small item.

Our plan is to make these home study courses known in your locality. We want you and your friends to know our methods, to see how, in a few lessons, we place the pupil perfectly at ease before the home circle or the largest audience. Many of our pupils form music clubs, giving concerts and taking part in entertainments with rare skill.

What Our Pupils Say:

"The lessons are marvels of simplicity, and my 11 year-old boy has not had the least trouble to learn."

"Have learned more in one term in my home with your weekly lessons than in three terms with private teachers, and at a great deal less expense."

"As each succeeding lesson comes I am more and more fully persuaded I made no mistake in becoming your pupil."

Send for Our Booklet

The best way to take advantage of this instruction at once is to drop us a postal or a brief line asking for our descriptive booklet. This will be sent post-free, together with our tuition offer. This places you under no obligation, even if you never write us again.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Irregular and Less Active; Close Lower—Call Money, 4½@4 Per Cent.

STEEL LEADS THE TRADING

Money Market Easier and Foreign Exchange Rates Higher — Banks Gain from Sub-Treasury.

A series of irregular fluctuations left the market at the close of yesterday's operations on the Stock Exchange at a substantially lower level in the case of several of the most active issues with some exceptional advances, notably among the stocks of the express companies. The day's trading took its character very largely from the operations in United States Steel, which accounted for more than 25 per cent. of the total trading of the session. The volume of transactions was considerably reduced compared with the previous day, sales falling nearly 200,000 shares short of the million-share mark, and the market as a whole, apart from the few issues which led in activity, reflecting a general curtailment of trading operations. The most pronounced selling movement of the day occurred not long before the close of the market, with the result that the final prices were in most cases at or close to the lowest. The extent of the day's reaction is indicated by such net losses as 1⅛ in United States Steel, 1⅜ in Union Pacific, 1⅛ in Reading, 1¼ in Chesapeake & Ohio, 2⅛ in Missouri, Kansas & Texas, with lesser declines in many other issues. Advances were confined almost entirely to relatively inactive issues, the most conspicuous of these changes being a further rise of 25 points in Wells-Fargo Express, of 13 points in United States Express, while American Express, sharing in the general strength of these stocks, showed a net gain of 8 points. The curtailment of operations and the accompanying decline in prices yesterday fell coincidentally with a further easing of interest rates, which, taken in conjunction with a further advance in foreign exchange rates, was the most interesting development of the day. The continued rise in foreign exchange seemed closely associated with covering operations by those who made commitments in exchange in connection with purchases of bills made some time since by those having to care for maturities around the first of November. Provision is understood to have been completed some time since for the payment in London of the New York City revenue bonds to the amount of $25,000,000 which fall due on Nov. 1, but, seemingly, not all of the exchange sold to the city's bankers had been covered, and the recent strength of the exchange market reflected, among other factors, the covering of this exchange.

The Sub-Treasury's statement yesterday showed a gain by the banks in their operations with the Treasury of $139,000 since last Friday, this balance in favor of the banks being due to increased payments by the Government, including large pension disbursements rather than to any lessening of the payments by New York banks to the Sub-Treasury for the account of their out-of-town correspondents.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call on Stock Exchange collateral loaned at 4@4½ per cent., with the last loan at 4 per cent. Most of the day's loans were made at 4 per cent.

Time money rates, 4½ per cent. for sixty days, 4¾ per cent. for ninety days and four months, 4½ per cent. for five months, and 4¾ per cent. for six months.

Mercantile paper rates, 5@5½ per cent. for sixty to ninety days' indorsed bills receivable, 5@5½ per cent. for choice four to six months' single names, and 5½@6 per cent. for others.

Private discounts at foreign centres: London, 3⅞ per cent., unchanged; Paris, 2⅝ per cent., up ⅛ per cent.; Berlin, 3⅞ per cent., unchanged.

New York Clearing House statement: Exchanges, $478,008,176; balances, $18,396,531; Sub-Treasury debit balance, $311,371.

The local banks have gained on their Sub-Treasury operations $139,000 since Friday.

Sterling exchange was strong, with demand quoted at $4.8655@$4.8660, sixty days at $4.8340@$4.8345, and cables at $4.8690@$4.8695.

Continental bills were quoted as follows: Francs, 5.16⅞ less 1-16@5.16⅞ less 1-64 for cables, 5.17½@5.17½ plus 1-32 for sight. Reichsmarks, 95½ less 1-64@95¼ plus 1-32 for cables, 95¼@95⅛ plus 3-64 for sight, and 94 7-16@94⅝ for sixty days.

Exchange on New York at Boston was par; Chicago, 15c discount; St. Louis, par; New Orleans, commercial, $1 discount; bank, $1 premium; San Francisco, 50c premium; St. Paul, 45c discount.

SILVER QUOTATIONS.

Bar silver was 1-16d higher in London, at 23 9-16d. per ounce, and ⅛c higher in New York, at 51c per ounce. Mexican dollars were quoted at 43@44c.

THE COFFEE MARKET.

Coffee was easier yesterday, owing to cheaper firm offers from Brazil and continued large receipts at primary points. The close was steady, but at a net decline of 5@15 points. Sales were reported of 47,500 bags.

The opening was barely steady at a decline of 10 points on the decline of ¼@½f. in the French market. Wet weather was reported in Sao Paulo, with a hail storm in one district, but no reports reached the local trade concerning the new crop outlook. The official cables reported an unchanged market at Rio, but a decline of 1-64d in the rate of exchange on London. Santos was steady, unchanged to 50 reis advance.

Spot coffee was quiet; 8¼c nominal for Rio No. 7 and around 8¾c for Santos No. 4.

THE COTTON MARKET.

High Records on Western Buying—Closes 1 to 12 Points Higher.

Cotton continued very active yesterday and again made new high records for the season, but once more met increased offerings just below the 14-cent level, under which prices reacted in the late trading, with close barely steady at a net advance of 1@12 points. Patten interests and some of the large Southern operators were believed to be aggressive buyers.

The market opened steady at an advance of 3@9 points. Rains in the Southwest threatened the movement, and the grade and other factors were continued steadiness of the interior spot markets, heavy extports and bullish advices from cotton goods circles offsetting continued talk of curtailment.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Curb Trading Continues Active, with Many Issues Showing Gains at Close.

SUBWAY FAILS TO HOLD GAIN

After Rising to 9⅝, Shares Sell Back to 8¾—Sears-Roebuck Continues Advance Under Active Trading.

Curb stocks continued fairly active yesterday, and the coppers showed some strength, reflecting the persistent rumors of a movement for a curtailment of output by some of the large producers. At the close many showed fractional gains. In the industrial list Sears-Roebuck continued to focus interest, and on total transactions of 1,700 shares the price rose from 132½ to 136¼. Chicago Subway also made an upward movement, which, however, was not maintained. After rising to 9⅝, the close was at 8¾, even with the opening. Among the coppers to show small gains at the close were Cumberland-Ely, Miami, Nevada Consolidated, Greene-Cananea, and Ohio Copper.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT—Official Russian report estimating the wheat yield of that country at 560,000,000, compared with 420,000,000 last year, a rye crop 100,000,000 in excess of 1908, and fully 200,000,000 increase in the prospective yield of oats preceded a severe break yesterday. Generally weak cables, large Northwest receipts, and a lessening cash demand in Western markets added to the weakness, and sentiment at the close was bearish.

Exporters were said to be reselling durum and Manitobas, and the only fresh export business consisted of about three loads. Total primary receipts were 2,478,000 bushels, compared with 1,351,000 bushels last year. Liverpool lost ⅝d, partly on reports of better Argentine weather. Cash wheat closed easy; No. 2 red, $1.21, elevator, domestic, nominal; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, $1.13¼, and No. 2 hard Winter, $1.21, free on board, afloat, both nominal.

CORN—Up to yesterday noon prices held steady, as, while receipts were somewhat larger than expected, the estimate for Wednesday was only 167 cars, while Liverpool came ⅛@¼d higher. The later market dropped fully a cent on favorable weather through the belt and the decline in wheat. Cash corn closed a little easier. No. 2, 69c, elevator, domestic, 70c delivered, and 69½c, free on board, afloat; No. 2 yellow, 70½c, all nominal.

Another American Bank in China.

The extension of American banking interests in China, coincidently with the carrying on of negotiations for American participation in the Chinese Railway loan, is emphasized by the announcement of the establishment of another branch in China by the International Banking Corporation. About the time that negotiations for the granting of the share in the railway loan to our bankers took active shape, the International Banking Corporation established a branch at Peking, the seat of the railway loan negotiations, so far as these were carried on directly with the Chinese Government. Now the same banking institution has established another branch at Hankow.

Non-Dividend-Paying Railroad Stock

The fact, well known, although often lost sight of, that a substantial proportion of all the outstanding stock of railway companies in the United States yields no return whatever to the holders is again brought forward in the discussion regarding the need of an increase of rates on the railroads to enable them to meet the largely increased cost of labor and materials. Chairman C. C. McCain of the Trunk Line Assiciation, replying to arguments advanced by the Shippers and Receivers' Association, pointed out that in 1907 not less than 32.73 per cent. of all the railway stock outstanding received no dividends at all. The argument that the amount distributed in dividends has increased largely in the last ten years is not valid, Mr. McCain says, against a suggested increase in freight rates at this time, if for no other reason than that in 1897 more than 70 per cent. of the railway stock outstanding was receiving no return whatever. The total amount of surplus earnings available for dividends in 1907, he points out, amounted to only 4.19 per cent. of the outstanding capital stock, while the average rate paid on dividend-paying stock was 6.23 per cent.

Optimism from Butte.

While the talk of a big copper merger was being revived yesterday, despite the denials of those best informed in Wall Street, some information of interest came from President Thayer of the Anaconda. He returned from the West telling of renewed prosperity in Montana, reduced mining costs, peace among the labor unions, and good ore showing in the lowest levels of the Butte camp. Speaking of general conditions in his territory, he predicts that it will be a matter of only a few months before the car shortage, which is already beginning to make itself felt, will become a serious problem to the railroads.

The Advance in Express Shares.

The advance of the stock of Wells-Fargo & Co., which continued yesterday, reaching 475, has stirred up activity in the shares of other express companies. There has been considerable private inquiry for both Wells-Fargo and United States Express shares, and the fact that some at least of the out-of-town shareholders have been approached with offers has been responsible for rumors of a contest for control of Wells, Fargo & Co., in which E. H. Harriman was known to be a large individual stockholder at the time of his death. Stories of a possible merger of the United States and the Wells-Fargo, with perhaps some of the other companies, were considered answered by the conflict such action would make with the Sherman law. The increase in the United States Express dividend was generally held to be sufficient to account for the rise in these shares, which sold up to 103 yesterday, 10 points above previous quotations.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

At the Metal Exchange yesterday business was dull. Copper was unchanged, while tin developed an easier tone, declining about ¼c for spot. Lead was a shade higher in the bid. Spelter was unchanged.

On the Metal Exchange in London yesterday copper for both spot and future deliveries remained unchanged from the final figures of Monday, but a decline of 2s 6d from the initial prices of yesterday. The market finished easy, closing quotations ruling at: Spot, £57 15s; futures, £58 15s.

Pig tin ended easy, with spot deliveries down 15s, to £138 12s 6d, and future deliveries off 12s 6d, to £140 2s 6d. Spanish pig lead was steady, at a gain of 1s 3d, to £13 6s 3d. Spelter was steady at £23 5s. Cleveland warrants were quoted at 51s 9d.

The closing bid and asked prices for copper and other metals for spot deliveries on the New York Metal Exchange yesterday compare as follows with those of Monday:

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 19.—Trading was quiet, but the demand for certain bonds caused them to take quite an upward spurt. Atlantic Coast Line of Connecticut, one small sale, advances 10 points to 325, but declined 5 points on larger demand. Atlantic Coast Line Railroad 4 per cent certificates gained 3 points on large order. The other stocks fared pretty well in the quotations, none losing ground. Shares, 495; bonds, $53,000.

THE FOREIGN MARKETS.

Wall Street Selling and Buying Makes London Trading Irregular.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Money was in restricted supply on the market to-day, owing to the Bank of England making its 4 per cent. effective. Discounts were firm. Trading on the Stock Exchange was sluggish and irregular, with foreigners the firmest section under Paris support and investment buying. Copper shares were steady, but Kaffirs and diamond shares were weak, while British shares continued to droop on the monetary and political outlook.

American securities after a slight opening advance developed weakness. Selling operations carried prices below parity, and at noon the market was easy, from ¼ to ⅞ below yesterday's New York closing. A steadier tone developed in the afternoon, but with Wall Street alternately buying and selling the market became irregular and closed uncertain.

Bar silver steady, 23 9-16d per ounce.

Money, 2¼@2¾ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3⅞ per cent.; for three months' bills, 3⅞ per cent.

PARIS, Oct. 19.—Prices on the Bourse opened firm, but became irregular at the close.

Three per cent. rentes, 98f for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 17c for checks.

BERLIN, Oct. 19.—Trading on the Boerse to-day was inactive.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Tuesday.

For a time during the afternoon weakness the market for stocks on the Consolidated Stock Exchange was a very poor one. Prices in numerous instances then ruled from ⅜ to ½ of a point under the New York Stock Exchange quotations. Covering of shorts, however, imparted more steadiness at the closing. Early in the day there was a tendency to bid for the standard issues, a number of which touched higher figures than were reached on the other board. Dealings were on a heavy scale, amounting to 115,220 shares, distributed among fifty-five different issues.

Authorized issue, $12,000,000. Redeemable on any interest day at 103 and interest. Coupon bonds $1,000, $500 and $100 denominations may be registered as to principal or exchanged for fully registered bonds $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000 denominations, which may be reconverted into coupon form.

The Standard Trust Company of New York, Trustee

Principal and interest payable in New York City in U. S. Gold Coin, and abroad at the following rates of exchange: London 4.86 per pound Sterling; Paris, Frs. 5.18; Amsterdam Fl. 2.48.

A LARGE AMOUNT OF THE ABOVE BONDS HAVING BEEN SOLD, THE UNDERSIGNED WILL RECEIVE SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR THE BALANCE AT 96½ AND ACCRUED INTEREST TO DELIVERY.

The subscription will be opened at 10 o'clock A. M., on Friday October 22, 1909 and will be closed at 3 o'clock P. M. the same day, or earlier without notice, the right being reserved to reject any applications or to award a smaller amount than applied for. A first payment of $50 in New York funds per $1,000 bond must accompany each subscription and the balance due will be payable in New York funds on allotment. Temporary certificates will be issued pending delivery of engraved bonds.

Benjamin Guggenheim, Esq., President of the International Steam Pump Company, under date of October 11, 1909, writes us substantially as follows:

1. First mortgage on all the properties directly owned by the International Steam Pump Co.; further secured by deposit of entire funded debt and $5,497,700 out of $5,500,000 common stock of the Henry R. Worthington Co. and by securities of other subsidiary companies.
2. Upon retirement of $3,500,000 6% Debentures, called for redemption on October 28, 1909, these bonds will constitute the only funded debt of the International Steam Pump Company. Approximately $1,000,000 bonds of subsidiaries are outstanding, provision for the retirement of which is made by sinking fund.
3. Mortgage provides sinking fund aggregating $6,000,000, sufficient to retire substantially half the total authorized issue by maturity.
4. Current assets in excess of all current liabilities, after issuance of these bonds, will equal approximately $10,000,000. Appraised value of plants, upwards of $11,600,000. Total tangible assets of combined companies over and above current liabilities, after issuance of these bonds, $23,350,000.
5. The Company agrees that the quick assets of the combined companies over and above current liabilities must be maintained or brought up to $8,000,000 before dividends may be declared on the common stock; this amount to be further increased with any addition to the amount of these bonds outstanding.
6. During the last four years, 1906-1909 inclusive, combined net income, before deducting dividends on preferred stocks of subsidiaries, averaged $1,830,000 per annum, nearly four times the full interest requirements after issuance of these bonds. Average for ten years, 1900-1909 inclusive, $1,740,000 per annum. Available earnings, fiscal year ended March 31, 1909, were three times these requirements.
7. Regular dividends, 6% per annum, have been earned and paid for ten years on the Company's preferred stock, $11,350,000 now outstanding.

Application will be made to list these bonds on the New York, London and Amsterdam Stock Exchanges.

The plants of the International Steam Pump Co. have been appraised for us by Bion J. Arnold, Esq., Consulting Engineer, of Chicago, and an independent audit of the Company's accounts made by Messrs. Marwick, Mitchell & Co., Chartered Accountants. The legality of the issue has been approved by our attorneys, Messrs. Cravath, Henderson & de Gersdorff, New York. Copies of prospectus and application blank may be obtained on request.

The subscription will be opened simultaneously

FINANCIAL SITUATION AT HOME AND ABROAD

The New York Times Weekly Financial Review—every Monday—is a valuable appendix to the financial literature of the day. It presents in handy form full and accurate tables of quotations of securities dealt in on the leading exchanges and the curb, and is the recognized authority on railroad earnings, bank clearings, revenues and expenditures of the United States Government, and on all matters affecting the interests of the investing public. The Review's articles and correspondence from all great commercial centres convey the financial situation tersely and accurately.

Mailed to any address in the United States for $1.00 a year.

The New York Times Weekly Financial Quotation Review, Times Square, New York.

During the first nine months of 1909 The New York Times carried 82,407 more lines of financial advertising than any other newspaper in New York.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Fourth Avenue Corner Leased to Prominent Silk Concern —Stoop Line and Area Ordinances—Brokers Board Elects Officers.

News of an important removal to Fourth Avenue, and one which will mean much to the further development of that section, was contained in an announcement made yesterday by Henry Corn, that he has leased to Cheney Brothers, silk importers and manufacturers, now at 477 Broome Street, the store, basement, and second floor in the new building to be erected on the site of the old Clarendon Hotel, at Fourth Avenue and Eighteenth Street. The lease is for twenty-one years at $35,000 a year, the aggregate rental for the term amounting to about $750,000. The new building is to be twenty stories high and will be ready for occupancy by Oct. 1, 1910.

Operator Buys on 21st Street.

Irving I. Kempner has bought from Lydia Banks 138 West Twenty-first Street, a three-story dwelling, on lot 23 by 92. S. B. Goodale & Son were the brokers. Mr. Kempner already owns 132 to 136, adjoining, and now controls a plot 92 by 96.

Board of Brokers Election.

At the annual meeting of the Real Estate Board of Brokers, held yesterday, Irving Ruland, Elisha Sniffin and J. W. Mooyer were elected Governors to serve for three years.

The Board of Governors then elected the following officers for the coming year: President—Joseph P. Day; Vice President—William E. Davies; Treasurer—A. V. Amy; Secretary—Elisha Sniffin.

M. V. Lenane, C. P. L. Huston, and Augustus H. Ivins will make up the Auditing Committee for 1910. The members of the new Nominating Committee are Edward L. King, David A. Clarkson, John P. Kirwan, Frank D. Ames, and J. S. de Selding.

$130,000 Press Club Mortgage.

The New York Press Club has mortgaged its property at the northwest corner of Spruce and William Streets, to the Seaman's Bank for Savings for $130,000, due in five years and bearing 5 per cent. interest.

Concerning Stoops and Areas.

Allan Robinson, President of the Allied Real Estate Interests, sent a letter last week to Corporation Counsel Pendleton inquiring as to the progress being made by the commission appointed to frame a new code of ordinances relating to stoops, areas, and other street projections. Last April the Board of Estimate and Apportionment repealed all ordinances in relation to the matter. This repeal was suspended by the Corporation Counsel until Dec. 1, in order to permit the drawing up of a new code.

In his letter Mr. Robinson called attention to the fact that the time is approaching when many contracts for the sale of real estate will be made, in which the passing of title will be set for dates after Dec. 1, and that sellers will be advised to put into such contracts some provision which will throw upon purchasers the burden of the risk that, when the time of closing comes, the stoops, areas, and other projections may be unlawful.

Corporation Counsel Pendleton, in his reply, dated Oct. 16, says that the committee to which this matter was referred has had various meetings and has consulted with the representatives of the title companies and architects, and that preliminary suggestions have been drawn up by one of his assistants. The committee, Mr. Pendleton says, will certainly report long enough before Dec. 1 to give the Board of Estimate ample opportunity to act.

Walter Lindner, solicitor of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, made a statement yesterday relative to this matter. In answer to the question, "What would be the effect after Dec. 1 of the failure to take any further action with relation to street projections?" Mr. Lindner said:

"The situation would be similar to that which faced real estate owners after April 23 last—that is to say, it would be necessary to hold that the title to every piece of property on which there was a building which had a stoop, area, or other projection, which extended into the street, had been rendered unmarketable because of the ordinances under which these projections had been permitted would stand revoked. This applies to practically nine-tenths of the property which is the subject of current transactions."

Deal for First Avenue Corner.

Samuel Fine has sold for Cecelia Kalcher to Dr. Nathan E. Brader the southwest corner of First Avenue and Tenth Street, a six-story flat, on plot 46 by 72.

New Auctioneer in the Field.

J. H. Mayers, for many years general manager for Joseph P. Day, has opened offices at 135 Broadway, corner of Cedar Street. Mr. Mayers has often acted in the capacity of auctioneer for Mr. Day, and is well known in real estate circles. He intends to conduct a general real estate and auction business.

Tenants for Broadway Structures.

The Building and Engineering Company has rented the following lofts in its new building 926 to 930 Broadway and 17 East Twenty-first Street: The seventh loft to Joseph Beckler & Co., the eighth loft to A. Adler & Co., through M. & L. Hess, and the ninth and tenth lofts to A. Greenberg & Co., through Nathan Weiss.

The Charles F. Noyes Company has leased for the L. M. Jones Company to the Elliott-Fischer Company the entire fifth floor and additional space in the new twelve-story office building 364 and 366 Broadway, occupying the block front on the north side of Franklin Street. The lease is for a term of years at an aggregate rental of $60,000.

Herman Frankfort, in conjunction with Herbert A. Sherman, has leased to Salant & Salant the first loft in 71 and 73 Warren Street for a term of years.

The Henry M. Weill Company has leased for Katherine E. Fitzpatrick 242 West Twenty-fifth Street, a four-story dwelling, for twenty-one years, at an aggregate rental of $38,300. The lessee will pay $1,500 a year for the first five years, $1,800 for the next six years, and $2,000 for the remainder of the term. The lease also contains the privilege of two renewals of twenty-one years each.

West Side Dwellings Leased.

H. C. Senior & Co. have leased the following dwellings: No. 111 West Sixty-third Street, to Ewing Watterson; 125 West Sixty-fourth Street, to Mrs. Mary McCabe; 148 West Sixty-fifth Street, to Mrs. Dolores Decolas; 453 West Fifty-seventh Street, to Mrs. Catherine Heim, and 255 West Sixty-ninth Street, to James Deering.

The Duross Company has leased for P. P. Cappel the four-story dwelling 242 West Twenty-second Street to Charles A. Meyer.

FORCED LOT SALE AT BAYSIDE BEYOND FLUSHING.
Owing to the press of circumstances I have to sell my few remaining BAYSIDE lots at far below their value. BAYSIDE is improving every minute; its railway service will soon be perfect, but some one else must make the big profits. I cannot wait. North of Broadway is the beautiful McKnight estate, with its large and handsome residences. South of Broadway, across the street, are my lots, and these MUST BE SOLD. Free fare trains will run from Long Island City to Bayside Saturday at 1:30 P. M. and Sunday at 10:20 A. M., Oct. 23 and 24, and carriages will meet you at the Bayside station. My PRICES will be RUINOUSLY LOW—as low as $150 for some lots—and terms very easy. If you want lots for a BIG RISE and SURE PROFIT, be sure and come and bring your friends. I have arranged to have your money paid to the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, who will indorse all contracts, making you absolutely safe as to deed and title. For plans and prices address

PUT U. S. EXPRESS ON 6 PER CENT. BASIS

The Directors Surprise Majority Shareholders by Increasing the Semi-Annual Dividend.

EFFECT ON THE PLATT FIGHT

Thought to be a Move to Quiet the Protesting Hatt and Banister Committee.

The majority shareholders of the United States Express Company got part of what they have been fighting for for three years when the announcement was made yesterday of the declaration of a semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent., placing the shares on a 6 per cent. basis. No report for the last fiscal year was made public, although the increased dividend was taken as confirmation of the belief that business has greatly improved since the last report.

The company once before, when the clamor of the Hatt & Banister shareholders' committee, representing more than half of the $10,000,000 capital of the company for a representative management became particularly insistent, increased the dividend rate. That was in the Fall of 1907, when a 3 per cent. semi-annual disbursement was paid. The next dividend was at the old rate of 4 per cent. annually. Since then the shareholders have carried their fight into the courts.

Neither Eugene Kremer, counsel for the Hatt & Banister Committee, nor associate counsel for the shareholders in their legal efforts to secure a majority rule for the company, would discuss yesterday the changed situation brought about by the dividend increase. It could not be definitely learned whether or not the committee will be satisfied with what they have got and leave the Platt management undisturbed. At least one of the stockholders who has been identified with the three-year fight, was strongly opposed yesterday to letting the fight against the Platt management drop now that recognition has been taken of the majority's demands for an increased dividend.

"We have seen our contentions justified one after another," said this stockholder, "and we would be foolish to accept a sop of this kind and be put off from the main issue, which is the establishment of the company under an able management. We have had a dividend increase once before, and as soon as the committee was disorganized the rate was cut again.

"The other fight to have officers of the Adams and American Express Companies removed from the board where they, though officers of competing companies, had a powerful voice, resulted in the sale of the American and Adams holdings of our stock. While we were still looking on this as a triumph Mr. Platt admitted on the witness stand that E. H. Harriman was the real purchaser.

"While we recognized the value of a man of Mr. Harriman's calibre to the company, we did not forget that he was the dominant interest in another of the company's rivals, the Wells-Fargo. Altogether, every experience we have had with the present management has served to strengthen our belief that there will be no salvation for us until the majority is allowed to rule."

The stock of the United States Express Company sold up to 103 yesterday, which is 13 points above the last sales before the dividend increase. It was learned yesterday that a number of stockholders have recently been approached with offers for their stock, and considerable curiosity has been aroused as to the source of the buying.

There have been rumors of a possible consolidation of the United States, the Wells-Fargo, and other express companies, but they have been generally discredited on account of the conflict such action would have with the Sherman anti-trust law.

BAR MRS. STETSON FROM INQUIRY ROOM

First and Second Readers of First Church Also Excluded from the Hearings.

QUESTION INQUIRY LEGALITY

Committee in Conference Daily to Investigate Charges Made by the Mother Church.

The Trustees of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, who have been investigating the charges of "mental malpractice" made in Boston against Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson and sixteen of her practitioners, denied yesterday that their investigation conflicts in any way with the jurisdiction of the Mother Church Directors.

In a statement issued by the committee of inquiry, of which Edwin F. Hatfield is Chairman, the Trustees assert that the absence of the First and Second Readers in the First Church from the proceedings of the committee was occasioned by their own withdrawal from the investigation when the propriety of their presence was questioned.

When this statement was made public the fact became known that Mrs. Stetson and her practitioners are under investigation here as members of the First Church only, and that the investigation made by the Mother Church Directors was on charges made against the teacher and practitioners as members of the Mother Church. Just what action will be decided upon by the First Church Trustees has not been made apparent.

The committee of inquiry, consisting of every member of the Board of Trustees, except Mrs. Stetson and the First and Second Readers, has not obtained the minutes of the Mother Church investigation which resulted in the ousting of Mrs. Stetson as teacher of the First Church and the disciplining of her sixteen practitioners. No inkling of the actual line of investigation which is being pursued by the committee is given in the statement, which says:

> The Board of Directors of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, on Sept. 24, informally communicated to several members of the Board of Trustees of First Church of Christ, Scientist, New York City, certain facts alleged to have been found in an investigation then in progress by the Directors of the Mother Church.
>
> As soon as practicable thereafter the Board of Trustees of the New York church met and appointed a committee to report on a plan of procedure for inquiring into conditions, teachings, and practices said to obtain in this branch church contrary to the teachings of Christian Science.
>
> On that day a communication from Mrs. Stetson was laid before the Board of Trustees, which had been received by her from the Secretary of the Board of Directors of the First Church of Boston, as a result of the investigation conducted by that board. This created a condition unprecedented in the history of this branch church, and called for careful consideration.
>
> Mrs. Stetson absented herself from the meeting which commenced the inquiry, and the two Readers of the church withdrew from this meeting when the propriety of their presence was questioned, on account of their previous relation to the proceedings.
>
> Subsequently the legality of the proceedings of the board, in the absence of the two Readers, was questioned by the First Reader. The right of the two Readers to be present at board meetings is "for conference and advice" only. Mrs. Stetson's right is to vote as a member of the board. Under these conditions the board thought best to appoint a committee of inquiry, at whose sittings neither Mrs. Stetson nor the First and Second Readers should be present.
>
> In conducting this inquiry the committee appointed by the Board of Trustees of First Church, New York, is endeavoring:
>
> First, to refrain from trespassing on the jurisdiction and rights of the Directors of the Mother Church; and,
>
> Second, to arrive at a just judgment without respect of persons, and without fear or favor regarding the matters at issue, in so far as they fall within the jurisdiction of this branch of the Mother Church.

Mr. Hatfield said yesterday that another statement would be issued when the committee of inquiry finishes its work. He said that he had no idea how long the investigation would last, but that meetings of the committee of inquiry are being held daily.

Mrs. Stetson remained shut up in her home adjoining the church all day and refused to see reporters. Members of the inquiry committee communicated with her, however, and kept her in touch with the progress of the investigation.

ARMSTRONG LIBRARY SALE.

Rare Books Offered at the Opening Day and What They Brought.

The sale of the library of Colin Armstrong of Quaker Ridge, N. Y., member of the Grolier and Rowfant Clubs and the Bibliophile Society, was begun at Anderson's, in East Forty-sixth Street, yesterday. The remaining session of Part I. will be held to-day. Part II. will be sold on Oct. 26 and 27. The library contains about 5,000 volumes. The top prices yesterday were as follows:

Henry Alken's "Real Life in London," the rare original edition, two volumes, 8vo, London, 1821-2, $61.

William Loring Andrews's publications, viz., New Amsterdam, New Orange, New York, 170 copies printed; gossip about Book Collecting, 125 copies printed, and Paul Revere and His Engraving, 135 copies printed, respectively, $57, $52, and $49.

J. J. Audubon's "Birds of America," reissued by J. W. Audubon, seven volumes, and J. J. Audubon's and John Bachman's "Quadrupeds of North America," New York, 1861, in all ten volumes, $171.

André's Journal, edited by H. C. Lodge and published by the Bibliophile Society, $52.

William Blake's Illustrations of the Book of Job, folio, London, 1825, $74.

The Grolier and Rowfant publications are well represented in the remaining parts, including such rarities as "A Decree of Star Chamber Concerning Printing," Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam, Knickerbocker's History of New York, and "Letter of Paul Jones, Feb. 3, 1778, Arranging for the First National Salute to the American Flag in Europe." There are also a large number of the Kelmscott, Eragny, and Essex Presses and a complete collection of the Doves Press.

In poetry there are first editions of Stephen Phillips, including his rare "Marpessa,"; Swinburne, William Morris, Longfellow, Lowell, Whittier, Walt Whitman, Eugene Field, and others.

Other notable items are Bernhard Berenson's "Florentine Painters," William Anderson's "Pictorial Arts of Japan," G. A. Audsley's "Ornamental Arts in Japan," and the best collected editions of the works of eminent American and British writers.

GUSTAV MAHLER ARRIVES.

Philharmonic Society Conductor Calls Rehearsal—Kreisler, Violinist, Here.

Gustav Mahler, the conductor of the Philharmonic Society, and Fritz Kreisler, the violinist, arrived last night on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. The musical director was accompanied by Mrs. Mahler and his eight-year-old daughter, and brought with him numerous trunks filled with musical scores. While Mr. Mahler will devote most of his time during the next twenty-five weeks to the preparation and direction of the Philharmonic concerts, he is now considering an invitation to conduct a few performances of German music dramas at the Metropolitan Opera House.

Mr. Mahler asked Richard Arnold, the President of the Philharmonic, who met him at the pier, to call a rehearsal of the Orchestra for next Monday morning. Theodore Spiering, who is to be the new concertmeister, arrived on the same ship.

Fritz Kreisler has returned for a recital tour of the United States, and will open in Carnegie Hall on Saturday afternoon. He was accompanied by Mrs. Kreisler and his pianist, Haddon Squire. The violinist brought with him his famous Adams Stradivarius which he bought in this country two years ago, paying nearly $20,000 for it, and also his Guarnerius and his Amati violins. Mr. Kreisler is to be heard at the Metropolitan Opera House on several occasions.

MARGUERITE CLARKE IN PLAY.

Appears in "The Wishing Ring," a New Comedy by Owen Davis.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Oct. 19.—Miss Marguerite Clarke, a musical comedy star, made her appearance in drama at the Princess Theatre to-night, using a comedy by Owen Davis entitled "The Wishing Ring."

The story is that of an English parson and his daughter in poor circumstances. "Sally" devotes most of her time to attending the sick parishioners. She gathers flowers for them out of the rose gardens of Annessley Chase. During one of these incursions a wealthy young nobleman, who is temporarily living on the estate, catches her. She mistakes him for the gardener. Later the real gardener appears and the complications arise.

The company includes Robert Dempster, Grace Goodhall, King Baggett, Cecil DeMille, Robert Lee Hill, Katherine Manning, Agnes Everett, George E. Brown, George Girard, Louise Dempsey, Frederick Gibbs, Robert Tansey, Pearl Egan, Gladys Egan, and Harry Wilson.

NEW YORKERS ADD TO FERRER PROTEST

SCORN FOR KING OF SPAIN

Federation of Labor Acts—Attempts Made to Have Three European Parliaments Take Up the Agitation.

A big mass meeting of labor people and Socialists, called to protest against the killing of Francesco Ferrer, the Spanish educator recently executed in Barcelona as the leader of the revolutionists, crowded Carnegie Hall to its limit last night, and cheered long and repeatedly the denunciations of the King of Spain, of the capitalist classes everywhere, and the eulogies of Ferrer.

Charles Edward Russell, the magazine writer, first speaker, denounced the King of Spain as "a piece of useless and antique furniture, lolling about on the throne, descended from a long line of idiots, lunatics, and imbeciles"; characterized the act of execution as "foul murder"; its victim as "a man that stood for progress in its highest sense and all enlightenment," and prophesied, comparing Ferrer with John Brown, that "the volley that killed him would echo around the world and strike down every throne in Christendom." He said absolutism was maintaining itself again, and by this act the world was reminded that "capitalism and aristocracy, capitalism and injustice, capitalism and caste go hand in hand."

Another speaker, Joshua Wanhope, drew roar after roar of applause from the crowd by saying: "In a trench around the strongest fort in Spain lies the corpse, its skull shattered with bullets, of one who was never so dangerous in life as in death. The reverberation of that shattering volley quickened the forces that make for revolution; for the overthrow of a society so rotten that it can only stand by relying on murder.

"I am not sure that to-day in the United States it is safe to protest against any murder countenanced by the ruling class. Any one to-day can see that those who control the press of this city have made its writers look on this murder with horrible complacency. If the capitalists of this city were safe of after effects every man would say of Ferrer: 'He got what he deserved.'"

Toward the end of the meeting this resolution was unanimously adopted by a rising vote:

> That we denounce the execution of Francesco Ferrer as an act of mediaeval barbarism, committed by the allied enemies of freedom and progress, a stain upon modern civilization, a deliberate murder thinly disguised under the form of legal procedure.
>
> That we trust the memory of Ferrer, the martyr, will stimulate our Spanish brothers to increased efforts in their struggle for the overthrow of an intolerable system of economic, mental, and political oppression.
>
> That we feel deeply ashamed and humiliated by our own Government's maintenance of diplomatic relations with the Russian and Spanish Governments, which have by their deeds placed themselves outside of the pale of civilization.

Then several letters of regret were read, one from Rabbi Wise, one from Morris Hillquit, and a third from Justice Seabury, in which he said:

"Against a wrong so great as the murder of Francesco Ferrer it is fitting that the enlightened people of every nation should protest. Stupid and tyrannous States may attempt by means of cruelty and injustice to impede the cause of nationalism and human liberty, but in fact by these means they merely hasten its growth."

Other speakers were Henry Frank, Leonora O'Reilly, and Edward F. Cassidy, Socialist candidate for Mayor.

KING ALFONSO DEJECTED.

Suffers from Insomnia and Abandons His Daily Outings.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The Daily Chronicle's Madrid correspondent asserts that owing to the Ferrer agitation, King Alfonso is much dejected. He is suffering from insomnia and is almost a prisoner in the palace, having abandoned his daily outings.

Threatening letters in large numbers are being received daily at the palace and at the residences of the Ministers.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The Socialist members of the House of Commons tried to adjourn the session this afternoon in order to discuss the execution at Barcelona last week of Prof. Francisco Ferrer, but only fourteen Labor and four Radical members could be found to support the motion.

Albert Victor Grayson, Socialist, from Yorkshire, and William J. Thorne, Laborite, from Southwest Ham, then created a disturbance by anathematizing their colleagues as "shameful cowards."

PARIS, Oct. 19.—Parliament reconvened to-day. The Senate, following an interpellation of the Government concerning the relations between France and Spain, was adjourned by unanimous consent. This action was upon the request of M. Pichon, Minister of Foreign Affairs, who held that cognizance of the interpellation would involve improper discussion of the domestic affairs of a foreign country.

Fifty-seven towns in France have decided to name streets for Ferrer.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 19.—The Socialists made a violent attack on Spain in the Chamber of Deputies to-day with reference to the execution of Ferrer. There were cries of "Down with Spain!" Deputy Vandervelde, the Socialist leader, called it a frightful crime. "The Spanish Ministry is a Government of assassins," he shouted.

BERLIN, Oct. 19.—The Berlin branch of the Goethe League, which is composed of leading literary and university men, this evening adopted resolutions declaring that Prof. Francisco Ferrer's execution was a murder committed under the forms of law and an insult to European civilization. Among the signers of the resolutions were Hermann Sudermann and Ludwig Fulda, playwrights.

Women, chiefly Socialists, held a huge indignation meeting to-night. Resolutions adopted declare that the execution of Ferrer was "murder masquerading in the cloak of justice." Anarchists to the number of one thousand, also met to protest "against the murder of our comrade Ferrer."

40 YEARS FOR BLIND SLAYER.

Negro Killed His Friend and Another in a Paterson Saloon Quarrel.

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 19.—William Fason, a blind negro, was sentenced to forty years in the State prison at hard labor by Supreme Court Justice James F. Minturn in the Court of General Sessions this morning for killing two men. On June 26 Fason shot George Hummell and Robert Ferguson in a River Street café.

"I didn't mean to kill these men, Judge," said Fason. "I went into the saloon with Robert Ferguson, my best friend, and asked for a drink. The proprietor told me to get out, and when I told him I needed a drink, he said: 'Throw him out.' I backed up and sat down in a chair. There was a scuffle, and I was hit on the head with something that felt like a blackjack. In order to protect myself I pulled out my revolver, which I had been trying to sell, and fired. I did not mean to shoot any one.

"I just wanted to scare them off. I shot, not knowing where, and I was afterward told I had kiled by best friend and George Hummell, a white man, whom I did not know. Be kind with me, Judge, for I didn't know what I was doing."

THE HARDMAN PIANO

A Grand Piano
To Meet Any Requirements

THE Hardman Grand Piano is not confined to one size or to one style. If your room is only of moderate size the Hardman Small Grand, a grand piano from every musicianly point of view, takes up hardly more room than an ordinary upright.

For larger rooms there are the Baby Grand, the Parlor Grand and the Concert Grand.

All these are shown in a variety of cases from the simplest (the Sheraton) to the most sumptuous (the Louis XV).

Top Coats $14.50

THERE is no overcoat quite as convenient in every way as a Top Coat;—none so completely fit for Autumn wear.

Despite these facts, the demand for the 36-inch length Top Coats has fallen off. When we bought our Fall stocks we looked forward to selling many of these altogether useful garments. We have sold many, but as the demand seems constantly to grow less, we have decided to close the rest out, and to take a loss. The materials are Black Thibet, Unfinished Worsted and Tan Covert Cloth. Regular sizes, 33 to 42. Stout sizes, 36 to 44.
88 were $18. 91 were $20. 64 were $25.

All Now $14.50

Not the Turk, but the Christian

The Desecration of the Holy Sepulchre

The astonishing story of riots at the Saviour's tomb will be told by James Creelman in The Sunday Times. It will be published in instalments, the first of which will appear

IN THE TIMES NEXT SUNDAY

In it Mr. Creelman will tell of the way in which Christians at the place where the Saviour was buried are guilty of such violence toward each other that it is necessary for the Turks to maintain a guard of soldiers there continually to keep the sanctity of the tomb inviolate.

"If we were not here the Christians would kill each other," is one of the things that were said to Mr. Creelman when he inquired among the soldiers of the Sultan to find the reason for their perpetual vigilance.

The story is an amazing one. It tells how the rival sects fight and squabble and swear not only in the neighborhood but around the grave of Christ itself. From the time when all over Europe men, animated with a high purpose to save the sacred tomb from the presumably polluting guardianship of Moslems, undertook the Crusades it has been assumed that it was the presence of the children of Mahmoud that desecrated the place most venerated of all in the minds of Christians. Mr. Creelman's report of actual conditions found there by him is to the effect that the violent rivalry of Christian sects is far worse in import. His story reveals a condition of things which will challenge the attention of the Christian world and will call for action to remove a scandal.

IF all you men were to realize what truly splendid style and snap our new model suits possess, we couldn't produce them fast enough to supply the demand.

With their erect lines, their slim waist and broad chest, they are unlike any other ready-for-wear clothes—the equal of the high priced custom tailor's product, And think of it—our price is only $16.50.
